CANADIAN IMPERIAL BANK OF COMMERCE

Gunman Pursued By Bank Customer

Police Take Suspect At Roadblock

A lone gunman escaped from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch, Burnside Plaza, shortly after 10:30 a.m. with $1,774 in cash.

About 90 minutes after the holdup, police arrested a man at a roadblock and charged him with armed robbery.

The heavy-set man, about 40 years of age with receding grey hair and wearing an orange sweater, presented a note to a teller of the bank demanding money. He was holding a pistol.

Greater Victoria police quickly sealed off the region after the culprit fled on foot. They set up a roadblock on the Trans-Canada Highway and checked ferry traffic at Swartz Bay and the Black Ball terminals.

The only customer, Del Crow of 740 Newbury, followed the bandit when he left with money, pistol and note and chased him twice around the Burnside Plaza.

All Greater Victoria police forces were alerted and the arrest took place at a roadblock Saanich police set up on the Trans-Canada Highway near Burnside.

The suspect is 40 years old and from the lower mainland, police said. They had not yet counted a sum of money seized in the arrest but described it as "a large amount."

At 12:30 p.m. the bank, managed by Charles F. G. Wainwright, was still closed and employees declined any comment.

★ ★ ★

The alert, at 10:39 a.m., sent police racing to check ferry traffic at Sidney and had city police watching traffic on Douglas for a light blue car spotted in the getaway.

Esquimalt police joined in searching motels along the Gorge but it was the roadblock stopping up-island traffic which produced the arrest.

Three other Greater Victoria banks have been held up since last November.

Turkey Quake Toll 3,000

GEDIZ, Turkey (CP)—New tremors pounded earthquake-battered western Turkey today, killing at least 130 persons, and unofficial sources said the death toll since the first quake Saturday night was approaching 3,000.

The first tremors hit near Simav, about 40 miles west of the ravaged town of Gediz, and 24 persons were reported killed.

About 95 more persons died when later tremers struck Emet, 30 miles west of Gediz.

Authorities said today 90,000 persons were homeless in the earthquake-torn area.

Istanbul Observatory announced today that 300 tremors have been recorded in the last 12 hours. Eight were heavy, 30 secondary and the rest minor, the observatory said.

It was during these tremors that the towns of Emet and Simav were hit.

The government said the quake Saturday destroyed at least 33 of 84 villages in the area and 28 others were uninhabitable.

Unofficial sources said more than 5,000 were injured. There were three deaths from exposure in Simav during the night.

By Monday night, soldiers and other rescue workers had dug 644 bodies from the rubble as a steady rain fell and after-shocks shook the ground from time to time.

A weary Turkish soldier, his hands raw and bleeding after hours of tearing at debris, told of the desolation in this once prosperous western Turkish agricultural town of 8,000.

"The people move in silence. The dogs have ceased to bark and the roosters have forgotten how to crow."

School Formula Works, Brothers Tells Critics

By BOB MITCHELL
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Strong criticism of the school finance formula has not convinced Education Minister Donald Brothers it is not working.

Brothers said in an interview Monday at the annual general meeting of the B.C. Teachers' Federation he thinks the formula is working despite blistering criticism from teachers and school trustees.

During a short address to about 1,000 BCTF delegates the minister said he expects "constructive criticism" from trustees and teachers.

But he said later he doesn't include attacks on the finance formula under "constructive criticism."

"I don't think there is any room for destructive criticism."

Since the finance formula was introduced in 1968 trustees and teachers have argued against the referendum principle whereby ratepayers must give 60 per cent approval to spending of funds above the amount set by the government.

Seven such referendums were defeated last year.

EIGHT MORE

Eight more—at Nanaimo, West Vancouver, Vanderhoof, Burns Lake, Creston-Kaslo, Qualicum, Peace River North and Slocan — have been defeated in recent weeks.

BCTF President Jim Killeen Monday said education finance, and specifically the referendum principle, is at the root of major problems in B.C. schools.

Brothers said referendums have been defeated because school boards did not "sell" their programs to ratepayers.

"I think with the education formula taxpayers for the first time are able to look at a school board's budget and decide whether they want to accept it or not."

The minister said during the press conference he does not approve of confrontation tactics used by various interest groups to draw attention to school problems.

"People think the only way they can get a point across is by a confrontation."

And on teacher militancy: "I don't think it's the proper way to proceed."

During his speech Monday,

WIDE-OPEN ABORTION LAW IN MARYLAND

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The Maryland legislature today enacted a bill repealing all laws regulating abortion in the state and making Maryland the most liberal state in the United States as to abortions.

The measure, passed on a final vote of 78 to 43 in the House of Delegates, would leave the matter of abortion strictly a decision between the doctor and the patient.

The senate tacked on amendments, in which the house concurred, that would release doctors and hospitals from civil liability if they refuse to perform abortions because of religion or conscience.

Laotians Recapture Key Sam Thong Base

VIENTIANE (AP) — Laotian government forces have recaptured the Sam Thong base site captured by the North Vietnamese on March 18, military informants said today.

Until its 6,000 inhabitants were evacuated two weeks ago, Sam Thong was the main air supply depot and relief centre for some 350,000 Meo tribesmen and other minorities in north central Laos.

Government forces began driving toward Sam Thong several days ago. Sources said three companies, or about 300 men, swept into the town late Monday afternoon, encounterin small arms fire from a North Vietnamese force of unknown size.

There was no word immediately on casualties on either side.

Fighting was reported continuing in and around Sam Thong today, and another company of government troops moved up to reinforce the attackers.

Military sources also reported a Communist unit was hit by Laotian air force strikes and artillery about five miles northeast of Sam Thong. Initial reports said 20 Communists were killed.

A four-man television crew for a Belgian network was reported missing on a riverboat expedition into Pathet Lao territory north of Vientiane. The crew was last seen about March 25.

Bangkok sources reported that North Vietnam has agreed to a proposal by Thailand to re-open talks on repatriating some 40,000 North Vietnamese refugees in northeast Thailand. The Vietnamese took refuge in Thailand during the French Indochina war, and North Vietnam halted a repatriation program when the United States bombed Hanoi and Haiphong in 1964.

Disneyland Under the Park Sought for Beacon Hill

An awesome plan for a vast, dual-purpose subterranean cavern beneath the slopes of Beacon Hill Park — a super-Disneyland in happy times and a bomb shelter, should it come to that — wafted briefly through City Hall this morning.

The brain-child of Richard L. Brash, 713 Connaught, was quietly "received and filed."

The Brash underground labyrinth would be financed, its originator suggested, by a province-wide lottery and thus keep local money from going to "foreign-dominated, greasy claws outfits" abroad.

The proposal, addressed directly to Mayor J. Courtney Haddock, calls for a series of underground labyrinths beneath the rocky slopes of Dallas Road, thus preserving the natural beauty of the park above it except for a "revolving display-room-restaurant-tearoom-curio shop" on the surface.

The grotto, in peaceful times, would house amusement parks, shops, commercial advertising displays, underground hot springs, a wishing well and a weather-proof promenade with 50 feet of solid rock to keep out the elements. Exits would lead up through the rock to the revolving restaurant and various points of the park.

The brash concept will be acknowledged today in a letter of thanks by decision of city council.

Mail Plan Rejected By CNTU

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Confederation of National Trades Unions (CNTU) today rejected a federal government proposal to end two months of disrupted mail deliveries in Montreal.

Raymond Parent, secretary-general of the CNTU, announced there was "no agreement" as he emerged from more than three hours of closed-door talks with Treasury Board president C. M. (Bud) Drury.

Parent said the government's plan to "integrate" mail truck drivers, now employed by a private firm, into the Montreal Post Office was "unacceptable."

DECISION

However, he said the final decision was up to the 457 members of the CNTU local representing the truckers. The members were meeting today at the Montreal headquarters of the CNTU.

The breakdown came less than 12 hours before the expiration of the government's contract with the private trucking firm at midnight EST tonight. The government has decided to turn over mail pickups and deliveries to the Post Office itself and has cancelled private delivery contracts in Montreal.

PROPOSALS

Union officials refused to speculate on the truckers' reactions to the government proposals. They also avoided answering questions about the chances of renewed violence in the Montreal postal situation.

AIR PIRATES BRANDISH SWORDS

100 Hostages Held in Jet

Times News Services

SEOUL — Fifteen sword-waving, dynamite-carrying Japanese student radicals held 100 people hostage in a locked airliner today after its pilot landed here during a hijack attempt.

The students, brandishing samurai swords, seized the plane during a flight from Tokyo to Fukuoka on the southwest coast of Japan, demanding to be flown to North Korea.

An elaborate ruse was staged by Seoul officials to convince the pirates they had landed in Pyongyang, but it failed.

WELCOME MESSAGES

"This is Pyongyang and we welcome you," loudspeakers blared as the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 carrying the 15 hijackers, 93 passengers and seven crew members landed. Girls carrying flowers approached the plane shouting welcome messages.

South Korean soldiers in Communist uniforms were deployed around the landed jet, and signs to make the airport appear to be Pyongyang's were hastily displayed, along with the Communist flag.

The students holding the jet, unconvinced, threatened to blow up the plane, passengers, crew and themselves if not flown on to Pyongyang, and the pilot notified the airport control tower he will take off at dawn Wednesday for the North Korean capital.

Sources at the airport said the local JAL manager sent the air pirates a note advising them the pilot could take them to Pyongyang but they should allow the other crew members and passengers to get off in Seoul. There was no immediate response from the radicals, but they later rejected a similar plea from Masahide Kanayama, the Japanese ambassador to South Korea.

The student radicals when they took over the plane identified themselves as members of the revolutionary Red Army student faction. When the jet landed for refuelling in Fukuoka 23 persons were allowed to disembark.

OFFICIALS CONFER

A report by Radio Manhaha said the ambassador advised the pilot, Shinji Ishida, 46, to agree to the hijackers' demands to fly to the Communist North. The pilot said he did not mind flying north and was sure the passengers

. . . BANK HOLDUP

Two days later the Toronto Dominion bank at Yates and Broad was held up for $1,157. A man was arrested immediately following the robery but has yet to appear for trial.

On Nove. 27, a gunman escaped with nearly $7,000 from tre Cordova Bay branch of the Bank of Commerce.

Indian Grant Launches Gillnetter

The latest project in an extensive program of assistance to Indian fishermen, an all-aluminum one-man gillnetter was launched in Coquitlam at the weekend and is undergoing preliminary trials.

The Catherine W., named for the wife of her owner, Moses Williams of Kitimat and Terrace, was built at a cost of more than $50,000. She is one of 120 individual projects in British Columbia which have so far qualified for aid under the federal government's Indian Fishermen's Assistance Program.

The gillnetter has completely automatic equipment, including hydraulic steering gear and net winch. She is powered by a 230 horsepower diesel and has a cruising speed of 14 knots.

BIG FUEL LOAD

Her fuel capacity is 700 gallons, enough for 10 days of normal operation and her fresh water tank will hold 160 gallons.

There is room for 20 tons of fish in her refrigerated hatches.

The five-year $4.6 million aid program is a joint development by the Department of Indian Affairs and the Department of Fisheries. It was originally proposed by the Native Brotherhood of B.C.

The program provides grants and loans for upgrading equipment and gear, improving shore facilities and conducting fisheries training courses.

MLAs Begin Homestretch Wednesday

The legislature will sit at 2 p.m. Wednesday prior to an expected three-day sprint to the finish of the first post-Easter session in Social Credit government history.

The sprint will be in contrast to the usual stagger of MLAs in past years as they labor under the strain of fatigue and a mountain of bills to process in the last minutes of the session.

This year, with a five-day rest MLAs must approve spending estimates of the departments of recreation, conservation and travel industry as well as those of the ministers without portfolio.

There are 18 government bills awaiting committee discussion and third reading and a similar number of private members' bills which may or may not be dealt with thoroughly.

A list of 19 resolutions, including one from the government to authorize tape recording of legislative debates and publication of a typewritten transcript, awaits processing.

. . . BROTHERS

Brothers brought groans from the audience when he implied teachers today are not as dedicated as they were many years ago.

"Being a teacher in those days was regarded by the community as something akin to being called to the ministry.

"But, as conditions have improved over the years, young people now become teachers for a number of reasons — possibly from a dedication to the younger generation or possibly for the favorable working conditions and good holiday benefits.

"Teaching is no longer the private preserve of the dedicated individual."

Community Worker Dies At 91 Years

Charles Leonard Clarke a man who devoted much of his time to voluntary community service in Greater Victoria died Sunday at the age of 91.

Born in Hastings, England, Clarke lived in Victoria for the last 44 years. He served with the Imperial Army in India and with the Canadian Army during both world wars.

He was one of the first members of the old Victoria Polar Bears Club and until recently was involved with the Victoria Table Tennis Club.

During the post-war years he taught sea cadets and night school classes at Victoria High in signals and radio. He was a member of St. Saviour's Anglican Church, where he taught Sunday School.

For many years he was active in the summer playground program, where he taught small handicrafts. Later, he taught handicrafts in many of the area's rest homes.

Clarke loved children and was always ready with a story. He contributed numerous articles and children's stories to several local publications.

Clarke, who lived at 334 Simcoe, was predeceased by his wife Alice on March 11 and is survived by 12 great-grandchildren, seven grandchildren and four children: a son, Leonard, of Victoria; daughters Mrs. Ethel Lowery and Mrs. Muriel Fairclough of Victoria, and Mrs. Gladys Limb, of Vancouver.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 4 p.m. in Sands Memorial Chapel, Rev. P. V Atkinson officiating.

Alcock Speaks Here

Dr. Norman Alcock, physicist and director of the Canadian Peace Research Institute, will be in town Friday for a speaking engagement at the University of Victoria.

He will speak in Room 168 of the Elliott Building at 8:15 p.m.

Cambodia Force Resisting Cong

By Reuters

Almost 17,000 Cambodian troops attempted today to block an inland advance of Viet Cong guerrillas, while at the United Nations, Secretary-General U Thant promised to look into Cambodia's appeal that he try to obtain the withdrawal of Communist troops from the Southeast Asian nation.

About half of Cambodia's 35,000-man army was reported by sources to be deployed in the southeastern region to block the advance of Viet Cong units.

The sources also said the Viet Cong had broken up into small groups and were avoiding main roads, sending political cadres ahead to foment demonstrations supporting former head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, deposed March 18.

In Saigon, South Vietnamese Gen. Do Cao Tri said today reinforcements had been sent to areas bordering Cambodia, and the frontier situation is being closely studied.

Tri said "we don't know how things are going to go in Cambodia" and warned local commanders that the situation in Cambodia could affect them.

PROMISES ACTION

Thant promised to look into Cambodia's appeal that he use his influence to obtain the withdrawal of Communist troops from the nation.

The pledge came after a 20-minute meeting Monday between Thant and the Cambodian charge d'affaires.

Diplomatic observers at the United Nations were skeptical on what kind of practical action Thant could take in response to the Cambodian appeal. The world organization has been unable to play any role in bringing peace to Southeast Asia, and North Vietnam is not a member of the UN.

A manifesto issued by a committee of intellectuals calling for abolition of the Cambodian monarchy and the proclamation of the republic was broadcast today by Radio Phnom Penh in the Cambodian capital.

The proclamation, broadcast in a French-language bulletin monitored in Saigon, also bitterly attacked Sihanouk, accusing him of high treason, perfidy and hypocrisy.

The manifesto said the committee included university professors, teachers, students, doctors, engineers, pharmacists and intellectuals from other professions.

did not as long as they would be safe.

Another Japan Air Line plane flew in from Tokyo with high ranking officials of the Japanese Transportation Ministry to confer with South Korean authorities.

Two U.S. Air Force fighter planes tracked the plane on its flight up the Japan Sea. At the 38th Parallel the air force pilots spotted two communist MiG fighter planes, but nobody was fired on and the JAL plane headed for Seoul.

WARNING AIRED

The hijacked airliner was taken to a corner of Kimpo airport in Seoul and the airport was reopened to domestic flights. Kimpo control tower repeated a tape recorded warning to the hijackers they would be held as long as the passengers were not released and that the plane could not take off until mechanics started its engines from outside.

The released passengers reported that the students were all carrying swords or knives and what appeared to be home-made bombs.

The passengers reported that the students tied the hands of male passengers behind their backs.

"They told us to be calm and said they would return us to Japan after the plane landed in North Korea," a woman passenger said.

Over Japan the pilot refused to fly to North Korea because he did not have enough fuel. So the plane landed as scheduled at Itazuke to begin the five-hour confrontation in which officials did everything possible to thwart the hijacking.

POSED AS WORKERS

Posing as aircraft workers, police deflated the tires and made certain refuelling took a long time. Airport officials bargained for several hours to obtain the release of at least some of the passengers.

The pilot also refused to fly to Pyongyang because he had no flight maps for North Korea. Finally, airline officials handed him a North Korean map normally used by primary school students.

The students insisted they wanted to go to North Korea, and officials finally permitted the jet to depart after the 23 released passengers were deposited in a remote part of the field.

U.S. Union To Pay Damages

VANCOUVER (CP) —The British Columbia Court of Appeal has ruled that an international union attempted to ruin its Canadian rival with an illegal strike and intimidation of employers.

The appeal court, by a two-to-one decision, ordered the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers Union to pay damages to a local of the Canadian Ironworkers Union.

The amount of damages will be set in a new trial. However, the judges noted that the Canadian union now is "moribund," an incapacity which may or may not have resulted from actions of the international.

Chief Justice H. W. Davey and Mr. Justice E. B. Bull held that the international had used an illegal strike and intimidation through the Buildings Trade Council to force the Amalgamated Construction Association to accept collective agreements containing "non - affiliation clauses."

This clause denied work to unions not affiliated with the council including the Canadian Ironworkers, said the majority opinion.

The appeal centred around an incident at Prince George six years ago, where BTC unions walked off a construction project because non-affiliated unions were being employed.

It was followed by a series of meetings in Vancouver between contractors and international union representatives in which the employers were coerced into not using Canadian union workers, said the majority judgment.

The Canadian union split from the international's local 97 in 1960.

Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz dissented from the majority judgment, which overturned a B.C. Supreme Court ruling dismissing the original damage action against the international.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

This is just about the right time of the spring to wonder why ice floats as it breaks up before melting in the lakes and rivers of the north. What would happen if floating ice cakes all of a sudden sank to the bottom of a lake?

When the water of a lake or river freezes in the early days of winter, air is trapped in the crystals of ice that form. The air makes the ice lighter in weight than the water below it, which hasn't frozen. So the ice floats. If it is thick enough it will carry a man or an animal and floating ice has been both a boon and a danger to man, depending how he gets on and off the ice floe.

If a cake of ice sank to the bottom of the lake, it probably wouldn't thaw out in the spring. Then, as more and more ice sank to the bottom and remained as ice, the circulation of water would be retarded, and plant and animal life would die. And the lake in summer would be as cold as a well-digger's posterior.

Deaf Man Perfects Tiny Hearing Aid

OFFERS FREE MODEL
(not an actual hearing aid)

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—A remarkable tiny hearing aid has been perfected by a man who has been hard of hearing for nearly ten years.

This small device has no dangling cords or separate transmitting units and represents a new, unusual design idea in a product to help hard-of-hearing.

It was developed especially for those persons who can hear but can't understand. This new hearing instrument provides "ear-level" hearing with the wearer picking up speech, sounds, television and radio at his ear. Due to the use of transistors, the user cost is extremely low.

A true life, actual size replica of the smallest all-in-the-ear hearing aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone sending in this advertisement, while supply lasts. So we suggest you write for yours now. No obligation whatsoever. Write to Anderson Hearing Electronics. 1320 Blanshard St., Victoria.

Youth's Body Discovered

CRESTON (CP) — The body of a 17-year-old Creston youth missing from his home since last Dec. was found Monday at the site of a car accident.

RCMP said they found the body of Gary James Ross in the wreckage of a car which left the highway about three miles southeast of Creston and rolled down a 170-foot embankment.

Shield Ordered

VANCOUVER (CP) — Men working on the downtown Pacific Centre project returned to work Monday after a walkout earlier in the day over safety conditions. It was agreed that a shield be built to keep objects falling from upper stories from hitting men at ground level.

Cap Hurts Boy

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Teddy Notenbomer, 10, of nearby Matsqui was in hospital here Monday after he lost two fingers and suffered facial injuries when a blasting cap went off in his hand.

Vancouverite Made Halifax City Manager

HALIFAX (UPI) — Cyril M. Henderson, 51-year-old municipal manager of the district of North Vancouver, was appointed city manager of Halifax today. two weeks after the Halifax city council's appointment of Robert Oldland, of Oklahoma City, to the same position. Oldland's appointment met with criticism from local blacks and union officials which resulted in his deciding to remain in Oklahoma City.

Baha'i Creed Told To Uvic Audiences

Eight followers of Baha'i have brought the message of Baha'u'llah to the University of Victoria in the form of a mobile environment featuring color, light, sound and conversation.

Gerry Bourassa, Garry and Valerie Berteig, Larry Brown, Sandra Kostaschuk, Al and Leslie Houdek with manager Dick Stanton are ending a western Canadian tour that began in Ottawa in January and is designed to explain the theme of the Nineteenth Century exiled Persian nobleman, Baha'u'llah, who declared himself to be the revelation of God to the age."

This declaration made him the most recent in the line of inspired teachers which has included Buddha, Moses, Muhammãd, Krishna and Jesus Christ, according to the Baha'i doctrine.

FOUR MEETINGS

The event opened at the Student Union Building Monday night with a second performance today at noon. The third meeting is tonight at 7:30 p.m. and the final gathering is Wednesday at 12:30 p.m.

The group utilizes film, slides, music in an attractively-designed set as a precursor to descussion of the Baha'i belief.

"Regard ye not one another as strangers . . . The earth is but one country, and mankind its citizens" is the central message of the Baha'i community whose international headquarters were established at Haifa in 1963.

This marked the first century of the faith now established in 30,000 centres in over 130 nations.

Reds Released

JAKARTA (Reuters) — About 575 Communist prisoners have been released in the Jegiakarta area in central Java recently. No reason was given for the releases.

Royal Roads— A Tradition Of Discipline

By ALAN WHITE

The brand of extremism found on a Canadian military college campus can be disarming.

Everyone is so polite.

At Royal Roads Military college, at Colwood, the visitor gets a painfully correct salute from every cadet he passes.

The professors all receive the same mark of respect, and students stand to attention as instructors enter the classrooms. Formality and discipline abound at Royal Roads — for staff as well as cadets.

The administration building is the estate of the late James Dunsmuir, coal baron and one-time premier of British Columbia, and dominates the central campus area with its crusty, grey fieldstone walls.

There is a decorous air about the 650 acres, purchased by the Department of National Defence in 1941 and now housing about 220 junior cadets.

If it weren't for the sheen on the ceremonial brass cannon and the uniforms of cadets passing through the gardens and lawns at a run or quick march, the campus could pass for a country club.

But it's no country club in pace.

* * *

Dr. Eric Graham, who took over as director of studies in 1961, said he had his doubts then about the quality of education in military colleges, and in fact, did "not have a high opinion of them at all."

The chemistry graduate of Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., and Massachusetts Institute of Technology now says:

"In Canada we have a system of education for careers in the service which is unique in the world . . . and the students demand of themselves a very high standard."

The college, which has the cadets for two university years before they go on to the Royal Military College in Kingston, has avoided "the rigid code of honor followed in military colleges in the United States," Dr. Graham says.

* * *

Cadets are required to accept the motto "Truth, Duty and Valor"—and whatever else they demand of themselves above that.

"The program is specific here. We are definitely moulding a certain kind of product, for a very specific reason. We are producing a special breed of cat to fit a certain kind of profession.

"If we're going to have an officer, we're looking for a certain quality of person. We want quality of education, quality of intellect, quality of management."

The cadets generally come from the top 15 per cent of high schools and the college must compete with other universities to attract them.

Cadet officers interviewed in the mess hall, where cadets dine on carefully worked out meals with vitamin supplements when prescribed, have a different perspective but much the same view.

Their first greeting at the college is a uniform and short haircut. Then there's ironing and washing their own clothes.

And one cadet said "keeping our boots polished is still a real bugbear in the college."

With their own officers assigned on a rotating basis, they regulate themselves from "Cadwins"—Cadet wing instructions—and the standing regulations of the armed forces.

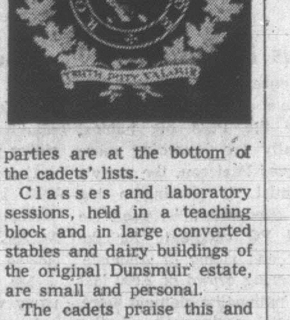
* * *

They learn quickly the responsibilities of holding authority over cadets of equal rank, as well as those of the junior year, and many of them at one stage or another are giving orders to classmates.

"We have to learn to think and learn to function under pressure—we learn that if we make a mistake, the pressure just gets worse," one said of the heavy academic and athletic program which dominates their days. Other responsibilities are regular military drill and ceremonial.

"They really don't mollycoddle you here," another said.

There is little time in which to slow down. Social life and parties are at the bottom of the cadets' lists.



Classes and laboratory sessions, held in a teaching block and in large converted stables and dairy buildings of the original Dunsmuir estate, are small and personal.

The cadets praise this and Dr. Graham says it maintains a balance in favor of teaching, rather than a dedication to research.

"We can't afford to have bad classroom teachers here. A small institution can't hide them.

"We adhere to one rule for faculty—no PhD, no promotion. This is one way to improve stanards, and ours have gone up tremendously."

Forgetting the Counsel?

AT THE OPENING OF THE B.C. Teachers' Federation annual meeting in Vancouver, President James Killeen told the 1,000 assembled delegates that teachers are being told to improve the quality of education but, at the same time, to do it with less money. Although teachers themselves are receiving more money than a year ago through the annual process of wage increases added to regular increments, money for many of the projects and programs considered desirable by teachers is not forthcoming in the amounts they would like.

For this, federation spokesmen blame the existing formula imposed by the provincial government. The formula permits boards to increase their budgets up to 10 per cent above the amount spent the preceding year. Beyond that it calls for an approach to municipal councils to authorize anything in excess, to the taxpaying public in the form of a referendum for the same purpose, or to the cabinet. Since referenda have been turned down in many localities, boards could not raise the funds for desirable undertakings and the teachers feel restricted in trying to improve provincial education.

This should not come as a surprise. Last November the official organ, the B.C. Teacher, editorialized on the financial outlook ahead.

"Whatever the reasons," it said, "the fact is that more money for education is going to be increasingly hard to come by. It behooves the profession, therefore, to analyse critically what we are doing, to see if the things we are doing are the best things and to see if we can do them more efficiently."

The editorial rejected the old myth that "there is no problem in education that the spending of more money can't resolve."

Teaching delegates in Vancouver this week should keep that advice in mind. This is not to suggest that the present provincial school financing formula is beyond reproach. Far from it. The formula will be inadequate as long as it places so large a share of school taxation on municipally taxed real estate instead of broadening the base of taxation. But the November pronouncement points a direction: to provide the best possible education from the funds available. And according to the arithmetic of the old math, what is subtracted from revenue to increase teachers' salaries is not available for allocation to other objectives.

Dr. G. Clifford Carl

WHERE QUIET INFORMED opinion, sound scientific learning and sincere good fellowship are most appreciated, the late Dr. G. Clifford Carl will be most deeply missed. But his shockingly unexpected death last Friday will be felt far beyond the circles of those who worked or studied with him, for he did much to popularize his field of biology, particularly marine biology, and his audience of readers was large and faithful.

As a scientist, and as a human being in the fullest sense of humanity, Dr. Carl was outstanding. The province and the research which he served with equal distinction for so many years have suffered a loss which will not be fully met. In recent weeks he had confided to friends his pleasure at being permitted to turn from the administration of the new provincial museum toward whose founding he had worked so hard, and to devote his full time to the study of the world of nature which he loved so well. Part of his recent work was in connection with the development of a museum section to be known as the Hall of the Sea. It would be in keeping with the wishes of many British Columbians if this were to be officially named the G. Clifford Carl Memorial Hall of the Sea, or that some similar public mark of tribute be rendered to his memory.

The Victoria Daily Times joins with hundreds of friends and institutions in expressing sympathy to the members of his family who are so sadly bereaved.

The Tumult of Italian Politics

FOR THE PAST SIX WEEKS Italy has been without a recognized government and it now appears that a new fragile centre-left coalition will survive, if only because there was danger of a complete breakdown in the country's democratic machinery. The new coalition will keep parliament in session, at least until the early summer regional elections. And while parliament lasts there is a chance for passage of several urgent bills including university and tax reforms, divorce, modern labor statutes, revision of the penal code and a financial law for the newly constituted regions or counties.

Untangling the strings attached to Italian politics is an endless and ever changing process as parties slide together only to have factions within the parties diverge. One of the thickest strings goes to the Vatican where opposition to the impending divorce bill is formidable. The Italian lower house and the senate committees have already ruled that divorce may be handled by the Italian parliament without consulting the Vatican. This means that the centre-left coalition, formed on the promise of going ahead with the divorce law and long promised regional elections, will have some ready-made enemies among the more traditional elements of the Church.

There are, however, no strings attached to the Italian Communist Party which has tended to gain about one million votes in each national election. And naturally enough, the other major political parties wonder how to deal with the volatile Communists. At present some parties, notably the Socialists, want the Communists in the government, while others say the Communists will never be tolerated.

A sizable shift in votes for or against the Communists in the impending regional elections could determine the shape of Italian politics for the future. While always a political force to be reckoned with, the far leftists have not been in an Italian government since Alcide de Gasperi invited them to leave 25 years ago.

The bitter rivalry between Amintore Fanfani and Aldo Moro for the eventual presidency of the republic is another reference point which cannot be ignored in Italian politics. But until the Italians can find a General de Gaulle-like figure around whom they can rally an effective majority, their national politics will probably remain in a state that can only be described as confused.

"... I told her that digging up a garden was strictly a man's right ..."

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

The Threat of Engulfment by Ministates

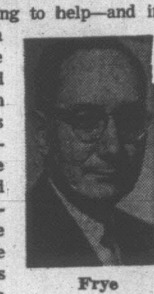
THE United States is fighting a lonely battle to keep the UN from being over-run by ministates. But almost no one else seems willing to help—and in the end, Washington may have to use the veto if it is to hold the line. This, in capsule, is what has been happening behind the scenes here in an unpublicized struggle of considerable long-range importance. The ministate battle has been going on in a "committee of experts" set up last fall by the 15-nation UN Security Council.



Frye

The stake is whether, over the next five to 10 years, as the final remnants of colonial empires demand and gain independence, the UN is to have a population explosion which would bring into membership 60 to 75 infant "countries," each with less than 1,000,000 people and many with less than 100,000.

United States delegate Charles W. Yost and his aides see a UN of 185-200 members (by comparison with the present 126) as a serious threat to the organization's stature and effectiveness. So does Secretary-General U Thant.

Such a UN, Yost has said, would risk "losing its relevance to the real world of nations and being reduced to an absurdity."

Pitcairn Voice

He has been arguing that the tiniest of the ministates—Pitcairn Island, for example, has about 90 inhabitants—should be limited to non-voting associate memberships, not made full participants.

The idea has not caught on. The Soviet Union admits privately that it, too, is worried, since the "revolt" of small powers against the great in recent years has sometimes had an adverse effect on its interests, as well as Washington's.

But Moscow is not willing to do anything that might undercut its influence in the third world.

The British, many of whose present dependencies are involved, are willing to co-operate with Washington, but want exceptions to be made in so many "special cases" that Americans doubt any line could be held.

The official British position is that associate membership would be fine provided it could be arranged with the consent of the small countries—a virtually impossible proviso in many cases.

The French refuse to be alarmed by the possibility of a huge UN, full of ministates. The world organization already is of very little use, they say, and 185 or 200 members would simply point up its futility.

The Security Council's experts therefore have bogged down. Nothing seems likely to be agreed upon before the next ministate (probably Tonga, population 79,000) comes up for consideration; and then the issues may be complicated by prior commitments, the embarrassment of rebuffing a friendly applicant, and other difficulties.

UN people say there will never be any restraints applied in practice until or unless Washington gets on its horse and insists upon realistic criteria for admission, letting it be known that the American veto will, if necessary, back up the demand. No country can be admitted to the UN if a great power votes "no." To stand in the way of an eager applicant, flushed with newly-attained independence and hoping for the final jewel in its sovereign crown, would be to risk considerable unpopularity with the applicant and its friends.

But to fail to do so would be to open the UN to slow death by dilution.

The 65 smallest of the ministates have, altogether, only two-tenths of 1 per cent of the population of the present membership. Yet they would, if admitted, have more than one-third of the votes.

They could, theoretically, block adoption of important General Assembly resolutions.

In practice it would not be likely to happen that way, since the new members in all probability would divide up and adhere to existing UN blocs. The Latin American bloc, which often votes with the United States, would be a major beneficiary.

But it would not be safe to encourage their admission for the purpose of enlarging the roll of American clients. Experience in Africa has shown that second and third generations of leaders, as coup follows coup, can be less predictable than the men left in power by a departing colonial overlord. And blocs often follow extremist leadership.

Destroying Image

In any event, the impact on the UN's image would be disastrous. Those who scorn the present UN for distorting the realities of power could do so, with greater basis in fact, if one-third to one-half of the organization were entities that were countries only, or primarily, in legal theory.

Similar fears were heard when the UN began its expansion from 60-odd nations to 126. They may once again be exaggerated. But even if one-third of them proved justified, the effectiveness of UN diplomacy would be vastly reduced.

The United States almost certainly will have to insist that the UN exercise birth control. Without it the "old woman who lived in a shoe" will have had a 10-room penthouse by comparison.

Shades of Schiklgruber!

I wish to draw attention to the plight of one of the most forgotten men, namely, Herr Rudolf Hess, the Fuhrer's deputy. Herr Hess has been held in captivity for 29 years, the last three of which have been in solitary.

The charge laid against Herr Hess at Nuremberg was founded on the allegation that his signature was found on a document, signed by himself in 1935, in terms of which it was decreed that military training for young men was to be compulsory! Obviously no charge at all! Not only is Rudolf Hess innocent of any crimes against humanity, but in 1941, he undertook a dangerous and difficult flight to Great Britain in order to bring about the end of hostilities between the two sides. Had the war ended in 1941, millions of lives would have been saved, and Europe preserved from the threat of Marxist-Leninism.

Unfortunately, we were not as keen to negotiate with the Nazis then as we are now with the Marxists at such places as Panmunjom and Paris! The International Zionist Financiers, whose stooges the Reds happen to be, were determined to crush Germany at all costs, not because Hitler wanted to conquer the earth (which he did not want) but because he saw through their evil schemes and intended to do something about it. When he entered Vienna in 1938, one of the first things Hitler did was to close the Rothschild House there, for which he deserves full credit!

The time is long overdue when we should not only free but also exonerate this man Rudolf Hess, the tragic victim of Talmudic justice—which is no justice at all!—Richard D. Corrance, 1037 Craigdarroch Rd.

The Real Issue

I have tried to follow the controversy regarding the location of the "now famous road." What amazes me is that the real issue is not discussed; rather the conflict centres on the peripheral issue of whether to skirt St. Joseph's Hospital's enlarged property or slice through it. When I discussed the real issue with one of my friends he said that he didn't expect any politician to make a sound decision if it was an unpopular one.

What is the real issue? Whether the civil servants of the government, by their driving and working hours, can force Victoria or even the Regional District (meaning the taxpayers) to pay for a $2 million diversion. Already James Bay is practically a parking lot for the convenience of the same civil servants. For a short-term solution I recommend staggered working hours. For the long-term, there is no alternative than to ban private automobiles in congested areas, substituting a rapid public transit system. No matter how we squirm, wriggle, or protest the human species has to say "stop!" to the automobile now. Yes, I drive a car but I concur in the concept of no private cars in congested areas.

If any readers share my concern please inform Mayors Curtis and Haddock and Hon. R. R. Loffmark, minister of health.—Mrs. B. Levitz Packford, 152 Cambridge St.

PQ's Running While Others Warm Up

THE Quebec election campaign will not get under way in earnest until the parties can present nearly complete slates of candidates. The Liberals, weakened by a wave of retirements among their members of the National Assembly, are scrambling to recruit big-name candidates to provide a prospective cabinet team such as won in 1960. National Union ministers are making a few minor forays into the hinterland to promise a road here, a hospital there, just to prove the party hasn't really changed since the old days, and to order the faithful not to escalate the "war with Ottawa" theme too much for fear of driving votes to the Creditistes. And the Creditistes are trying to live down federal party leader Real Caouette's incredible bungling at the provincial leadership convention March 22.

Purser

Only one party is maintaining a relatively early profile—the separatist Parti Quebecois. And it is getting plenty of mileage out of it, attracting wide publicity and showing considerable signs of popularity. It cannot yet be said whether the PQ or the Creditistes will have the biggest "spoiler" effect on the old parties, but Rene Levesque's dynamic campaign is obviously developing into a thing to watch.

Second only to the question of who forms the next government of Quebec after April 29 is the question of what size showing the PQ makes—and this may be the most important question in the long run.

Tremendous Enthusiasm

Large audiences and tremendous enthusiasm have been marking the appearances of the PQ's big names, which incidentally are becoming more numerous. Jacques Parizeau, the party's resident economist, is proving a big attention-getter everywhere he goes. He was nominated PQ candidate for the Montreal north-end riding of Ahuntsic by a wildly cheering crowd of 2,000 last week. A large nationalist element there and the expected retirement of the popular Liberal incumbent, Jean-Paul Lefebvre, gives Mr. Parizeau a chance.

He and Mr. Levesque also went over well before a sizable audience in Chicoutimi, metropolis of the Saguenay region, where another big name, well-known criminologist Marc-Andre Bedard, was nominated. He will battle Quebec's enigmatic cultural affairs minister, Jean-Noel Tremblay.

The party is also fielding such prominent Quebecers as Bernard Landry, former special adviser to the education department, former Laval University professor Doris Lussier, and well-known lawyer Guy Bertrand. A big catch over the weekend was University of Montreal law professor Jacques-Yvan Morin, a leading intellectual and contributor to the French-language press.

The intellectual level of PQ candidates is in general impressively high. The party even has one English-speaking candidate, lawyer Paul Unterberg, who as both an immigrant and a Jew is out to persuade Quebec's minorities that separatism is their best guarantee of security. He faces a hopeless battle in an English-speaking Montreal riding certain to be retained by the popular Liberal incumbent, Dr. Victor Goldbloom. The PQ has also so far sent two French-speaking candidates to contest other English-speaking, sure-fire Liberal ridings in Montreal.

Mr. Levesque is singularly anxious to convince the province's minorities that separatism is no threat to them. His decision, reached after several days of hesitation, to run again in his present riding of Montreal-Laurier, is evidence of his stress on this point. He was elected easily enough there three times before, but as a Liberal. Following a recent immigrant influx, his riding now has a 25 per cent ethnic minority population, mostly Italian, and Italian Quebecers following the St. Leonard affair are commonly supposed to fear separatism as they dread fire.

But Mr. Levesque, taking the risk of his life, says that to flee Laurier in search of a "safe" all French-speaking riding would raise another wall between majority and minorities. He will face stiff Liberal competition from Mrs. Jeanne Sauve, a CBC commentator just as Mr. Levesque once was, and who speaks fluent Italian.

Mr. Levesque professes to believe his party will get 25 to 33 per cent of the vote, although party officials privately believe a showing of close to 20 per cent will maintain the party's viability even if no seats are won. A vote such as Mr. Levesque predicts would be bound to be translated into at least some seats, but few outside the party would share his claims that he has 30 guaranteed strong ridings and will get 75 per cent of Montreal's white collar vote.

Current of Independence

Yet it is true that there is a real current of independence flowing though Quebec, as he says, and it is by no means as certain as is popularly supposed that it is largely confined to the youth and intellectual communities. A solid middle class, middle-aged element is evident at party gatherings.

Former federal Creditiste MP Gilles Gregoire, now PQ candidate in the Saguenay riding of Jonquiere, may have been overly optimistic Sunday when he remarked laconically that "only 35 days before independence should be easy to bear" — the election is April 29 — but never were truer words spoken than Mr. Levesque's: "Even if we only carry 10 or 12 ridings the National Assembly will never be the same."

Zapping the Poppy Will Have Kickback

By DENNIS DUFFY
Toronto Daily Star

In Turkey's fields the poppies blow, which has the U.S. upset.

And it's understandable, since Turkey's eminence in the culture of the opium poppy is unmatched even by that of Laos.

Fields of poppies sound groovy—remember when Dorothy, Toto and company nearly fall asleep in one in The Wizard of Oz?—but not when one considers the ultimate form those flowers will take once they have been crushed.

From the refineries in Lebanon, Sicily and North Africa will come the deadly white powder we call heroin.

They shoot a lot of smack these days in New York and elsewhere. A lot of the marksmen put too much powder in the charge, and teen-agers die of overdoses. Men steal and mug to support their habits, girls get into "the life," the Mob fattens.

Naturally Upset

So, of course, the U.S. is upset about those red acres. No citizen of the rich countries not involved in the heroin traffic can accept lightly the existence of those fields, and almost certainly a few of you who are reading this have children who are now getting into or already are a part of the heroin thing.

So our first impulse is to cry God Bless America, to hope that the inexhaustible American taxpayer will come across with a greater subsidy than he is now sending to Turkey for the training of narcotics police. Keep Toronto tidy, and at American expense.

Nothing ever works out that easy. The Zap the Poppy crusade offers a paradigm of the relations between the rich nations and the poor. It shows how we don't have to set out to choke the poor, we just have to be ourselves and we do it in passing. Let me try to tell you how.

Don't Start Wheat

In the first place, growing poppies in Turkey is not some wiggy, underground affair like planting marijuana in your window-box here. It is a form of agriculture at which the Turkish peasants excel, one they have engaged in for centuries.

We know the trouble with peasants: they are very conservative, hostile to change, unable to cope with it. So if they can no longer farm the poppy, what are they to do? I wouldn't advise them to start on wheat right now.

There is an answer to that: many pimps are not exactly awash in employable skills, but we don't get sentimental and say that that's okay and continue with your trade. We attempt, with varying degrees of seriousness, to stamp out their trade because it is evil.

Of course, the Turks don't see poppy-growing in quite that way. Their culture has a different attitude than ours toward what we term drugs.

That is not to say that the Turks are a nation of heads; they are not, as a number of Western kids rotting in Turkish prisons will testify.

But the consumption of opium is not for them the horror it is for us because we are a technological society.

Only a technological society could conceive of refining the opium into a powder, mixing it with water and heating it, and then putting the solution into a hypodermic needle and injecting it into the veins.

This manner of crazed behavior requires a fairly high degree of sophistication in a culture, a rather intense demand for super thrills unavailable through the simpler devices of smoking or drinking the opium in a tincture.

We Have Money

Only in a society such as ours is there a level of wealth sufficient to support an activity as expensive as heroin addiction, only in our cities the concentrated masses of the disaffiliated and anomalistic who nonetheless retain sufficient strength of character to rob and whore in the service of their addiction.

We are told that hard drug users exhibit a greater deal of passivity in their psychic makeup than is common to most in our society.

We ignore how active and enterprising these people must be to keep together a life threatening every hour to fall apart in the face of the law, the availability of supplies and the greed of their associates.

This sort of personality is a hallmark of the rich countries. The greater your city's accumulation of such characters, the more assured is your town's position as a Now City.

Before you say it of me, let me try to anticipate your objection: I seem to be envisioning bands of skylarking peasants out of a Brueghel painting finding their livelihoods stamped out because decadent sophisticates abuse God's gift to troubled man.

That isn't really what I'm saying. I doubt if opium poppies are grown by picturesque Little Winemakers. Even if they were, a few minutes with any addict would show how irrelevant is the state of grace of the grower.

So now the number of provinces where the poppy is legally grown is down from 21 to nine, next year it will be down to four, and so on until it will be illegal everywhere in Turkey.

Now that ought to work about as well as Prohibition in the States. Most of us know someone involved in one way or another with rum-running to the States during their Noble Experiment.

Mobsters Helped

Do those people seem guilt-ridden, are they looked down upon by their neighbors? In other words, prohibition in Turkey will have the result it has had anywhere—a sharp rise in the incomes of cops and mobsters, widespread corruption of public and private life.

Opium supplies will somewhat decrease, prices will rise and addicts will steal more or switch to other drugs. The Turkish police will get a lot of new hardware (they are already getting a neat little workhorse plane as a crop-spotter that an enterprising grower can adapt into a crop-duster).

Someday the new goods will come in handy in a coup, and then all of us in the rich countries will express shock at the way those people over there carry on.

The point is this: we in the rich countries say to the poor that we want their copper and petroleum, we want them integrated into our marketing system, we want their governments friendly and we want it all on our own terms.

We are the old-style employer: we have jobs to offer and want people in their capacity as laborers alone. We aren't going to worry about sick pay, pensions and the environment because it is economic man we want to deal with. If you don't like it our way, go elsewhere.

Our international economic system operates in a similar fashion. We want Turkey as a market, we don't want its poppies.

But life isn't like that. Sooner or later the workers become restless and they want to be recognized as men with a number of needs and feelings that cannot be rationalized away by technological control systems.

We in the rich countries have it our own way at present; how much longer can it last?

Forget the ethical issue (not too difficult a task) and ask yourself if we can have it our way forever.

Poor Are Losers

Imperialism and war is the price now paid for the system, and the poor countries are not the sole losers. Columbus went out looking for gold and the Europeans brought home a devastating strain of syphillis.

Perhaps the poppies will go, but what they represent cannot be stopped. It is the unwanted kickback the rich countries are getting from the support systems we have established over a whole planet for our own gain. You can't always get what you want.

America After Dark

By VERNON SCOTT

If there is terror in the streets of major U.S. cities at night, no one is more aware of it than actors who leave the stage door by an alley praying they won't be mugged.

A spokesman for touring performers is Michael Strong, currently on the road with "The Price."

The Arthur Miller play is nearing the end of a 14-city tour. The cast has mixed feelings about the play ending because ahead lie Chicago and Baltimore.

"We've played New Haven, Boston, Wilmington, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Washington, D.C., Indianapolis, Cleveland, St. Louis and Cincinnati among others," Strong said. "And we were advised to keep off the streets in every one of them.

"The safest city we've played so far is Toronto, and it's a sad comment that an American is safer in Canada than in his own country."

The most fearsome city, according to Strong, is the nation's capital.

"People are so afraid of walking the street they've moved the curtain time up from 8:30 to 7:30 in the evening so the audience can get home earlier," he said.

"Some people in Washington are afraid to go to the theatre unless it's in groups of a half-dozen. Then they hurry out of the theatre and into their cars as quickly as possible.

"In Detroit during the holiday season there were loudspeakers advising citizens to be careful."

The Detroit public address system warned: "Walk in twos after dark, keep your hands on your purse, stay away from alleys and have a merry Christmas — from the Detroit police department."

Strong continued: "In Wilmington I asked a man where I could get a sandwich after the performance and he told me to get back to my hotel and have it sent up from the kitchen because the streets were dangerous."

Because performances usually end near 11 o'clock, actors frequently long for a drink or supper after work. Now they seek shelter.

"I really feel as if we're sitting on a powder keg," said Strong, an early member of the Actors Studio and a long-time professional.

"You can feel and sense the fear in the cities. Naturally, actors are in a position to discover this because most theatres are old and located in decaying, run-down parts of the city.

"It's alarming to see all the store-fronts with metal grates in front of them for protection and the streets deserted.

"Take my word for it, America after dark in the big cities is no place to have a good time."

A NEW STIGMA

By ALISTAIR COOKE

A shrewd lady from Maryland, a housewife and a State legislator, has introduced a Bill calling for a state tax of 50 cents on all tickets to movies that bear an X rating, the brand mark of sexual goings-on deemed traumatic to anyone under the age of 17.

"I know," said the lady, "that this Bill sounds like it was introduced by a little old woman who wears long dresses and is against sex."

Mrs. Nimmerrichter, though, on her own confession, is "all for gambling, sex, anything you have in mind."

She thinks she has found a way around the legal hurdles that have tripped many another State Legislature trying to make raw sex pay.

"If you can't get your sex thrills at home," she says. "you ought to have to pay for them."

The only snag here is that if this principle is well publicized, no self-respecting Maryland wife will let her husband out of doors.

There goes (the neighbors will mutter) poor Elmer Smith to enjoy the thrills he cannot get at home.

The old puritan "A" was not more of a stigma than the invisible "X" on the foreheads of the "adult" movie habitue.

Are We Strong Enough?

MANAS

What is it about the present that makes it seem different from other difficult and confusing times?

Various socio-historical reasons might be given, and are being given, but the feeling that the present is becoming increasingly unbearable—with evidence of this feeling appearing at many levels of society—seems due mainly to a more sensitive moral awareness.

Central in evoking this feeling, it must be said, is the indefensible horror of the Vietnam War, which irrationally goes on and on, in alienating contradiction to both the technological and the moral pretensions of American society.

Joining with and becoming part of this deep disturbance is the fact that other insistent problems of the age are not being solved, but are instead increasing in number and offensiveness; and that existing authority, no matter how boastfully armed with expertise, gives the people less and less reason to suppose that they can be solved.

These various sickening realizations are coming home, moreover, at a time when both skill and candor in the delineation of problems are at their height, and when unfulfilled political promises made in the past are generating an indignation amounting to fury in some segments of the population.

Politicians who have used scapegoating techniques to ride to power now find the psychology of blame a whirlwind of destructive energy which anyone with a grievance can easily exploit, and the process of what used to be called "dialogue" has become a din of condemnation.

The unhappy "man in the street," if he listens to all these charges of guilt and betrayal, is likely to suspect the presence of enemies around every corner.

●

A point is reached in the increase of awareness of such disorders when it becomes natural to think that all the things that are wrong are connected up.

War, pollution and social injustice are declared to be mutually consistent products of the highly organized technocratic state.

The web of ills is then made to justify the demand for "total" change or revolution; but this, in turn, has the effect of reducing the number of rebels to a very small but noisy minority, which succeeds mainly in hardening a great many other people in self-justifying postures, and a totally unimaginative mediocrity becomes public policy because of the madness at the extremes.

It is then that various kinds of withdrawals—"inner emigrations"—take place. Nihilist frivolity springs up little by little to fill the cultural vacuum and the intoxications of emotional abandon or "letting go" compete on a market shrouded by ill-concealed despair.

●

How can one make sense out of such a time? Must the hysterias arising from wild expectations ungrounded in the natural process of reconstruction or growth simply exhaust themselves before very many human beings can join to work together toward realizeable ends?

"How," asks a contributor to the January Liberation, "can we really create a humanistic society in our country when we hate most of its inhabitants?"

And Paul Goodman, speaking of the self-reliant society of skilful anarchists which he champions, said recently: "In order to be an anarchist, you have to be competent in the crafts, in the professions, and you also have to have trust in other human beings. Once you begin to call another guy a pig, then you can't be an anarchist any more."

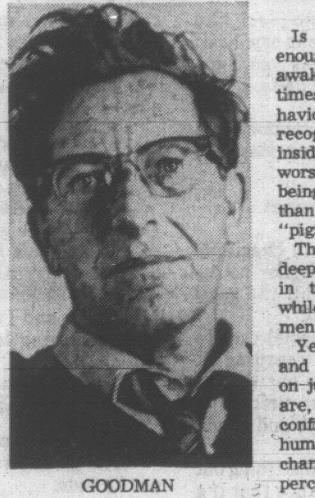
Yet still another side of the picture cannot be ignored. The conventional approach to "ethics" is to "make a survey" and then to work up some kind of "cost-benefit" comparison to show how the moral tendencies of the times, whatever their vagary and indecision, can be quantified and somehow served.

●

Is there, one wonders, enough strength in the awakening moral sense of the times to penetrate "the behavioral surface" and to recognize the human being inside? It sometimes seems worse to regard human beings simply as "objects" than it is to speak of them as "pigs."

The offence in any case is deep because it is committed in the name of knowledge, while epithets are used by men in the grip of emotion.

Yet both the revolutionary and "academic" solutions rest on judgments of men as they are, or seem to be, and lack confidence in the capacities of human beings to be moved to change by their own moral perceptions.



GOODMAN

The Media Must Take a Share of Blame

That a change of polar significance is affecting the thought of the age there can hardly be any doubt. It amounts to growing recognition that what a man as subject says about himself, and about the idea of the self, may have a self-validating character.

A useful account of this great trend was contributed to the Saturday Review of last Dec. 20 by Herbert Otto, psychologist and educator, in an article, "New Light on the Human Potential."

Dr. Otto starts by recalling the opinion of William James that the human being typically functions "at less than 10 per cent of his capacity," going on to review numerous lines of current research into human potentials, sometimes with illustration of prodigious feats by individuals.

In one place Dr. Otto discusses the reasons for the low estimates people make of their own abilities. "This," he says, "is traceable to the fact that we are members of a pathology-oriented culture." He writes:

"Psychological and psychiatric jargon dealing with emotional dysfunction has become the parlance of the man in the street. In addition, from early childhood in our educational system we learn largely by our mistakes — by having them pointed out to us repeatedly.

"All this results in early "negative conditioning" and influences our attitude and perception of our selves and other people. An attitudinal climate has become established which is continually fed and reinforced.

"As part of this negative conditioning there is the heavy emphasis by communications media on violence in television programs and motion pictures. The current American news format of radio, television, and newspapers — the widely prevalent idea of what constitutes news—results from a narrow, brutalizing concept thirty or forty years behind the times and is inimical to the development of the human potential."

It is hardly necessary to identify the blighting effect of all this on the arts. Degraded ideas of the self and of man generally are widely spread by pathology-oriented thinking, so that themes of human excellence which might leaven and uplift can now find little hospitality. They have been made incredible.

Cynicism and depression have become "normal" attitudes, affording no generous spaces for resonating with the harmonious and the heroic in human expression.

Perhaps a new psychological health will have to be forged out of the fires of psycho-social failure before affirmative forms of art can be renewed.

★ ★ ★

Another phase of Dr. Otto's comment on the influence of the mass media has equal importance. He says:

"As a result of the steady diet of violence in the media, an even more fundamental and insidious erosion in man's selfsystem takes place. The erosion affects what I call the trust factor.

"If we have been given a certain amount of affection, love, and understanding in our formative years, we are able to place a certain amount of trust in our fellow man. Trust is one of the most important elements in today's society although we tend to minimize its importance. We basically trust people.

'For example, we place an enormous amount of trust in our fellow man when driving on a freeway or in an express lane. We trust those with whom we are associated to fulfill their obligations and responsibilities. The element of trust is the basic rule in human relations. When we distrust people, they usually sense our attitude and reciprocate in kind.

The consistent emphasis in the news on criminal violence, burglarizing, and assault makes slow but pervasive inroads into our reservoir of trust.

"As we hear and read much about the acts of violence and injury men perpetrate upon one another, year after year, with so little emphasis placed on the loving, caring, and humanitarian acts of man, we begin to trust our fellow man less, and we thereby diminish ourselves."

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — A U.S. Navy pilot gave a brief description of his life in a North Vietnamese prisoner-of-war camp to Texas billionaire H. Ross Perot and the group of reporters Perot is taking on a tour of prisoner-of-war camps in South Vietnam.

Lieut. Robert Frishman, 29, told Perot's group Monday the North Vietnamese isolate prisoners, feed them poorly and expose them to Communist propaganda.

Frishman is being treated in the San Diego Naval Hospital. He was released last August following 21 months in a North Vietnamese prison camp.

NEW EXACT CASH FARE SYSTEM

Effective April 1st on all B.C. Hydro buses in Greater Victoria

New system will contribute to faster, safer service

The exact cash fare system will mean that drivers will be able to concentrate on driving without the constant distraction of making change and selling tickets. This will benefit all bus riders by contributing to faster and safer bus service. The system will also simplify the internal operations of B.C. Hydro and contribute to lower operating costs.

Tickets will be eliminated

No tickets will be sold on B.C. Hydro buses after March 31st. Tickets still in circulation will be accepted as full fare until April 5th – after that date, they can be redeemed for the original purchase price at the offices of B.C. Hydro, 820 Pandora in Victoria, or at the Garbally Road Transit Centre, 520 Gorge Road East.

Drivers will no longer carry change

Beginning April 1st, you must deposit the exact fare in cash to ride a B.C. Hydro bus in Greater Victoria. Drivers will carry no change . . . and will be unable to accept anything but the precise amount of your fare.

These are the new cash fares effective April 1st

Adult: 25¢ cash
Student: 15¢ cash
Student fares valid only on presentation to operator of valid school certificate. Otherwise anyone 12 years of age and over is required to pay an adult fare.
Child: 10¢ cash
Sunday Pass: adults – 50¢ cash children – 25¢ cash

Sunday Pass still the same great bargain

The cost of a Sunday and Holiday Pass remains unchanged – You can still travel anywhere in Greater Victoria, all day on any Sunday or holiday, at a total cost of 50¢ for adults and 25¢ for children. The only difference is that beginning April 1st, you must deposit the exact fare in cash to purchase a Pass.

Remember: The exact cash fare system begins April 1st on all B.C. Hydro buses in Greater Victoria.

B.C. HYDRO

INTRODUCING THE EXECUTIVE JET.

The conveniences of the office.

We know there's no place to work like your office. Still, we think our new Executive Jet can sort of act as your office away from the office while flying across Canada. It has some of the conveniences of your office, plus some you may wish you had in your office.

So next time you're planning a flight within Canada, make sure it's on one of our many regularly scheduled Executive Jet flights.

And you'll get the conveniences of your office at no extra charge.

If you'd rather work than play.

Some men aren't happy unless they're working.

So we've put DeJur dictating equipment on all Executive Jet flights. Now, when that great business idea suddenly comes to you at 30,000 feet, you'll be able to record it instead of forgetting it.

Perhaps you have some important memos to get out. Just dictate them into one of our recorders and drop the tape off at our airport ticket counter when you land. Office Overload will type a first draft and send it ahead to your office. That way, your secretary will have things up-to-date when you get back.

Financial newspapers to show you how much money you could have made.

Or how much money you saved by not investing in the last tip your barber gave you.

All Executive Jets now carry most major financial newspapers from the Wall Street Journal to the Financial Post.

And if that's not enough to keep you financially informed, read the brief, up-to-the-minute resume of marketing/financial information that is passed around aboard every Executive Jet. (The resume is revised throughout the day. So you're never behind the times.)

Publications that might be found in your office. But not necessarily in your home.

Our survey has shown that a great many executives enjoy browsing through men's magazines in their leisure office hours. So, with the executive's pleasure in mind, we've made Playboy magazine available on all Executive Jets.

We also carry all major magazines that are directed to today's businessman. Magazines like Fortune, Harvard Business Review, and Executive are just a few.

Our stewardesses don't look like stewardesses.

For one thing, our stewardesses don't wear standard uniforms. They wear what we call "non-uniforms." Our non-uniform fashions are supplied to us by Canada's best known department store. So you know they're contemporary.

For instance, instead of uniforms that make stewardesses look like they're in the army, you'll see our girls in pantsuits, maxi-coats and bell bottoms.

And as fashions and seasons change, so will our stewardesses' dress. That way, you'll never get tired of looking at them.

Our stewardesses also have a way of making you feel comfortable throughout your flight. They're courteous, friendly, and tuned to the needs of the business flyer.

Leave your business troubles behind.

Our new Executive Jet can even help a man forget about business.

The atmosphere on board is always relaxed and informal. The food is good. The distractions plentiful. And the people on board are the kind of people a business flyer can talk to. They're mostly other business flyers.

The comforts of home.

We know there's no place like home. Still, we think our new Executive Jet can sort of act as your home away from home while flying across Canada.

It has some of the comforts you have at home, plus some you may wish you had at home.

The better treatment starts on the ground.

Unless you board an Executive Jet in a good mood, you may not be in the mood to enjoy all the good things we've put aboard.

So we've taken special care to assure you a pleasant boarding experience. We've trained our ground personnel in the fastest methods of confirming reservations and checking baggage.

It may seem like a small thing but we know from experience that if a flight is to be totally pleasant, it has to get off to a good start.

Home cooked meals.

The food you get aboard every Executive Jet is prepared by tender, loving hands. Hands that have been trained by the best Continental and Canadian masters around.

And the meat and fowl served aboard are the finest quality money can buy. So you know that the meals you get on every Executive Jet are as good as the ones you get at home.

Some people even think they're a little better.

More publications than you'll find around the house.

Variety is the spice of reading.

And the reading material on every Executive Jet is varied enough to please almost anyone's taste. We have specialty magazines for businessmen. We have current issues of Newsweek and Time for those who are still trying to understand the world.

You can even pick from top-selling fiction and non-fiction books.

Games people play.

The games we have aboard are not for kids.

They're sophisticated games. The kind of games that can keep you engaged for hours.

For instance, Instant Insanity. Here's a puzzle that can reduce a sophisticated executive to a babbling child in twenty minutes.

Soma is another game that can help the executive relax and forget about business for a while.

Next time you fly with us, just tell the stewardess you're in the mood to play games.

She'll understand.

Beer: We give you a choice.

A man shouldn't have to drink the same old brew every time. So we let you choose between several of the finest Canadian beers on the market.

Or you can enjoy one of our fine imported wines.

Women: Find happiness on the Executive Jet.

Can a woman really find happiness aboard an Executive Jet?

We think so. After all, it's comfortable for anyone; man, woman, or child.

The women won't have to dictate or read Fortune to have fun, either. There are dozens of other things to do.

And the men who fly on the Executive Jet are the kind that women enjoy talking to. They're smart men.

Aware men.

They're MEN.

So feel welcome, ladies. You'll be in good company.

SUSPENSION PROBLEM SLOWS 'SKINHEADS'

LONDON (UPI) — Skinheads rampaging in southern England's coastal resorts were outwitted Monday by police who confiscated their suspenders, belts and boot laces.

The youngsters known as Skinheads or "bovver (bother) boys" usually have their hair cropped and a uniform of suspenders, jeans and heavy boots.

They roam the towns in gangs of up to 300, often causing fights.

★ ★ ★

With their trousers in danger of falling down and "bovver boots" flying off they were almost unable to kick out at people or cause any "agro" — Skinhead slang for aggravation.

Even so there was trouble on the seafront of Southend with 37 arrests and a fight almost every minute.

Police started the day early by welcoming the Skinheads off the trains from the East End of London. They collected armfuls of the suspenders, belts and laces from steel-capped boots as well as an armory of knives, razors and other assorted offensive weapons.

★ ★ ★

"It was more or less the equivalent of debagging them," a police spokesman said.

The idea of the mass debaggings came from two police constables who had to face 20 Skinheads alone on Sunday — confiscate the "agro-gear" and curb the youths' fighting ability.

"It worked a treat," the police spokesman added. "The word soon spread among the rest of the coppers (police). Very soon they were all doing it."

Elsewhere Skinheads fought "greasers"—long-haired youths—with bricks and chains for two hours.

FORCED FROM POWER BY NAZIS

Hitler's Early Opponent Dies in U.S.

NORWICH, Vt. (AP) — Dr. Heinrich Bruening, Adolf Hitler's predecessor as chancellor of Germany, died Monday at his home here. He was 84.

Bruening, one of the few who dared stand up against Hitler during his rise to power, was chancellor during the last years of the Weimar Republic, from March 29, 1930, to May 30, 1932, when his forced resignation brought an end to German democracy. Hitler was named chancellor eight months later.

Bruening came to the United States in 1934. Three years later, he was named a professor of public administration at Harvard University, a position he held until his retirement in 1950.

During the First World War, Bruening served with a German machine gun company on the Western Front, where he was wounded several times.

He joined Germany's Catholic Centrist party, and in 1924 won a seat in the Reichstag, the national assembly.

"National self-confidence and trust in the innate power of our own people as well as realization that Germany's comeback can be accomplished by peaceful co-operation of all peoples," was the foundation of his political program when, at 45, he became one of the youngest European heads of state.

TAXES HEAVY

The Nazis labelled him "the hunger chancellor" after he levied heavy taxes on the country, but it was his efforts to break up the estates of the Junkers of East Prussia, the backbone of the officer corps, and distribute their land to the small farmers that brought his government to an end.

After leaving office in 1932, Bruening retired to a Roman Catholic institution, but fled the country in 1934 when he learned the Nazis had marked him for death.

He spent the Second World War in exile in Cambridge, Mass., teaching at Harvard, but returned to Germany in 1948 to visit his sister.

He returned to Germany once again, in 1951, a visit which started rumors that he might challenge Konrad Adenauer for leadership of the governing Christian Democratic party of West Germany.

Bruening, a bachelor, spent his last years in Norwich.

Last of Seven Wild Wells Capped in Gulf of Mexico

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — The last well gushing oil from a Chevron Oil Co. platform into the Gulf of Mexico was capped today, seven weeks after it started burning wildly.

Chevron said well No. 6—the biggest of the seven which had gushed oil and gas off the Louisiana coast—was killed with a mixture of salt water and drilling mud pumped through a relief well.

While the well was being killed, a federal grand jury was preparing to open an investigation into reports that oil companies sometimes bypass oil-well safety rules.

The investigation, a result of massive offshore oil pollution from the wild Chevron rig, was ordered by the U.S. justice department on the recommendation of Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel.

The Chevron platform, 30 miles off the Louisiana coast, erupted in flames Feb. 19. The fire was extinguished March 10.

After the fire was put out, seven producing wells on the 12-well platform gushed oil into the Gulf of Mexico, creating oil slicks that hit the shoreline of tiny Breton Island and endangered rich oyster beds and wildlife refuges along the Louisiana coast.

Chevron President K. H. Shaffer said Tuesday there has been no known damage to marine, bird or animal life due to the oil spill.

Congressman Arrested

MIAMI (AP) — U.S. Representatives James G. Fulton (R—Pa.) has been accused of driving under the influence of an intoxicating beverage after his arrest by sheriff's deputies investigating an auto accident. He also was accused of failure to have his vehicle under control and causing an accident Monday. Fulton was released on bail. No trial date was set.

Rex Collard, 4481 Arsens, is the new president of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association, 800 Pacific Wing.

He is a charter member of the wing and was a member of the provisional committee before the wing was formed.

Transport manager with Stewart and Hudson, Collard served with 2455 Squadron (aircraft Control and Warning) when the squadron was based in Victoria.

His wife Ora was re-elected secretary at the same meeting.

Others elected were Roy Kennedy, first vice-president; Hal Loeppky, second vice-president; Jim Adkins, treasurer; Fred Moulson, membership; John Marshall, bar committee; John Buckley, publicity; Fred Newman, house committee; Bob Collard, building and planning; Dennis Pearce, program; Ed Bilinski, entertainment, and Ken Cutler, finance.

Local Firm's Bid Accepted

A local firm, Victoria Pile Driving Co. Ltd., has been awarded a $34,500 contract for wharf repairs at Manson's Landing on Cortes Island.

The federal works department said Thursday the firm submitted the lowest of five tenders for the project, expected to be completed within five months.

An estimated 2,200 linear feet of piling and 47,000 board feet of lumber will be required.

Gremlin.

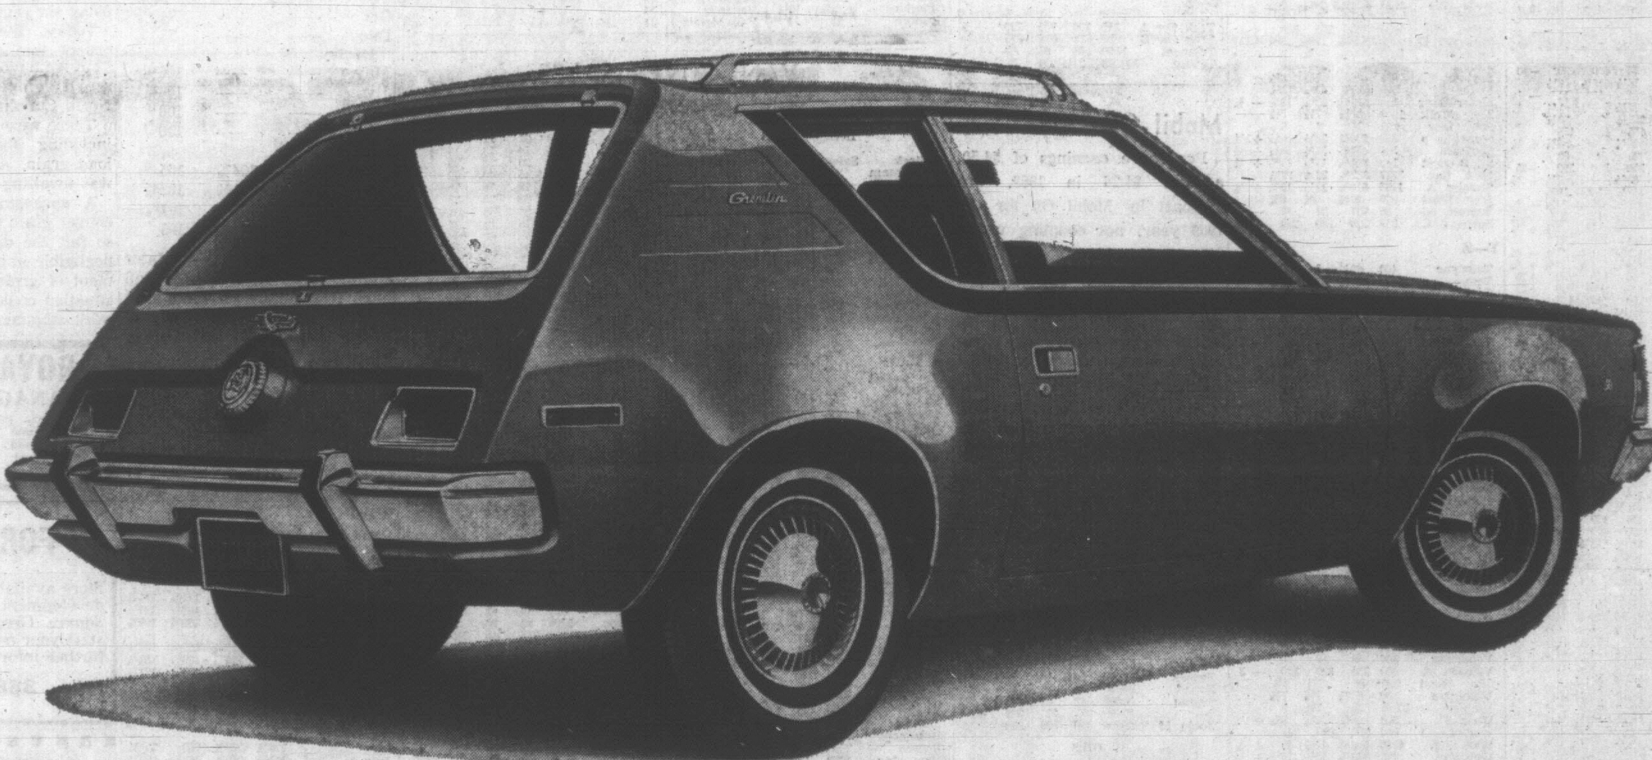
Economical. Dependable. Powerful.
Available.



The subcompact Gremlin from American Motors. Styling, comfort, performance, reliability, price; all are the result of an intensive study of the small car buyer's requirements. And Gremlin meets and exceeds every requirement.

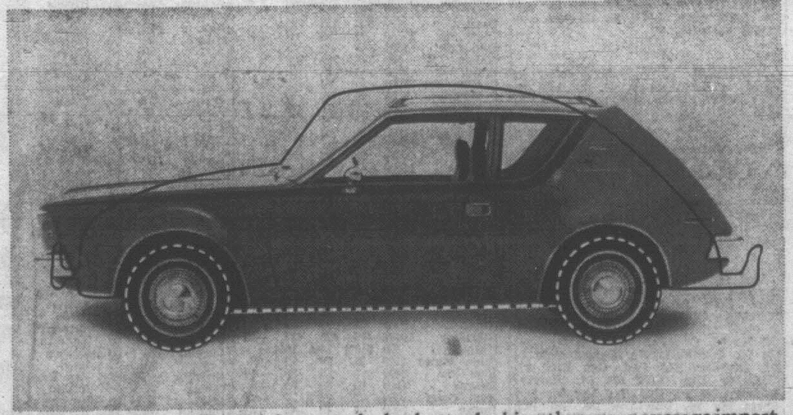
Take styling. The long hood, upswept roofline and slant-back configuration all combine to put a wedge to the wind. This, coupled with Gremlin's wide-track stance, gives outstanding stability even in cross winds.

Models. Two. Gremlin comes in a two-passenger or four-passenger version. The four-passenger version features a rear seat which folds flat to provide additional storage space when required.

Engines. Two. A standard 128 hp Six. An optional 145 hp Six. Power and plenty of it for the North American road. Moreover, road tests demonstrate fuel economy of up to 27 miles per gallon. Multiply that by the 17 gallon fuel tank and you'll get a good idea of Gremlin's operational range.

Transmissions. Three. A 3-speed column mounted shift is standard with the 128 hp engine. A 3-speed floor shift is standard with the 145 hp engine. A column mounted automatic is optional with either engine.

Interiors. Ample. Getting inside a Gremlin is a rewarding experience, because everything inside is so familiar to the driver accustomed to North American cars. Room, comfort, convenience. It's all there.



A little bit longer, a little bit lower and a lot better looking than your average import.

Options. Unlimited. You'll find more than 40 items to put more fun, more power or more style in your driving. Along with the engine and the transmission options, there are; special axle ratios; power steering; power brakes; air conditioning; a roof luggage rack; a push button radio; a lift-up rear window and bucket seats, to name but a few.

Maintenance. Simple. Because of the long hood, the engine compartment boasts exceptional working room. Spark plugs, distributor, carburetor and fan belts are easily accessible. Front fenders bolt on. They can be removed and replaced quickly.

Taken in total. Gremlin is a very remarkable little car and presents to the small car buyer a valid alternative to the glut of imported cars currently on the market. See it for yourself at an American Motors Dealer. Form a first hand opinion of a North American subcompact. The first.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Rally in Late Trading

Rallying in the final hours of trading, gains were posted on both the Toronto and New York stock markets today.

Golds were the most active at Toronto, with the index finishing the day with a healthy gain of 10.67.

Prices were generally up in light trading during the morning session at Vancouver.

AT TORONTO, Fraser was up 2 at 32, Acklands 1¼ to 10½, Falconbridge 1¼ to 176¼ and Magnasonic 1 to 8.

Westcoast was down 1½ to 21, Tonecraft 1 to 17 and Neonex ½ to 5.

Dome Mines jumped 4⅝ to 64⅛, McIntyre 3½ to 180 and Campbell Red Lake 1¾ to 21¾. Rio Algom slipped ⅞ to 19⅛.

Asamera was up 1¼ to 17¾ and Western Decalta lost 25 cents to $5.90.

AT NEW YORK, motors, rubber issues, farm implements and electronics registered declines. Rails, drugs and building materials advanced.

AT MONTREAL, only papers were down in light trading today on the stock market.

Toronto Dominion Bank gained ¼ to 21¼, Bank of Montreal ¼ to 16½ and Royal ⅛ to 22¼.

Moore Corp. advanced ¾ to 37⅝ and Stelco ⅜ to 22¾ while CPR was down ⅜ to 64⅞.

Among senior mines and oils, Aquitaine declined ⅜ to 20¾, Rio Algoma ⅜ to 19⅜ and Texaco Canada ¾ to 22.

Seaway Multi Corp., on the Canadian Stock Exchange, slipped ⅝ to 13⅞ and Mount Royal Rice ⅜ to 11⅛.

AT LONDON, the stock market opened after a four-day Easter holiday on a quiet note today.

Gilts were idle with most investors tending to hold off pending the British budget. Leading industrials eased slightly with most losses restricted to a few pence.

There were widespread gains among Canadians.

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas gained 5 points. Other gains generally were in the range of 2¼ and 3 points. Among those were Imperial Oil, Syracuse, Abitibi and Canadian Pacific.

Home oils generally were quiet. Golds firmed on selective buying.

AT VANCOUVER trading was light but prices were generally up slightly today on the stock exchange with volume to 11:30 a.m. of 1,081,245 shares.

In the mines, Brenmac led the way with 54,500 shares and was up .07 at .97. Early Bird gained .17 to $1.32 while Kopan improved .02 to .23.

Among oils, United Bata on 6,175 shares was unchanged at $2.95, Plains Petroleum gained .01 to .44 and Midland was unchanged at 9½ cents.

Industrials were led by Driver Development, which lost .07 to .87 on 4,500 shares. Pace Industries on 1,100 shares was unchanged at $2.20 and Field Stores was unchanged at $8.13.

CHICAGO (AP) — Major commodity futures prices fell back fractionally on the Board of Trade today, but rallied late in the session and closed on a somewhat improved tone.

Trade, however, was dull through most of the session, except for the opening and the closing 10 minutes.

There appeared nothing in the news, either here or abroad to warrant any sustained price drive.

Docks Still Shut In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Longshoremen and maritime employers held separate meetings today to map strategy in a dispute that has halted Vancouver waterfront operations since Monday monring.

A spokesman for the British Columbia Maritime Employers Association said his group was discussing the situation, but no meeting was scheduled with the I'n ternational Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

An ILWU spokesman said union executives also were meeting, "but we haven't heard anything from the employers about any possible meeting."

Longshoremen refused to work Monday, claiming that employers had attempted to make up work crews from extra or "scratch" gangs instead of using six regular gangs.

Today, the employers sent orders for labor to the union "but we haven't seen any men," said employers, spokesman Norm Cunningham.

There were 21 vessels in port, including three scheduled to load grain. A fourth grain ship was awaiting a berth.

A spokesman for the Vancouver grain exchange said that so far, the dispute has had "a negligible impact" on the movement of grain, but he said the situation could get seriuos if the work stoppage continued.

French Petroleum

Net income of French Petroleum Co. of Canada Ltd. decreased to $1 million during 1969 from $1.2 million the previous year, due to field depletion, depreciation and provision to reduce securities to market value.

Production of crude oil, condensates and natural gas equivalent averaged 4,255 barrels a day.

C-Del Rio Oils

Central-Del Rio Oils Ltd. earned $12 million during 1969, down from record earnings of $13.57 million the previous year.

Dividends of $9.35 million or 31 cents a share were paid stock holders, up four cents from 1968.

Gross income of Central-Del Rio and subsidiaries was practically unchanged at $33 million. The decrease in earnings was due mostly to higher interest charges, lower sulphur prices and field depletion.

Hydrocarbons

Canadian Hydrocarbons Ltd. reports net earnings for 1969 of $5 million, a 34 per cent increase over the $3.86 million earned in 1968. Cash flow increased 40 per cent to $9.9 million.

Net earnings per common share were $1.01, an increase of 34 per cent over the previous year. Cash flow per common share after provision for preferred dividends was $2.07, a 36 per cent improvement.

Gross revenue was $53 million, a 44 per cent increase.

Husky Oil

Husky Oil Ltd. earned $7.86 million, or 75 cents a share in 1969, a decrease of 5 per cent from 1968 earnings of $8.29 million. In the previous year there also was extraordinary income of $2 million, making per share earnings $1.11.

Consolidated sales and operating revenues were worth $163.5 million last year, up 6 per cent.

Western Mines

Year-end results for Western Mines Ltd. will be about $1.18 per share, or just over $6 million, according to a report by Northgate Exploration Ltd. holder of 22.4 per cent of Western's stock.

The Buttle Lake mining company also has acquired by staking and option 202 claims on Quadra Island, where at least 100,000 tons of 2.5 per cent average grade copper ore has been outlined by drilling.

Northgate's metal revenue was down $2.5 million to $22.25 million in 1969, but operating expenses were cut and investment income higher to bring net income up nearly $400,000 to $8.7 million, or $1.69 a share against $1.67.

U.S. Automakers Set Compact War

DETROIT (WP) — Automobile importers are riding high these days. While sales of domestic cars have been running about 12 per cent behind last year, deliveries of foreign cars are up 17 per cent.

In other words, the imports are increasing their share of the U.S. market. Last year they topped 1.1 million in sales and 11 per cent of the market. In the first two months this year, they accounted for 12.6 per cent of sales.

The importers are about to hold their annual get-together in New York. This is the International Automobile Show which opens next Saturday following Friday night preview. The domestic companies are also represented now.

The talk of the show will probably be the small cars Detroit is bringing out to compete with the imports. Only one, the new American Motors Gremlin, which goes on sale Wednesday, will be at the New York show.

However, the Gremlin is just the advance party for the counter-attack Detroit is preparing—small cars from General Motors and Ford. They are now approaching the production stage.

ON TEST TRACKS

Prototypes of the GM and Ford subcompacts are being seen more and more these days at the company test tracks at Milford and Dearborn, Mich. The GM car, to be sold by Chevrolet, will go on sale in late August, the small Ford in September.

Photos of the GM and Ford cars, taken with telephoto lenses, show them to be small but attractive looking. They have conventional front-mounted engines, unlike the rear-engined Volkswagen, the car they are designed to compete with.

Chevrolet, perhaps feeling the pressure of not yet having a small car ready for sale like AMC does with the Gremlin, is already starting to advertise its new subcompact. A full-page ad is being published in Time magazine this week, another will follow in April.

The ad says "Coming soon: The little car that does everything well." In talking about the car, Chevy says, "In our own highway tests, our new mini has been travelling almost as far on a quart of gas as some cars do on a gallon. Yet the car moves like a rabbit. Front disc brakes will stop you emphatically."

This was the first disclosure that front disc brakes will be standard on the car. They are standard on the new Camaro and Firebird cars. It is obvious GM intends to make disc brakes standard on all its cars over the next couple of years as the new models are introduced.

ALL STRONG

The ad also says the new car will be "nimble and easy to park: simple and easy to fix. And strong. Strong body, strong chassis, strong engine, strong everything.

"The inside isn't fancy. But it sure isn't plain. And there's room in there for four full-grown people . . . all that, and considerably more, for the same kind of money people have been paying for ordinary everyday little cars."

The advertisement also confirms that the new Chevy will come in four models—a sedan, a coupe, a station wagon "and even a little panel truck."

It's a unique approach to promoting a new car and comes on the heels of Chevy's announcement 10 days ago on some details of the engine in the new car. The four-cylinder overcamshaft engine will even be shown publicly for the first time at the New York show.

A campaign like this has to be giving the importers some concern.

Volkswagen, whose U.S. sales slipped slightly last year but which still sold over 560,000 cars here, professes to be taking it in stride.

In fact, VW officials say the new Detroit subcompacts will challenge the Japanese imports more than the Beetle. They base this on the fact that the Japanese Toyota and Datsun cars have front engines like the U.S. cars.

However, Detroit executives make no bones about the fact that VW is their main target. The Chevy ad, for example, says its new car "is uncommonly steady in crosswinds." Now isn't that a dig at Volkswagen?

CONTROLLING INTEREST HELD BY EXECUTIVES

MONTREAL (CP) — Paul Desmarais, chairman and chief executive officer, and Peter N. Thomson, deputy chairman, hold the controlling interests in Power Corp. of Canada Ltd., it was revealed Monday.

A Power Corp. statement said Desmarais controls 29 per cent of the 23,374,538 votes represented by holdings of preferred and common stock while Thomson controls 28 per cent.

The circular was issued to announce a special meeting April 8 at which Power Corp. shareholders will vote on a proposed 10,000,000-share increase in authorized common stock to 30,000,000 shares.

The company said the increase was to enable it to effect an offer to acquire the outstanding shares of Consolidated Bathurst Ltd., of which it already owns 16½ per cent in common shares.

Nixon Hints Veto On Housing Bill

WASHINGTON (WP) — President Nixon has hinted that he may veto new housing legislation unless a Democratic-supported provision is stricken.

The bill, approved 9 to 6 by the senate banking and currency committee earlier this month, would compel the Federal Reserve Board to make $3 billion worth of low-interest loans to homeowners. In a letter to senate leaders last week, the president said the disputed provision "is exceedingly undesirable and, if not deleted, will delay the enactment of (the bill's) other urgently needed provisions into law."

The senate legislation contains a number of other proposals to aid the sagging housing market, including the administration's recommendation that loans to savings and loan associations—the chief source of credit for new homebuilding—be subsidized.

In contrast to the administration's program, which taps the federal budget for subsidy funds, the Democratic provision would use the federal reserve.

"This provision is an intolerable invasion in the federal reserve . . ." the president said in his letter.

SENATOR DISAGREES

Requiring the FED to furnish special loans, according to the president, would frustrate the FED's ability to influence basic economic policy. "Special interest considerations and subsidies are not an appropriate role for the federal reserve," he declared.

However, Sen. William Proxmire (D—Wis.), who first introduced the legislation, contends that the measure won't impair the FED's efforts to reduce inflation.

The FED, he said in a speech explaining the proposal, can offset the $3 billion in mortgage loans on the economy by reducing its purchases of—or selling—other federal securities (treasury notes and bonds) by a corresponding amount.

"Even during the record tight year of 1969, the federal reserve increased its treasury security holdings by $5 billion," he said.

AVOID SQUEEZES

The measure, according to Proxmire, aims at avoiding the periodic credit squeezes that cripple the housing market. With interest rates high and money scarce, home building is now experiencing such a squeeze; new starts have dropped from an annual rate of $1.8 million in January, 1969, to $1.3 million last February.

Under the proposal, the FED would be required to offer at least $3 billion in loans, at rates no higher than 6 per cent, to the federal home loan bank system each year. The home loan banks could tap the FED whenever money became tight, reloan the money to savings and loans, which would be permitted to use the funds for mortgages at no more than 7 per cent.

The proposal would be aimed at middle-income families. The purchase price for homes financed under the program could not exceed $30,000.

The administration—and the FED—have argued that the measure would set a precedent and encourage other groups to seek legislation making use of the FED's resources.

Canada Bank Eases Currency Curbs

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada announced Monday night the removal of restrictions on certain foreign currency transactions which were imposed at the height of its tight-credit policy last summer and reinforced in January.

The central bank announced withdrawal of a ceiling on so-called swapped deposits, a method of lending funds outside Canada through currency exchange at rates of interest higher than could be earned in this country.

Because the transactions tended to exert upward pressure on Canadian interest rates and were a way around other credit restrictions imposed by the Bank of Canada, the chartered banks were asked last July not to increase the amount of swapped deposits from their total then of around $1,720,000,000.

Investment and trust companies were asked by the central bank in January not to subvert the ceiling by conducting similar transactions.

The motive for arranging swapped deposits was strong last year, when United States dollar deposits in Europe were earning up to 12 per cent in annual interest rates while the rate for short-term Canadian deposits was held at 7½ per cent.

RATES DOWN TO 8½

Lately, dollar rates abroad have fallen to around 8½ per cent.

"In view of the substantial reduction which has recently occurred in short-term interest rates abroad, it was felt that these special requests were no longer necessary," the central bank said.

When originally requested, the ceiling on swapped deposits was described as a temporary measure. The Bank of Canada was understood to regard the present as an opportune moment to remove restrictions which tend to have an uneven impact on financial institutions operating in otherwise relatively-free money markets.

In addition, removal of the restraint could help moderate some of the strong upward pressure recently on the exchange rate of the Canadian dollar.

With demand for Canadian funds strong, the more that the private money market is permitted to meet the demand, the better for the government.

The government, obliged by international agreement to keep the exchange rate of the dollar within limits, has to meet excessive demand for Canadian funds in exchange for U.S. dollars from its exchange fund account.

When the demand for such intervention is persistent, the exchange fund accound must be replenished with government cash, reducing its budget surplus.

The Bank of Canada said relaxation of the restraint on swapped deposits would have no effect on government requirements dating from 1968 limiting the acquisition of foreign currency assets outside North America by Canadian organizations.

The measure was imposed to bolster U.S. restraints on an outward flow of funds through Canadian intermediaries. Those restraints remain in force.

$560 Million Ore Deal With Japan

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for the Iron Ore Co. of Canada said Monday the company will "probably have a statement within a day or two" on the reported signing of a $560,000,000, U.S. contract with a group of six leading Japanese steel mills.

The Kawasaki Steel Corp. announced earlier in Tokyo the signing of the contract to purchase iron ore from Canada on a long-term basis.

"The parties to the contract are pretty close on all points but the deal is contingent on some other things," the Iron Ore spokesman said.

He did not elaborate.

Kawasaki, speaking for the group, said that under the contract signed with the Hanna Mining Co. Ltd., a maximum of 5,000,000 tons of crushed ore would be supplied annually from the Carol Lake mine in Newfoundland for 15 years after 1973.

TO SHIP ORE

Ore from the mine would be shipped through Sept-Iles on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River, it said.

The Carol Lake mine was being explored by the Iron Ore Co. of Canada, of which Cleveland-based Hanna Mining is the largest single shareholder.

The Iron Ores spokesman said no new shipping facilities would be required at Sept-Iles.

"It was expanded recently and there's a good docking capacity there now," he said.

"Ships of up to 200,000 tons can be handled without any problem now and, under the most favorable tide conditions, you can bring in the 250,000-ton carriers."

He added, however, that completion of the Japanese deal "certainly will mean some expansion" of the Carol Lake mining operation.

Boeing President Returns to Desk

SEATTLE (AP) — T. A. Wilson, president of the Boeing Co., has returned to his post 10 weeks after he suffered a heart attack aboard a commercial airliner shortly after it took off from Seattle.

Wilson was in hospital in Spokane for about three weeks, after which he recuperated at home and in California. He plans to work half days for a time.

BELGUIM ARRESTS SUSPECT RUSSIAN SPY

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Belgian security police have arrested a 36-year-old Russian truck salesman, accused of trying to set up a spy network in NATO's European military headquarters, the Belgian justice ministry said today.

A ministry statement said the man, Boris Savitch, employed as an engineer and salesman here with the Soviet Scaldia-Volga vehicle firm since October, 1967, tried to escape when arrested in a restaurant March 25.

* * *

Police found miniature photography equipment, several rolls of film on him, and a large amount of money.

The justice ministry has asked for Savitch's expulsion from Belgium, the statement added.

Light Term Given Over POW Killing

From AP-Reuters

LONG BINH, Vietnam (CP) — A military court today agreed on a sentence of six months in jail and a $1,500 fine for a young U.S. Army lieutenant the court two days ago unwittingly put in line for a life sentence for the murder of a Vietnamese prisoner-of-war.

The eight-man court Monday revoked its premeditated murder conviction against Lieut. James B. Duffy, 23, of Claremont, Calif., and found him guilty instead of involuntary manslaughter and conspiracy to commit manslaughter.

The court said it didn't realize the murder conviction carried a mandatory life sentence.

Duffy could have drawn a maximum of six years on the manslaughter counts.

The prisoner was captured by Duffy's platoon in the Mekong Delta last Sept. 5. One of Duffy's men is accused of doing the shooting.

Today's verdict and sentence now will be reviewed by higher authorities in Vietnam and Washington and can be reduced by any of them.

The jurors deliberated for 4½ hours after which they said they wished to hand down a suspended sentence. But this was rejected by the trial judge, Col. Peter Wondolowski, of Springfield, Va., who said they were not able to order such a sentence.

After a further two hours, the jury agreed to a sentence of six months' imprisonment and a fine of $250 a month for six months.

Hobos Protest

LONDON (Reuters) — Everyone is getting in on the act of demonstrating these days—even tramps. Four of them arrived at Buckingham Palace Monday pushing a pram full of cigarette ends they had picked up on a 120-mile protest march from the seaside resort of Brighton to draw attention to the plight of Britain's estimated 100,000 hobos.

RUSSIA CANCELS BOMBING NEAR JAPAN

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today that it has cancelled four bombing exercises it planned to conduct in waters off Japan next month, the Japanese foreign ministry reported.

The Soviet decision followed a strong protest by the Japanese government last week that the tests would interfere with air and sea traffic and affect fishing.

* * *

The Soviet government announced last week it would conduct the tests April 1-27 in internatinal waters of Shikaku, Japan's main southern island, the Soviet Kamchatka Peninsula and Kurile Islands, and in the Japan Sea.

On Monday, the Soviet Union announced cancellation of the exercise off Shikoku and postponement of the other tests.

Saved Woman Sued

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — A U.S. Navy lieutenant who rescued a 70-year-old woman from her burning apartment last April sued the woman Monday for $1,500,000 for alleged negligence in starting the fire. Lieut. Thorpe Whiteman, 26, claimed in a suit filed in Superior Court that he hurt his back in rescuing Fannie Goldsmith and subsequently lost his job as a naval dentist.

British Prisons Old, Crowded—and 'Colonies' Full Up

By KENNETH L. DAVIS

LONDON (AP) — Prisoners are multiplying faster than prison cells—and there's not much relief in sight.

Sir Leon Radzinowicz, a government penal adviser, stated the situation when he asked: "With housing badly needed and hospitals inadequate and schools in short supply, where would you put the emphasis?"

English and Welsh prisoners mostly do their time in 18th and 19th century jails. About the time the jumbo jet is setting down by computer at London's Heathrow Airport each morning, thousands of British convicts are carrying plastic chamber pots from their cells. Victorian jails lack individual sanitary facilities.

At night 36,000 crowd into cells for 31,000. By day 43 per cent of them sew mailbags, prison clothing, recover metal or clean up, none of which is designed to rehabilitate.

NEED BETTER CARE

Some time this decade experts calculate that the English and Welsh prison population will hit 50,000—roughly five times the total of the years before the Second World War.

Britain once had a ready answer to a criminal surplus: Ship it off to the colonies. Nowadays Britain has run out of colonies.

Radzinowicz, who directs the Cambridge criminology institute, said: "We've got to intensify our care of parolees, find alternative means of punishment, perhaps big and isolated prison communities where prisoners could work and live nearly normal lives without bothering society."

Of the 46 walled prisons in England and Wales, 34 were built in the 1800s, three in the 1700s, and only nine in this century.

In 1967 the government announced a 10-year program to spend about $100,000,000 rebuilding prisons and constructing 25 new ones. The aim was to provide 13,000 new places by about 1980.

"This is an ambitious program by any standards," said Elystan Morgan of the home office, "but it is a sobering thought that even if it proceeds unfalteringly between now and 1974 it will do no more than prevent the present level of overcrowding from getting any worse"

Actually well before 1980, the forecasts say, there will be 14,000 more jail prisoners than today and 17,000 more than in 1967.

A new factory prison at Coldingley opened last year. Prisoners there work a 40-hour week in a commercial laundry, a steel shelving factory and a road sign factory. They are comparatively free inside the prison walls. They don't march in groups as in other British jails.

SECTION ABOUT PROCEEDINGS IN BANKRUPTCY COURT 'INTRIGUES' REFEREE

HEARINGS ON PILOTS CONTINUING

League Constitution May Block Road to Milwaukee

SEATTLE (AP) — The American League was faced with an intriguing section of its own constitution and the disquieting threat of antitrust legislation today as the winding judical road from Seattle to Milwaukee suddenly seemed just a little longer.

The road the Seattle Pilots hoped to tred to Milwaukee was studded with legal rocks throughout a hearing in federal bankruptcy court. Then a boulder bounced down from the bar to stop the day's travel altogether.

And probably more important to baseball in the long run was the possible landslide started when Washington's two powerful Democratic senators Henry M. Jackson and Warren G. Magnuson, announced they would sponsor legislation putting baseball under antitrust laws. Rep. Brock Adams, another Washington Democrat, was to sponsor similar legislation in the House.

The senators said the antitrust action wouldn't have any bearing on the Seattle-Milwaukee situation, "but rather could apply only against the American League in future actions."

Bankruptcy referee Sidney C. Volinn's comment in the Seattle hearing came in his usual quiet, calm tone, but the impact seemed to change the whole mood of the proceedings.

"I must confess I'm intrigued by this section in your constitution about proceedings in bankruptcy court," Volinn told the American League attorneys.

That section of the constitution was brought up by William Dwyer, special assistant Washington state attorney-general. Dwyer had held his peace throughout the day because he said he didn't want to prejudice an $82,000,000 damage-antitrust suit that would follow a Pilot move.

But when it came time for the specific issue—to show cause why the club shouldn't be sold to the Milwaukee Brewers Baseball Club, Inc.—Dwyer sprang to life and began picking at the league constitution.

Dwyer argued in his closing statement that under baseball law the league takes over any franchise as soon as it enters a bankruptcy court. He said that being the case the club could hardly say it couldn't meet its debts because the AL wasn't in financial trouble.

Volinn then asked Dwyer if under that same constitution the league wasn't free to sell the club anyway. Dwyer said no, not if the constitution was taken as a whole and especially in the light of league promises to keep the club in Seattle for the 1970 season and underwrite its expenses.

With that, league attorneys popped up and declared the league never committed itself to operate the club in Seattle for the season.

However, Volinn let the matter hang in the new uncertainty and recessed the hearing to this morning. He said he wanted to think about the constitutional question.

Bill WALKER

The poor little rabbit is dead. His heartbeat will flutter no more. And about time. Someone may have been hurt. Baseball commissioner Bowie Khun has banned the "bazooka ball".

This was the odd-ball the major league teams used every Wednesday in training.

The ball players called it the "5 per center." Ted Williams, manager of the Washington Senators, termed it the "35 per center." It was that explosive.

Last year, it will be recalled, the commissioner lowered all pitching mounds. This was an attempt to restore some of the respectability to the batting averages in the majors. The pitchers had taken control. They liked it. But the fans didn't. There was not enough action. The home-run production was down. An imbalance had been created. Defence had taken over. There had to be a change.

It worked. Batting averages resumed more normal figures. The pitchers didn't suffer that badly either. And baseball had a better year at the gate. The fans were reasonably satisfied.

But the "bazooka ball." This was something else again. It was a livelier ball, and the ruling was that it would be used only on Wednesdays. In this way a comparison could be made.

But the pitchers came up scared. They had sick-outs on Wednesdays. And for good reason.

The statistics were frightening. For example, in two Wednesdays the Senators played, the two teams collected 54 runs, 58 hits and there were 37 bases on balls. The fielders committed 12 errors. They couldn't catch the rabbit.

It was easier not to throw the ball near the batter. At least the pitchers would gain the respect of their own teammates. They wanted none of it, in the field. With Frank Howard at the plate, imagine where the third baseman would be playing. Would he be hugging the third-base line? Not likely. It would be far too dangerous.

Stories out of Florida said the ball rocketed off the infield almost too fast to handle. A player can move only so quickly.

Two pitchers, at least, were hit by batted balls. They couldn't get out of the way. Little wonder that they led the ban-the-bazooka movement. Some said they were against it on principle, the principle of staying healthy. Others said they couldn't get the same action on the ball as with the regulation sphere when they threw their "out" pitch. It didn't feel right.

●

Two pitchers said they could probably learn to throw it better, because of the raised seams. The breaking pitch would be tougher to hit. But it would take practice to get accustomed to the change.

Jerry Koosman of the Mets said he could probably get "better stuff" on the new ball.

The batters loved it, most of them. Long outs were becoming home runs. They were getting an extra step on the infielders because they were playing a step deeper. But then the ball was hit that much harder. Who was really to gain?

Others disagreed. They said that with the new ball, all their pop singles would be turned into outfield outs. Their averages would suffer. And for the average hitter this would never do.

Bowie Kuhn agreed. Enough was enough. The noble experiment was over. Baseball didn't need the change. The "5 per center" had to go.

In the interest of safety, among other reasons.

Austrian Outdrives Grand Prix Champion

THRUXTON, England (AP)—Jochen Rindt of Austria outduelled world Grand Prix champion Jackie Stewart of Scotland to win the International Formula Two auto race here Monday for the third straight year.

Driving a Lotus, Rindt led from the start and lapped the whole field except for Stewart, who finished 11.6 seconds behind in a Brabham. Rindt covered the 46 laps (108 miles) in 57 minutes 41 seconds for an average speed of 112.75 miles an hour. He also equalled the circuit record for one lap with a speed of 114.62 m.p.h.

Jackie Ickx of Belgium, rated a serious challenger, finished sixth in a BSW after being hampered by mechanical trouble.

Rindt and Stewart had easily won the earlier two heats leading to the 30-car final.

Artificial Turf to Cut Careers, Says Bunning

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Jim Bunning says artificial turf is going to shorten the career of baseball players, especially where the synthetic turf is used to cover the entire field, including the dirt infield and baselines.

Bunning, veteran Philadelphia Phillies pitcher, says the Baseball Players Association has informed commissioner Bowie Kuhn of its objection to artificial turf. He says the strategy of the game will be changed.

"It will also shorten the career of many players," Bunning said at the Phillies training camp. "I know that when Willie Mays plays centre field in San Francisco this year he is going to find it extremely difficult to keep his legs ready to play every day. A 38-year-old outfielder (Mays) playing on AstroTurf is going to find it very difficult to keep his legs in shape."

San Francisco is one of six National League fields which will have artificial turf by the end of the 1970 season. Others are the new stadiums in Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh and the Astrodome in Houston.

PLANNED FOR VANCOUVER

A similar artificial turf could make a Canadian debut if Empire Stadium in Vancouver completes plans to install the new surface this year for home games of British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

Speaking of the Cincinnati stadium, Bunning said: "I know that the commissioner of baseball after visiting with us (players association) in Puerto Rico, found out how everybody felt about having artificial turf put over the skin part of the diamond where the dirt used to be.

"Now this is going to change the game as we know it, change the strategy, the infield play and many other things in baseball. It will change the art of base stealing.

"I believe that over a period of time the experience of playing on artificial turf on the infield will prove harmful to baseball. I think that eventually they'll have to go back to dirt infields."

Staehl's Big Bat Expo Bright Spot

By The Canadian Press

Montreal Expos found something to cheer about Monday despite a 6-2 loss to Atlanta Braves in an exhibition baseball game.

Marv Staehl had two hits to increase his spring batting average to .485. That virtually wraps up the starting position for Staehl.

Rico Carty drove in three runs and Tony Gonzalez had three hits for Atlanta, which pinned the loss on Bill Stoneman. The Expos got both their runs off Jim Nash, the Atlanta starter, who struck out seven in seven innings.

Successive eight-inning homers by Ron Davis and Dave Cash carried Pittsburgh Pirates to a 5-4 victory over Cincinnati. It was Pittsburgh's sixth straight exhibition baseball victory.

Boston Red Sox blanked St. Louis 2-0 behind lefthander Gar Peters, extending their winning streak to five games. Peters, acquired from Chicago White Sox during the winter, hasn't been scored on in 24 innings this spring.

SEVENTH FOR OAKLAND

Cleveland handed Oakland its seventh consecutive setback, 7-2, as southpaw Barry Moore pitched two-hit ball for seven innings.

Two-run homers by Tommy Dean, Nate Colvert and Chris Cannizzaro gave San Diego an 8-6, come-from-behind victory over Seattle.

Cleon Jones' tie-breaking homer in the sixth inning propelled the world-champion New York Mets to a 5-3 victory over the White Sox.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — New York Mets swapped catchers, sending J. C. Martin to Chicago Cubs for Randy Bobb.

Martin, a 33-year-old veteran, who played with Chicago White Sox before going to the Mets two years ago, batted .209 in 66 games for New York last year.

Bobb, 22, was a Pacific Coast League all-star last season at Tacoma, a Cubs' farm club.

TRAIL TAKES TITLE

Trail youngsters returned home today with the championship of the first British Columbia peewee hockey tournament after demonstrating a powerful scoring punch in the three-day, round-robin event at Memorial Arena.

The West Kootenay representatives ended the tourney deadlocked with North Kamloops for first place but captured the title on a goal-spread basis.

Trail, which defeated North Kamloops 7-3 in the opening round Saturday, scored 38 goals while allowing 16. North Kamloops had a 24-15 record.

In the final round Monday, Trail defeated Cranbrook 11-3 while Fort St. John captured third by defeating Burnaby 6-2 and North Kamloops downed Powell River, 4-3

Tony 'Coming On Strong' For Chihawks

MONTREAL (CP)—It's that time of year again when superstitious hockey coaches and players refuse to change their lucky suits, hats, other accoutrements or uniforms for fear they'll break their luck.

And no one will blame Billy Reay if he follows this pattern or if his brilliant southpaw netminder—Tony Esposito—allows his Chicago Black Hawks gear to become pungent in the process.

Esposito, who recorded three shutouts in the Black Hawks last four games to set a National Hockey League modern-era record of 15, is one of the main reasons Chicago is tied in points today with Boston Bruins for first place in the torrid East Division's five-team race for four playoff berths.

Both clubs have played 73 games of the 76-game regular schedule and both have 95 points—a club record for Chicago. However, the Hawks get top billing in the standings because they have 43 wins, five more than the Bruins.

In determining positions at the end of the season, when two or more teams are tied in points, the first tie-breaker is most wins. If a tie exists in that column, then it goes to most goals scored and if there is still a tie, the last factor is fewest goals against.

TONY ESPOSITO . . . has solid lead

HAS MOST WINS

Actually, if Chicago ends in a tie in points, it will automatically get the higher position because, with its 43 victories, no other team can match that total.

Clustered behind Chicago-Boston are third-place Montreal Canadiens with 90 points, Detroit Red Wings with 89 and New York Rangers with 88. All but Detroit have three games left. The Wings have four.

Lost in the shuffle of the East Division race is another in the West.

Tonight's only game may cast some light on whether Minnesota North Stars or Oakland Seals will grab the fourth and final playoff spot in the West.

The Stars, currently one point behind Oakland's 55, play host to Los Angeles Kings in the only scheduled contest. St. Louis Blues and Pittsburgh Penguins already have grabbed two of the playoff berths, while Philadelphia Flyers appear assured of the third.

Only one goaltender in NHL history recorded more shutouts in one season than Esposito's 15. That was the late George Hainsworth while with the Canadiens in the 1928-29 season when he blanked the opposition 22 times in 44 games.

Two other netminders—Alex Connell of the old Ottawa Senators in 1925-26 and 1927-28 and Hal Winkler of Boston in 1927-28—had 15 shutouts.

LIKELY VEZINA WINNER

But besides his shutout lead, Esposito appears to have the Vezina Trophy safely in his grasp. If he wins the top goalie title, he will be only the fifth rookie to do so since the award was first presented in 1926-27.

Hainsworth, the first winner, Frank Brimsek of Boston in 1938-39, Bill Durnan of Canadiens in 1943-44 and Al Rollins of Toronto Maple Leafs in 1950-51, were the other rookies.

With three games left to play, Esposito has a 14-goal lead over St. Louis and a 15-goal lead over New York in the Vezina race.

Meanwhile, Bobby Orr, the Bruins' all-star defenceman, continues to run up his records and increase his lead atop the individual scoring parade.

Orr now has 114 points—31 goals and 83 assists—and it seems improbable that he can better the point record of 126 set last season by team-mate Phil Esposito—Tony's older brother.

Ladysmith Bowlers Top Tenpin Bonspiel

Doubtfuls didn't live up to their label on Sunday. That is when the Ladysmith foursome of Ken Bryski, Jean Stevenson, Dick Barnes and Art Scott nipped Swingers 2,423 - 2,416 in the final to capture top honors in the seventh annual Colonist Vancouver Island Tenpin Bonspiel at Mayfair Lanes.

It was the combination of a large handicap and some last-minute accuracy by Scott which paved the way to victory.

Scott came through with a last-frame strike and added 10 pins with his last two balls. Doubtfuls, at 504, had one of the highest handicaps in the bonspiel while Swingers, at 218, had the lowest handicap of the 128 teams.

LADYSMITH SHOW

Johnnie's Service, the 1967 champions, made it a Ladysmith show on an adjoining pair of lanes by capturing the "B" event title.

John Mitchell, George Dick, Gordon Walton and Jack Gallagher, the same personnel as in 1967, downed Carter's Music of Duncan 2,536-2,492 on the strength of a 781 second game and some standout bowling by anchor-man Gallagher.

Nuts and Bolts (Bob Hull, Barry Bissett, Herb West, Wally Lum) won the "C" event with a 2,336-2,282 victory over Roy's Trophy Shop.

Five bowlers who were not members of the 16 teams that split up $2,160 in prize money collected individual trophies.

CADDELL ROLLS 650

Don Norbury of Satelite Fish captured the trophy for the high series of 648. Bonspiel high of 650 was rolled by Rod Caddell, who was ineligible for the trophy because his team (Swingers) shared in the money.

With Norbury, Caddell and Frank Miller winning other silverware, Bill McKay won the men's high single trophy with 252. Norbury had a 268 in his large series, Caddell a 258 and Miller a 255.

Mo King captured the trophy for the women's high three (614) while Coby Lobbezoo and Flos Prior shared honors for high singles of 235.

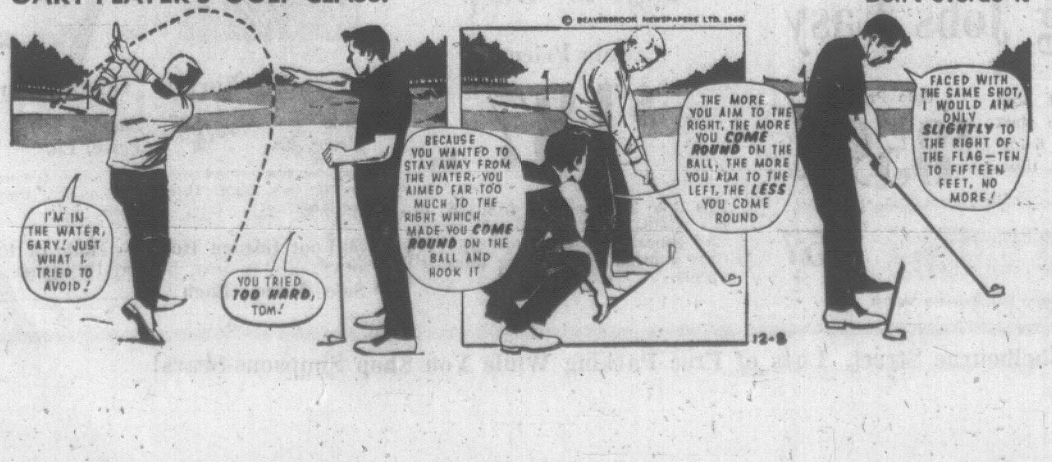
GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS: Don't overdo it



I'M IN THE WATER, GARY! JUST WHAT I TRIED TO AVOID!
YOU TRIED TOO HARD, TOM!
BECAUSE YOU WANTED TO STAY AWAY FROM THE WATER, YOU AIMED FAR TOO MUCH TO THE RIGHT WHICH MADE YOU COME ROUND ON THE BALL AND HOOK IT
THE MORE YOU AIM TO THE RIGHT, THE MORE YOU COME ROUND ON THE BALL, THE MORE YOU AIM TO THE LEFT, THE LESS YOU COME ROUND
FACED WITH THE SAME SHOT, I WOULD AIM ONLY SLIGHTLY TO THE RIGHT OF THE FLAG—TEN TO FIFTEEN FEET, NO MORE!

TEE TOPICS

By Ernie Fedoruk

Two Victoria professionals have qualified for match-play battles in the Vancouver City Tournament. And, right off, Willie Wakeham has got the idea he's "been there" before.

Wakeham and his former hookey-playing partner from Cedar Hill, Dick Munn, came through Sunday to share medal honors with Vancouver pro Bill Carrington. All three finished the 36-hole trial with two-under-par 142s.

ART DONALDSON
. . . meets Wakeham

John Morgan, unattached Victoria pro, was a stroke behind with a 143 total.

Oak Bay assistant Vaughan Trapp, the only other Victorian attempting to qualify, scored 153 and missed the cut. Seven players who shot 151 had to play off for the final five berths.

Wakeham scored a one-over 73 at Fraserview on Friday but came back strong on the Sabbath with a three-under 69 at Burquitlam. Carrington and Munn, now head pro at Point Grey, had identical 70-72 rounds.

As if sharing the medal with Munn wasn't enough for Wakeham, the draw for the first round produced another surprise for the Victoria pro. Wakeham drew former Gorge Vale clubmate Art Donaldson as his first opponent. Donaldson, now greens superintendent at Capilano, qualified with a pair of 74s for a 148 total.

Morgan will go against UBC student Glen MacDonald while Munn was matched against veteran Willingdon Cupper Bert Ticehurst.

Uplands' Frank Scroggs, long a threat in city amateur events, has waited a long time. Finally, on Thursday, he scored a hole-in-one! Coming on Uplands' fourth, it was Frank's first.

He should be in his 70s when he scores his second, according to his long-range projection.

Ernie Wheeler and Fred Frewer also counted aces at the weekend. Frewer dropped his tee shot on the eighth at Victoria Club while Wheeler counted his first on the 15th at Cedar Hill.

Alberta, unlike British Columbia, does not observe daylight saving time. Now Alberta's golf leaders want that extra hour of daylight.

The Alberta Golf Association, which represents 102 clubs and about 30,000 golfers, has asked the provincial government to institute daylight time in 1970.

AGA honorary president A. A. Williams, in a telegram to Premier Harry Strom, says golfers are concerned with the lack of sufficient golf facilities to supply the demand for play.

That extra hour means a lot. According to AGA calculations, one extra hour would provide for 4,900 additional players a day.

BRIEFLY: Deadline for entry into the Times-sponsored Vancouver Island Open match-play championships still is several days away, but a limit entry seems assured . . . Tournament secretary Leo Derman says the list is piling up . . . The entry form is printed elsewhere on these pages . . . Brian Hunnings and Gord Money both finished four up to share top honors in Oak Bay's par competition Saturday . . . Dave Thom, scoring 73-14—59, won medal honors in the qualifying round of the Cedar Hill club handicap event . . . Doug Hunt took the gross prize with a 69 . . .

Big boost for the district's four nine-hole clubs has been formation of competition that keeps members busy during the winter season . . . LINHGA is the "Lower Island Nine-Hole Golf Association" and member clubs are Metchosin, Gregarah, Ardmore and Broome Hill . . . Competition includes button matches as well as a 72-hole tournament played over the four courses . . . Stepping up as the final prize-winners this season were Ken Bonner of Gregarah, Ardmore's Harold Pelton and Walt Price. . . .

PUCK FANS FILE SUIT OVER 1967 FISH TOSS

SEATTLE (AP) — Two spectators at 1967 Western Hockey League game filed suit Monday for $5,000 in damages they said were inflicted when they were hit by a fish thrown by a Portland player.

Kenneth T. Beyer and his wife, Norrine, filed suit in King County Superior Court naming the hockey league, Seattle Totems, Portland Buckaroos and Portland player Larry Leach.

The suit said Beyer was struck in the face by a fish thrown by a player during a Seattle-Portland game here.

ART JONES

Art Jones Shooting At Record

SEATTLE (AP) — There'll be no fooling around for Portland's Art Jones on April Fool's Day. That's the day he'll be shooting on Buckaroo ice for an all-time Western Hockey League scoring record.

Jones, far out in front in the WHL scoring chase with 121 points, needs only two points to shatter the league's single-season scoring record of 122 set by Salt Lake City's Guyle Fielder when he played for Seattle.

Jones, who racked up six points last week, can get the two more he needs when the Buckaroos play host to the San Diego Gulls Wednesday night. If he misses there, he has another shot at it this week when Portland invades Seattle.

Vancouver's Andy Bathgate remained a solid second with 106 points.

George Gardener of Vancouver continued to top the goalies with an average of 2.85 goals allowed per game. His teammate, John Arbour, upped his record for penalty minutes to 247.

TWO YACHTS GROUNDED . . . . . . ONLY 23 FINISH

Gales Batter Sailors

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eagle, skippered by Larry Shorett of the Corinthian Yacht Club, Seattle, Monday was declared the winner of the Strait of Georgia yacht race.

The 146-mile race was sailed in the face of gale-force winds during the Easter weekend.

Rigging failures took a heavy toll of the 72 starters with only 23 yachts managing to complete the exacting course that ran from Vancouver to a point off Nanaimo, then south to a point near Bellingham, north to a point off the Sechelt Peninsula and back to Vancouver. Two yachts ran aground.

Summer Wind, owned and sailed by Ed Preskey of West Vancouver Yacht Club, was first to finish but Eagle won on corrected time calculation.

Teaser from the Tacoma Yacht Club, under Stephen Thordarson and Dudley Houtz, finished second overall and White Squall, owned and sailed by Gov Teats of Tacoma, was third.

White Squall was named winner of the division one class and Eagle took division three. Division two was won by Solquest, owned and sailed by Fred Russell of West Vancouver.

Le Cordon Bleau, owned by Jack Pinch of West Vancouver, was driven aground near Bellingham. The crew was taken off and the boat salvaged by the United States Coast Guard.

The Canadian Coast Guard came to the rescue of Potlatch, owned by W. D. Meakes of Victoria, after it went aground in Canadian waters. It was towed into Nanaimo for repairs.

BOOS BOMBARD BUNNY

STOCKHOLM (AP) — John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, was booed and shouted down when he tried to make a speech after the final of the world hockey championships here.

"Ladies and gentlemen," Ahearne set out at the ceremony Monday night but his voice was drowned out by thousands of spectators who shouted: "Get Lost, Ahearne" and "Go Canada go."

The vocal demonstration blotted out Ahearne's speech in presenting the Soviet victors with gold cups.

Canada withdrew from this year's competition when the European teams went back on an agreement to allow pros.

Vancouver Fencer Wins Three Titles

VANCOUVER — Magdy Conyd of the Vancouver YMCA scored a sweep in the Western Canada fencing championships which finished Sunday at the University of British Columbia.

Conyd captured the foil, sabre and epee titles.

Two University of Victoria fencers, Jed Chapin and Martin Murch, finished second and third in the foil. Murch also placed third in the epee behind Peter Bakonyi of the Vancouver Blades.

Vancouver's John Brekelman was second in the sabre, with Jim Berkins of Simon Fraser University third.

Charlton Club Fires Manager

LONDON (Reuters) — Eddie Firmani, former soccer ace with Italian clubs Inter-Milan and Sampdoria, has been dismissed as manager of the struggling English League Second Division club, Charlton Athletic.

Firmani, 37, took over as Charlton's manager in 1967 and the club almost gained promotion to the First Division last season when it finished third in the Second Division.

But it won only six games this season and is currently third from last.

Draft Fugitives, Deserters Find Help

VANCOUVER (CP) — A dusty old warehouse on the fringe of Vancouver's Chinatown is the end of the line for United States draft dodgers and deserters who arrive here tense and lonely after using a modern version of the slavery abolitionists' "underground railway."

The warehouse is the office of the local Committee to Aid American War Objectors, started in 1966 by two university professors and their wives.

Pete Maly, 27, himself a deserter, is the current counsellor and office manager, handling between six and eight new arrivals a day, although one day recently 17 deserters and draft dodgers ended up at the warehouse.

"We get a variety of reactions from new people when they arrive here. Some think they've found paradise and others are just relieved to be out of the States. The trip up here can be a pretty bad experience—the fear of being caught, the doubt, the worry. . . ."

For most the trip begins in a small draft counsellor's office in an American city—in a student union building, church basements or anti-war coffee-houses in army-base cities.

There he gets names and addresses for his trip across the U.S. and vital information about the best way to cross the border.

HELPFUL HINTS

A pamphlet printed by the committee offers advice:

—"When questioned by a cop, avoid saying 'Sir' a lot; that's becoming a dead giveaway;

—"Don't give employers your true address or any phone number;

—"Avoid small towns. College or university towns are usually good, for you can pose as a student;

—"Own only what you can carry easily. You may have to leave a place on short notice."

Mr. Maly has each draft dodger and deserter fill out a questionnaire when he arrives here which aids the committee in getting landed immigrant status for him. It covers marital status, job experience, education and other information of interest to Canadian immigration officials.

The committee also arranges for a lawyer to be present at any immigration hearing.

Supported by private donations, the committee also maintains two houses where war objectors can stay. One of the houses has had four visits from police in two weeks. Residents claim police go through mail and personal papers under the pretext of a search for illegal drugs.

But once in Canada, Mr. Maly said, deserters and draft dodgers are still not free of pressure from back home. He charged that known deserters are questioned by the RCMP routinely and the answers forwarded to the FBI.

CLAIM FBI HERE

Mrs. Francis Russell, a Vancouver woman who helps deserters, believed she recently had a visit from two FBI officers posing as door-to-door religious missionaries.

"They didn't want to talk about religion, but they wanted to talk about my views on the war in Vietnam and on such things as military deserters."

A similar thing occurred in 1968.

"We had a deserter staying in a cabin we own about an hour's drive from Vancouver. He telephoned one day to say he'd had a visit from the RCMP.

"We told him not to worry, but to telephone the next day. He didn't call so we drove up there. The place was a shambles—it looked as though there had been a struggle. He was gone and we never heard from him again."

Corn, sunshine, and 3 essential vitamins.

That's the recipe for a Kellogg's* Corn Flakes Breakfast. Big lazy ears of corn, soaking up days and days of summer sun. Big golden flakes made from this sunny corn. And now Kellogg's have fortified Corn Flakes with the important nourishment of three essential vitamins: thiamine, riboflavin, and niacinamide. All you need is a little milk and sugar, and you've got yourself a breakfast, and a morning, that couldn't be better. In fact, it sort of makes your whole day.

The best to you each morning.

Ontario Pavilion Puts Out Message

By JACK TRACY

OSAKA (CP) — Ontario has brought its trillium to this land of flowers, and officials at the province's Expo 70 pavilion say its message to the Japanese is going across "beautifully."

"We are getting 10,000 visitors a day and we expect more when the weather warms up," said Deputy Commissioner Frank Moritsugu of Toronto, Canadian-born of Japanese descent.

To Moritsugu, the province's message is one of youth and vitality exemplified in its young hosts, hostesses and Ontario Provincial Police unit and its film by an award-winning movie-maker.

"We are the only Canadian pavilion that has recruited all its hosts and hostesses entirely from Canada," he said.

"All had to take a 13-week course in the Japanese language. Now they can find their way around railway stations and even go shopping in downtown Osaka."

The pavilion's symbol is a stylized trillium, provincial flower, and a pavilion brochure points out it's related to a similar flower growing in Japan.

ADVERTISES URANIUM

The brochure also points out that Ontario has the Western world's largest uranium supply and has current contracts with uranium-short Japan for $250,000,000 worth of the metal.

The pavilion's show-piece is a 26-minute film Ontario made by Christopher Chapman whose A Place to Stand made for Expo 67 in Montreal won an Oscar.

Reports of some unfavorable reviews after the film's earlier screening in Toronto have filtered back here. And two young Ontario visitors, David Hall of Winterbourne and Steve Lichty of Wellesley, had complaints about it.

"It makes people think we do nothing but have parties in Ontario," they said.

The film is designed to show Ontario people in the festive spirit against the province's natural beauty. Ontarians are at play—bag-pipers skirling, Italians and West Indians cavorting on Centre Island in Toronto and Marlee at a party.

LIKED BY JAPANESE

But Moritsugu said Japanese comments on the movie are that it is "fascinating."

"I was talking with a Japanese in his 60s, a man who has been lecturing at universities here on film-making and he feels it's a study in pacing, fitted to the Japanese psychology," he said.

Chapman came to Japan two years before the fair to lay the ground-work for his film. It is shown on an 83-foot-wide curved screen, said to be the largest conventional-type screen at the fair, in an 800-seat theatre.

The pavilion staff that meets the public consists of 14 hosts, 13 hostesses and 14 OPP constables. All are under 30 except for two senior OPP sergeants. One provision in selection of the police unit was that all men had to be at least six feet tall.

The policemen now are so proficient in the language here that they can bark directions to crowds in Japanese with the same ease they would have in saying "Pull over" on the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway.

Legal Homes Provided For Gypsies

LONDON (AP) — After a few hundred years of roaming, British gypsies get legal homes Wednesday.

The Labor government has ruled that local governments in England and Wales must provide camping sites for them.

Twenty permanent gypsy sites have been built in Britain in the last five years, but the National Gypsy Council estimates another 200 are needed to care for Britain's 25,000 Romany wanderers.

The camping sites will give the gypsies water and sanitary facilities they have lacked most of the time.

Says Anthony Greenwood, housing and local government minister:

"I very much hope that the gypsies themselves will respond to this step by making a real effort to avoid the damage to amenities which at present sometimes results from their stay on unauthorized sites."

There are signs modern gypsies want to remain in one place for seven months of the year so their children can get an education. In one camp, the gypsies have begun a play group and in another a special nursery school.

The rest of the time, most of them want to travel to their traditional fairs and to seasonal work in the orchards and hop fields.

Gold Cord Award For Girl Guides From Nicholson

Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson will present Gold Cord Awards to British Columbia Girl Guides in Government House Wednesday at 2:15 p.m.

At the same time Thursday afternoon he will present the Queen's Scout and Queen's Venturer Awards.

Thursday evening, the lieutenant-governor and Mrs. Nicholson will attend the Royal Commonwealth Society dinner in the Faculty Club, University of Victoria.

Friday afternoon the lieutenant-governor will visit the Queen Alexandra Solarium and officially open the annual appeal for funds.

'Snow Time 70' Overhead Tonight

A joint Strategic Air Command and North American Air Defence Command air training exercise will take place this evening and early Wednesday morning over British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Canadian forces Air Defence Command radar and jet interceptors will take part in the exercise, which has been named Snow Time 70.

TENANT SETS DATE FOR BLANSHARD COURT OPENING

Leave It to Daisy, a Blooming Organizer

By PAT DUFOUR

Federal, provincial and city authorities appear to be taking orders from a diminutive women who moved into her new home at Blanshard Court this morning.

She's set the date for the official opening of the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal project for Saturday, April 11 at 2 p.m. and she's organizing all the details.

•

Mrs. Daisy Beckett stole the march on officialdom when she decided weeks ago to organize the event, which would normally have been handled by the city and contractor.

"I wrote to Mr. Groos in Ottawa and asked him to attend. He wrote back and said he'd be delighted.

"The Central Mortgage and Housing people phoned me when they heard about my opening. They said I'd beaten them to the gun. They have to cancel any other opening because you couldn't expect a busy member of parliament like Mr. Groos to fly out for two ceremonies."

•

A CMHC official said today the housing authority's public relations man would arrive from Vancouver Wednesday to check details with Mrs. Beckett. He'd be in a better position then to give information — but he thought the date was April 18.

Having financed 75 per cent of the project, CMHC hopes Mrs. Beckett sends them an invitation.

The ceremony will take place at the patio entrance of the Beckett unit with Public Works Minister W. N. Chant and David Groos sharing ribbon cutting honors.

Mrs. Beckett caused a flutter at a city council meeting when it was announced that she has bypassed the mayor and asked former alderman Robert Baird to officially turn the key of her home at the event.

City Hall was placated when Mrs. Beckett later invited Mayor Courtney Haddock to attend the ceremony.

"I asked my old friend Bob Baird to do the honors two years ago. I had no intention of letting him down," Mrs. Beckett explains.

•

Unorthodox though it may be, a total of 75 guests have accepted invitations to attend.

Only one has not yet replied—Social Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi.

"He should be here. After all, we're all part of his job."

Mrs. Beckett has asked Rev. John Watson of First Baptist Church to give the official blessing.

"He's the head of the Council of Churches in Victoria. This way I won't have people saying I favored one religion more than the other."

Once the 75 dignitaries have been given a tour of the Beckett home they'll be entertained—buffet style.

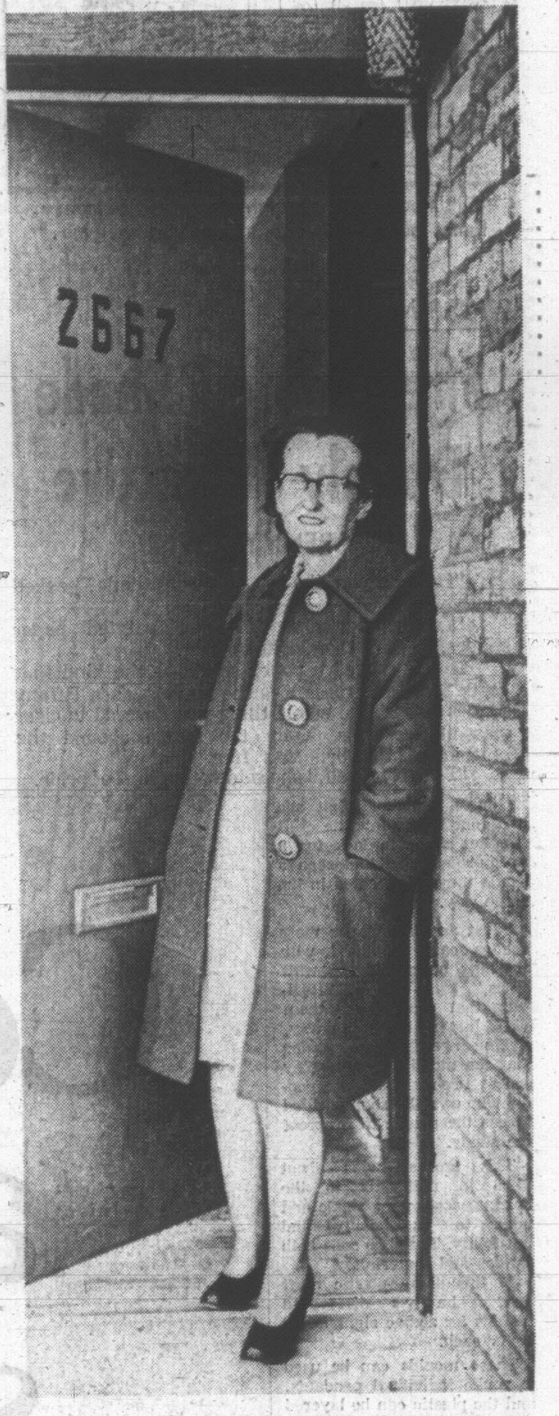
"Most of these official openings are dull affairs—with no food. I intend to do this one properly.

•

"The menu's all set—tasty sandwiches, olives, stuffed celery, pickles, pastries, tea and coffee. I've also ordered a huge cake that's going to have 'Welcome to the Open House' in gold," she said as outside the first 31 of the 180 families who will live in the project went on with the work of moving in.

Mrs. Beckett has been gathering a "hope chest" for the last six months, saving her pennies in order to buy new drapes and towels in local sales.

"The place is going to look really good and the floors are going to be polished to a shine."



Daisy Beckett jumped the gun.

Aldermen Delay Key Lease On CPR Waterfront Plan

Victoria city's community planning committee this morning refused to give Canadian Pacific Railway a letter agreeing to renewal of a federal water lease off Belleville Street.

The company has already applied for renewal of the lease for a 50-year period but requires the city's blessing before the transport department issues the necessary documents.

And this morning the city was stubbornly refusing to issue that permission until Marathon Realty, the real estate arm of the CPR, guarantees a first class development on the site of the old CPR ferry terminal.

Although the lease in question is relatively small it occupies a key position on the site of the CPR proposed new docking facility for the Victoria-Seattle ferry.

CAN'T PROCEED

David Mooney told the committee for Marathon that his company couldn't really go ahead with the building of a new ferry slip until it was guaranteed tenure.

The city pointed out through Ald. Peter Pollen, committee chairman, that it would be remiss in its duty to citizens if it did not use every weapon available to protect the interests of the people.

At press time today the impasse was unresoved although Marathon and the city had agreed to strike a working committee to try and resolve the problem.

STARTED YEAR AGO

The complicated history of the Belleville Street development proposal commenced almost a year ago when the CPR and Marathon unveiled a master-plan for Belleville Street at a press conference aboard Princess Marguerite.

Victoria architect John A Di Castri was named designer of a $3 million project.

Some months went by before a modified plan surfaced. It was entitled "Scheme Three." Scheme Two has never been made public.

But even "Scheme Three" was just a step towards other reductions in the master-plan. In all, five schemes were prepared and the fifth presented to the city last Wednesday.

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh described the final draft as "totally unrelated to Scheme Four" which had won cautious council support.

GREENHALGH
. . . "totally unrelated"

Ald. Peter Pollen termed "Scheme Five" as "so modified that it was unacceptable to the city." It was valued at $1 million.

With the city rejecting the latest Marathon plan and also tabling a bylaw which would have relaxed setback rules in the area, the company said it would go ahead anyway.

Marathon said the final draft was not a first-class project, but pointed out that it didn't need city approval to build whatever it wanted on its own property.

This morning the city pulled an ace out of the hat to counter the threat of unsatisfactory development.

Over the weekend city officials discovered that three CPR water leases from the federal government come up for renewal within the next two years. One of them, the key to the new docking facilities, is up for renewal on April 19, 1970.

All three need city approval before Ottawa will grant the renewals.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE

Pollen told Marathon this morning he would not recommend council approval until he had a written guarantee from Marathon stating that the old terminal development would be first class.

"It is not our intention to place the CPR in an untenable position," Pollen said. "We need them and they need us. They keep asking us 'what do you want?' The answer to that is simple. We want scheme one. And if we can't have that we want to be in a position to work with them towards something mutually acceptable."

City Manager Dennis Young said he would like to see the entire CPR-Marathon concept for development in the area.

"It is becoming obvious that this (the terminal proposal and the ferry slip) is just a very small part of the over-all plan," he said.

"CHEW AWAY"

"I'm afraid that if we just permit this without safeguards it will be like permitting them to just chew away at the harbor in bits and pieces."

Mooney said it was imperative that the CPR receive the city's letter of approval quickly if the new ferry dock was to be finished in time for the tourist season.

"There is some urgency," he said. "And we have actually started construction."

Young suggested that in addition to the city's approval of the granting of a lease Marathon might also like a building permit for the project underway.

Further discussions were scheduled for this afternoon.

For Two Bits You Won't Get Kicked Off Bus

B.C. Hydro's switch Wednesday to the exact fare system does not mean that anyone without correct change will be automatically prevented from getting on the bus.

This was disclosed in a recent interview with H. R. Halls, manager of the Greater Victoria transit system. The exact fare requirement is being introduced along with the fare boost to 25 cents cash for adults to cut costs as well as increase revenue.

Halls said that "if someone comes on board with, say, a dollar bill, the driver certainly is not going to throw him off.

* * *

"That person has two choices — he can try to find some other passenger who can change the dollar or he can put it in the fare box and the driver will give him a 75-cent refund slip which he can get cashed at our office on Gorge Road."

Lloyd Graber, general manager of the Seattle Transit System which introduced exact fare requirements a year ago, said in a telephone interview that "it has worked very well and was willingly accepted by our riders as a means of protecting our drivers, several of whom had been robbed the previous year.

"It did not cause any substantial inconvenience."

* * *

Halls, noting there has been criticism before the change over, said exact fares "are no different than having to use exact change for parking meters, pay phones, candy, drink and cigarette dispensers which are accepted now by the public."

He said it will produce some internal savings and will help buses to maintain scheduled speeds despite increasing traffic congestion.

However, he said, the main purpose is to retain safety standards because drivers cannot safely make change while driving on today's congested streets.

Halls made his comments during interviews by Times reporter John Mika who looked into public transit's role in meeting traffic congestion problems here. His series of three reports start on Wednesday.

Garage Operators May Try Business Tax Rebellion

Victoria service station operators meet Thursday night to press their fight with city hall over substantially increased 1970 business tax assessments.

About 20 appeals lodged against the raises—some several times their 1969 levels—were turned down by the court of revision this month. The business tax assessment roll rose $3 million this year to $12.5 million.

City assessor Alf Joyce said the whole roll was revised to be consistent with current conditions. Assessments are based on a number of factors, including rental values.

Bob Dunsmuir, leader of the Automotive Retailers Association group, said the membership "certainly is going to protest; I don't know whether it will do any good, but we're not sitting back.

"It is rapidly getting to the point where a man can't afford to be in small business." Dunsmuir cited his own assessment of $14,700, up $6,700 in the past year and $11,000 in four years.

He reckons he will have to pay the equivalent of $50 a month more rent to support the expected business tax, and to raise $50 he will have to do $450 a month additional business.

Joseph Armitage, operating a new station at the top of Yates, said he does not know where the money for higher taxes is going to come from.

"I'm stuck for about $800 I wasn't expecting," he said.

Dunsmuir echoed the sentiment: "They came up with a whopper."

He said a new approach would be made to city hall "to ask if it will reconsider its decision."

Association members will also explore the idea of not paying the business tax.

"We get nothing out of this. It's just a donation," Armitage said.

TWO MEN WALK AWAY FROM IMPRISONMENT

Donald James Kammerle, 21, of Duncan and Archie Gordon Beck, 21, of Nanaimo, were still at large today after escaping from William Head prison Monday night.

Prison authorities said the pair, both serving three-year sentences for the same breaking and entering offences and both due to be released next March, walked away from the minimum security institution between 8:30 and 9 p.m.

Kammerle is five feet nine, 140 to 150 pounds, with hazel eyes and medium brown hair. Beck is five feet 11, 145 pounds, with blue eyes, blond hair and a light complexion.

Arthur Mayse . . .

WE WERE WALKING THE Sayward Beach tide flats on Sunday when, close inshore, we glimpsed a dark head smaller than a seal's. The creature trailed only the merest suggestion of a wake. As we watched, it rolled a sleek back above the surface. A tapered tail flipped clear, then vanished in a flirt of spray.

Presently the head showed again, a fish shining between its jaws. We watched without moving while a land otter hauled out on a weedy rock-nub and proceeded to eat its catch.

We began to ease closer. But a couple of watchful crows scolded and hopped about. The otter turned his head with a flash of grey throat-patch, then flowed off the rock to vanish with scarce a ripple.

A sight to remember. It raised questions. What kind of fish? And would the otter have a mate not far away? But the man who was wise in such matters, and who would spare time from his busy day to talk about them, will do so no more.

Only a matter of hours after we saw the otter at his fishing, a friend called to tell me that Dr. G. Clifford Carl had died.

To the working press, he was Cliff Carl, a naturalist of solid reputation with an easy voice and a friendly way. Let nature intrude upon the news and it was almost automatic to dial the Legislative Buildings and ask for his office local in the Provincial Museum.

In our newspaper library are useful handbooks Carl had written. To these he added the excursions into the natural world that appeared on our Times Page 5 as often as he could turn his hand to them.

Drawn from a wealth of knowledge and experience, they were more than merely informative. They offered relief from the other, man-made world in which most of us spend our days.

Back in the years when British Columbia's Provincial Museum was cramped into a wing of the greystone Buildings, I would once in a while drop in on Cliff Carl.

The director's desk was always cluttered—in this he was a true biologist. Much of its overload consisted of reports, observations and messages from his impressive network of volunteer scouts.

Any number of men who work close to wild nature knew about him and his work. When they came on the strange or the curious, they would send him word.

Whales? Well here was a report from a lightkeeper, and a fisherman up the west coast had written him an interesting letter . . .

He would lean forward with his elbows on his desk; and whatever else we talked about, Cliff Carl would sooner or later get around to his dearest hope.

This was for a new museum which would properly house and present the cultural and natural history of a province rich in both.

So much was laid away in storage that could be effectively displayed. There were West Coast canoes, for instance. He would tell me in loving detail about those deep-sea craft of an earlier era. The chances are that you've seen and marvelled at them in the fine new museum that opened its carved wooden doors in August of 1968.

Many of the concepts embodied in the museum are Carl's. And as its first director, it fell on him to weather the teapot tempests that began even before the opening.

The Nootka whaling scene behind its shimmering rain-curtains had its highly-vocal critics. So did the rain-curtains themselves, also the distribution of totems, the carvings on the doors, and other details.

Through all this, the director kept his cool and got on with the job. As he saw the museum role, it is a job that will never be complete.

On Monday morning we went down to Heritage Court and the Provincial Museum which is now also a memorial to a man and his dream.

A surprising number of adults and vacationing children were roving its floors. We spent a while in the Hall of the Sea—Cliff Carl's special project, and the one which he as retired director had meant to concentrate upon.

Later, drifting on, we found among the animals a handsome fellow with dark head, sleekly-furred back and tapered rudder of a tail.

A land otter, mounted in the very stance of the one we'd watched on the rock out along Sayward Beach.

Woman Falls to Death After Slip on Balcony

A 63-year-old city woman fell to her death Monday morning from the balcony of her fifth-floor apartment when she slipped while washing a glass divider.

Mrs. Jessie Robertson, who lived in apartment 507 of the Beckley Manor, 548 Dallas, was using a step-style stool to clean the divider separating the balcony from that of the next apartment, police said.

The neighboring apartment, suite 506, is occupied by the victim's brother-in-law, Herbert, and his wife Mona.

Mrs. Mona Robertson saw her sister-in-law washing the divider shortly before 10 a.m., then heard a scream and ran next door to find the woman had fallen, police said.

Police believe the woman had tried to remove a board, partially covering the bottom of the divider, while standing on the stool, lost her balance and fell, taking the board with her.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital at about 10:20 a.m.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said this morning after receiving a full report from police that he is making the ruling of "pure accident" in his inquiry.

Mrs. Robertson is survived by her husband, James William Robertson, at home, and four brothers, Jack Brown, of Tuscon, Ariz., Bert Brown, Toronto, Roderick Brown, Regina, and David Brown, Vancouver.

Funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers chapel at 1:15 p.m. Thursday with Rev. J. L. W. McLean officiating.

Fire-Proofed Shade Doubly Attractive

By PENNY SAVER

"How do you like my new lampshade?" asked Gladys.

"Looks like one of those painted paper shades," I said, then looked closer.

It was indeed a paper shade — the kind that costs $3.29 and resembles the famous glass Tiffany shades — but the whole thing was covered in clear glass-like crystals. Only the fringe around the bottom of the bell was free.

"I did it myself," she said with a hint of pride.

Gladys explained that she had gone to her favorite craft supplies store to look for a new project and had seen a shade they had treated in the same way.

"Just as plain paper these shades can't be used with anything larger than 40-watt bulbs," said Gladys. "Realizing that people used them with larger bulbs anyway, risking fires, and reasoning that the molding plastic they sell is fire-resistant, the people who own the shop decided to use the plastic to fireproof the shade."

This process adds about $3.25 in materials to the original cost of the shade and adds to its beauty and durability. The shop sells both shades and materials.

In this same plastic craft line, Gladys discovered moulds for zodiac signs for 89 cents each.

These moulds can be used to make individual pendants, and the plastic can be layered to give, say, a yellow Leo on a black background. The figures could also be incorporated into a larger item — perhaps a decorated box, or a lamp shade. The moulds are re-useable.

The shop has some pendants made up already, but it would be much more fun to make your own.

Gladys also found a paint-on liquid which dries into crystaline shapes — like frost patterns on a window paine.

The liquid comes in a wide range of colors, greens, reds, violets, blues and so forth which can be painted on any hard surface such as glass, or plastic or even metal. A 12-ounce bottle costs 89 cents.

This makes it easy for anyone, child or adult, to make an attractive bottle even more attractive or to transform a moderately dull useful pot into an attractive ornament. Gladys said the shop had one of those lidded glass apothecary bottles painted for display and the paint was just a bit translucent, just as frost is.

To finish off the edges in style, the shop sells lacy gilt trims in a wide variety of sizes and shapes.

There are strips for trimming borders and snow-flake shapes for centres. Made of a very light-weight cardboard, these could also be used for cake tops or home-made greeting cards.

Packages of these gilt trims begin at 10 cents.

If you would like to know where to shop for these items, please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

TODAY'S RECIPE

MANHATTAN CLAM CHOWDER

4 tbsp. butter or margarine
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
1 cup diced raw potatoes
6 cups boiling water
2 envelopes tomato-vegetable soup mix
¼ tsp. thyme
dash of pepper
1 7-oz. can minced clams, drained

In a 3-quart saucepan, saute onion and celery in the butter for five minutes. Stir in potatoes and 2 cups water. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Add remaining water, packaged soup, thyme and pepper. Re-cover and simmer an additional 10 minutes. Stir in clams and re-heat. (Makes 6-8 servings).

If bacon is used, fry four pieces in saucepan until crisp and drain. Then saute celery and onion in the bacon and omit the butter. Complete directions as above. Crumble the bacon and add it with the clams just before re-heating and serving.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Noisy Studies

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Where did people get the crazy idea that people can concentrate only in complete silence? All a silent classroom produces is a bunch of nail-biting, finger-drumming, foot-shaking nervous kids. Dead silence is unnatural, and makes people fidgety. It you doubt this, the next time you are in church, if the service lasts over an hour, how hard does the bench get? And how many places do you suddenly itch?

The noise level in most hospitals is higher than it is in the average classroom. That's why we have so many "educated" graduates who have beautiful paper qualifications, but can't perform. There just aren't many job situations that meet the silence and orderliness demanded in the average classroom.

Do you want to know why Johnny can't read? He's asleep with his eyes open.—A Teacher.

DEAR ABBY: Remember the mother who asked you if a child could study properly with the television, radio or stereo on? Well, years ago, I wouldn't allow it either. In fact, I was delighted that here at last was a good lever a mother could use: "Finish those lessons before turning on any of those distractions?" But a wise neighbor, Alberta Smith said, "Nay, nay, you'll be sorry one day." How right Alberta was!

I always thought I was doing the right thing by insisting that my children have complete silence in which to study. Now my daughter is in a classroom that must accommodate two grades at the same time, and she is having great difficulty concentrating on her work while the other class is reciting. She used to be a straight A student. This semester she will barely pass. So we are changing our study habits but fast. Besides, when children grow up and go to work, do you think everyone around them is going to be quiet so they can do their thing?—Alberta's Friend.

DEAR ABBY: Your column attests to the fact that many bright children are able to concentrate wih background noise, but unfortunately, according to recent research, about 60 per cent of children with learning disabilities cannot handle background noises which compete for their attention.

Most people need a little familiar background noise to feel safe and to know they are in touch with their environment. Anyone who has had a sudden hearing loss will tell you this, but don't try to explain it to the lady who plugs up her ears at night.

Abby, I'll go along with your original advice: "Show me the report card and I'll give you my answer."

If a child does well despite background noise, don't worry. If he is not doing well, why take a chance!—Jack Katz, PhD. (Audiologist)

DEAR ABBY: I can't tell you why, but I cannot study unless I have some "background noise." I have tried to concentrate in a room with dead silence, and I get so nervous I just about jump out of my skin!

I am a freshman at a large university, and I haven't had lower than an A since I was in the eighth grade.—Needs Noise in Ann Arbor.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Boutiques of New York Rival The Quaint Shops of Europe

By EUNICE FRIED

The cities of Europe aren't the only places where a vacationer can go shopping in fascinating boutiques. In New York City, the vacationer will find several areas in which boutiques are clustered. One of them is Manhattan's upper West Side, where prices are varied, always reasonable, and the atmosphere is delightful.

Perhaps the leader in chic is Barbarenda on West 72nd Street. Owner Brenda French, originally from England, supplies Scandinavian, Italian and French imports amid a decor of purple, white and silver. On the same street, Creations 'n Things offers paper goods, rag dolls, other whimsies, boots and shoes, and young clothes. There's a play pen where young mothers can park the kiddies while they shop.

Charivari lives under an old sign, "Established in 1886," which owner Selma Weiser couldn't bear to take down when she opened Charivari. It's on Broadway near 86th Street, is decorated with Aubrey Beardsley prints and old theatre posters, carries colorful youth clothes.

Cold hard facts about soft clean heat

Start with a basic fact. Everyone wants a warm, comfortable home. No cold spots. No uncertainty as to fuel supply. No breakdowns.

Electric Heat gives you all that. Constant, even heat throughout the entire house. Plus individual temperature control. Each room is as warm or as cool as you like it to be.

Then add the advantages of totally clean, completely silent heat. Add the space you gain because no furnace is required, no cumbersome tank. Add the time you save cleaning grimy walls, consider never having to order heating fuel again.

Beginning to make sense? Find out about Electric Heat. Call your B.C. Hydro office.

Without charge or obligation you can have a recommendation of the type and size of electric heating best suited to your home and an honest estimate of what it would cost.

The fact is, more than 24,000 B.C. homeowners now enjoy Electric Heat.

STUDENT NURSES

Third Year Keeps Staff Costs Down

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — The nurses who direct nursing schools and nursing staff say nurses can be trained in two years and do not need the equivalent of a third year in practical work.

What that third year does is offset the cost of the nurses' training and keep nursing staff costs down, says Laura Barr, executive director of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

Miss Barr was commenting in an interview on a resolution passed by directors of schools of nursing and of nursing service at a conference on nursing education.

The resolution supports RNAO efforts to have two-year nursing courses established as the norm in Ontario.

With a few exceptions, hospital schools of nursing in all provinces train students in three years. Part of that training is in-hospital work. In Ontario most schools operate on the two-plus-one system, two years of training and a year of interning at a training hospital.

During that year, Miss Barr says, nurse interns are paid about $325 a month. Registered nurses in urban areas may earn $525 as starting pay.

"The importance of this resolution is that the directors who prepare students and the directors who work with interns don't find this third year useful."

Professional Interest

Miss Barr says the two-plus-one course was established by the provincial health department to operate from 1965 to 1975. She says the government has given no indication of any plan to drop the third year. There are 4,000 nurses interning in Ontario now, and the RNAO is concerned that nothing be done suddenly.

The conference resolution has been forwarded to the College of Nurses, the nurse registering body, to support other resolutions under discussion with the Ontario Hospital Services Commission.

Miss Barr says there is increasing interest in the profession in the question of student nurses receiving free training and offsetting the cost by the work they do while they are students. Not only is the value of the traditional system doubted by some senior nurses but many students would prefer to pay their own way, Miss Barr says.

She says she wonders how many people are aware that the cost of training nurses is paid for out of government health insurance premiums. It is therefore tied to both federal and provincial health department financing.

"It is very complicated and would take careful untangling if any change were made.

"We have no solution at the moment. Nursing appreciates the kind of support the public has given us. But we wonder if nurses should become more independent. If the traditional system isn't useful to the profession or the public, should we take a new look at it?"

School Moves in Modules In Vancouver Experiment

VANCOUVER (CP) — Detentions, the strap, school bells, hour-long classes and hair and dress restrictions are as passe as the little red schoolhouse at King George secondary school.

Last September the school adopted a system called "flexible modular scheduling" which involved dividing up the school week into 105 periods 20 minutes long, instead of the 25 one-hour classes as before.

Each student has a different timetable with classes as long as five or six 20-minute periods, or "modules," and areas of unscheduled time which he can use to get extra help from a counsellor or teacher, catch up on lab assignments and research, or study or relax in the common room.

Everything from maxi through mini with faded blue jeans in between is worn at the school, which has abolished dress restrictions.

The "modular" system has also done away with impersonal teacher-student relationships, since in some cases now there may be as little as 12 students taking a course at one time, allowing for more individual instruction.

It's also possible for a student to challenge a course if he feels he has mastered the material. Min Sugimoto, King George vice-principal, said one student, after three months of Math 10, asked to be tested by his teacher. He passed and now is deep in Math 11.

"This challenge system isn't in full gear yet," said the principal, W. G. Blake. "Unfortunately we find that the majority of the students like to move along with the herd. However, for those in a hurry, the opportunity is theirs to go at their own speed, something not possible under the old system."

'We Are Political' NOW Declares

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Organization of Women says it's time for American politicians to take up the cause of women's rights.

To get action, 300 members of the feminist group, holding a national conference in Chicago, voted to back political candidates, regardless of party, who make women's rights part of their campaign.

"We are reaffirming we are political," Lucy Komisar of New York City, a NOW vice-president, said.

Delegates to the national conference decided to emphasize two major women's issues in the year ahead:

—A total wiping away of sex discrimination in local, state and federal laws.

—The establishment of child care centres around the country.

Miss Komisar said in an interview that one out of four women with children less than six years old works and only two per cent of these children are in day care centres.

She said NOW will support action by labor, industry and the federal government to build such centres. As an alternative, she suggested the federal government could give tax deductions to offset the cost of private centres for children of working women.

The organization is planning a national day of protest Aug. 26, the 50th anniversary of women's suffrage.

Group Raises Funds For Indian Projects

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The strings attached to government money doom Canadian Indians to failure in any project they undertake, claims Delia Opekekow.

Miss Opekekow is organizing secretary of the Ontario Natives Development Fund, a Niagara Falls group formed to raise money from the community for native projects.

"Indian organizations can't work as effectively as they should if they have government money," she said. "We have to fight to get any."

The fund channels money into native groups only on request. Otherwise, said Miss Opekekow, it would appear that the fund controlled the projects.

There is hope that the fund will be used to develop a "cottage industry" for the souvenir market, as well as native artistry and craftsmanship.

Projects suggested are a recreation program for isolated Indian teen-agers in Northern Ontario; sponsorship of a hockey team in Moose Factory; a social group for Northern Ontario Metis and the establishment of a fish plant in Northern Ontario.

Miss Opekekow said that before the majority of Ontario's 100,000 native people join the white society, they must be given the tools of money and knowledge. So they won't become entrapped in city slums, Miss Opekekow says, "we want to raise standards on the reserve first."

Many educational aids were lacking on reserves because people didn't know they are available. "You can't force something down a person's throat if he doesn't want it," she said.

Expo 67 brought Czechoslovakia to you.

May 1, Air Canada takes you to Czechoslovakia.

On May 1, Prague becomes Air Canada's newest destination. And a whole new world for you to explore. Remember the fabulous Czechoslovakia pavilion at Expo 67 . . . the exquisite glass and crystal, the unbelievably intricate hand-carved Bohemian village in action, and the most talked about film-theatres ever to come to North America. Remember the hours-long lines, and the many disappointed visitors who never managed more than a glimpse of this land of history and legend, of color and irrepressible life. That was yesterday. Today, Prague and all of Czechoslovakia are as accessible as your nearest Travel Agent or Air Canada. As of May 1, Air Canada (with CSA Czechoslovak Airlines) jets twice weekly to Prague, gateway to all of Central Europe. Fares start as low as $479* from Victoria.

Buffy St. Marie Sings for Cree

TORONTO (CP) — Blue jeans, moccasins, a repertoire of protest songs and convictions: Buffy Saint Marie has most of the tools to organize and better the position of the North American Indian.

The Cree folk singer, born on the Piapot reserve in Saskatchewan, is organizing, but in her own way, at her own pace.

"Everybody's always saying, 'Why don't you people get together and unite?' " Buffy said in Toronto recently where she appeared at a benefit concert for the Ontario Native Development Fund. "We've spent the past 10 years getting organized."

Besides playing for benefits of this type, she has undertaken a number of individual projects for Indians.

There now are three students at university in California studying under a project Buffy established to put Indian people through law school.

The best sort of help is financial, she says: "It takes money to do anything, and the best way I can think of for raising money is to hold concerts."

WANT HER FOR FREE

Experience has proven there are pitfalls to this approach, however.

"Most people's idea of an Indian benefit is some school asking me to sing for free—I've been done out of more money that way," she says bitterly.

Buffy started her singing career in college where she majored in Oriental philosophy and minored in elementary education.

To pay her way she sang in coffee-houses and occasionally on television.

Throughout, she never forgot her Indian heritage and obligations.

She talks freely of the inequity of the Indian's position.

"It terrifies you as an educated person, and even more as an Indian," she said. "The suicide rate among Indians is the highest, the infant mortality rate is the highest, we're the first on the list for government help and the last to receive it."

Jet Survives Explosion, Near Crash

SEATTLE (AP) — High over Alaska's remote wilderness an engine exploded on a Western Airlines jet. Jagged pieces of metal ripped through the fuselage.

Hours earlier, good visibility had prevented what could have been an in-flight collision over Alaska between two jets.

It all happened Saturday to Western Airlines veteran pilot Charles Davis.

First, an air traffic controller at Elmendorf, Alaska, inadvertantly scheduled both an inbound and outbound jet in the same lane of traffic at the Juneau, Alaska, airport.

A Federal Aviation Administration official said visibility was the only thing that prevented a "disaster" between two Western aircraft.

★ ★ ★

"Davis had Flight 724 in sight at all times and the nearest the two planes came to one another was two miles," he said.

Hours later, Davis' plane was jolted by a disintegrating engine that peppered the fuselage from the tail section to the cabin area of the four-engine Boeing 720B.

The captain quickly switched off power to the engine adjacent to the faulty one as a precautionary move. Davis said none of the metal penetrated the cabin carrying 12 passengers to Seattle from Anchorage, Alaska.

With only two engines providing power, he made an emergency landing at Ketchikan, Alaska, the nearest city with an airport large enough for the jetliner.

The shaken but unhurt passengers were transferred to another aircraft and continued their flight to Seattle.

Cash Balks At Nixon's Request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A while back President Nixon heard a tape of country music. One song, Welfare Cadilac, so fascinated him that he asked country singer Johnny Cash to sing it during a White House social April 17.

Welfare and civil rights leaders protested. They said Welfare Cadilac, spelled with one 'L,' pokes fun at people on welfare and depicts a shiftless father who relies on "fool" taxpayers.

Mrs. Connie Stuart, staff director to the first lady, said despite the controversy Nixon did not repudiate his request and was leaving it up to Cash.

Mrs. Stuart said she talked with Cash by telephone and he made clear if the choice were his alone he would rather not sing Welfare Cadilac.

PORTRAIT that became as familiar as Mona Lisa for cigarette smokers in the Second World War brings back memories for its model, retired Chief Petty Officer J. B. Smith.

This Smith's Face Is Very Familiar

By PAT DUFOUR

Helen of Troy had a face that's reputed to have launched 1,000 ships. Jack Smith didn't do too badly with his, either.

During the latter part of the Second World War you couldn't buy a package of Players cigarettes without having Jack's face staring back at you.

How was he chosen to sit for a portrait that was to enjoy better circulation than any best-seller?

By being belligerent.

He tells it this way:

"I was aboard HMCS Ottawa when she was torpedoed in the Atlantic. They used to send us fellows ashore for six months after a thing like that so we'd have a chance to get back to normal.

"There I was in 1943, a gunnery instructor in Toronto. This particular day I'd marched all the men in the barracks down to Sunnyside and I didn't like the way they did it. So I bawled them out and made them do it again. I guess I was feeling kind of belligerent."

Whatever the emotion, it caught the fancy of artist Marion Long, RCA, OSA, who'd been commissioned to paint a "sea dog" for Imperial Tobacco Co.

She contacted the officer in charge, found out her unsuspecting subject was a PO J. B. Smith and Smith was "drafted" to act as a model.

Months later Smith's face dominated billboards across the country.

"I still remember how I felt when I was walking with my sister and she nudged my arm to show me what was on the billboards. It was kind of weird."

He never received any royalties for posing for the portrait.

Smith laughs now but he admits that the "pretty boy" ribbing he suffered from his shipmates got to be tiresome at times.

He learned to live with them, however, until he retired in 1948 as a chief petty officer with "28 years and 109 days under my belt."

Up until December Smith had never seen the portrait which now dominates one of the living room walls of his home at 902 Dellwood.

The company presented it to him after his daughter, Mrs. Robert Brown of Toronto spent two years trying to track it down.

Now 66, Smith feels on a par with royalty when he admires it.

"You know what really makes me feel good? When Marion Long painted me she'd just returned from England where she painted portraits of the royal family.

"You might say that this Smith has a real tie with Buckingham Palace."

Lecturer Jailed for Trafficking

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Robert L. Zinn, 26, has been speaking at Spokane area schools recently on his life as a drug addict. Monday he was sentenced to not more than 20 years in prison.

Superior Court Judge Raymond F. Kelly imposed the sentence after Zinn pleaded guilty to a charge of distributing a dangerous drug (marijuana) to a minor.

Zinn indicated he felt he would simply go back on drugs if he were granted probation. Judge Kelly said he would recommend Zinn serve his time at the state's intermediate facility at Shelton enabling him to continue his education.

Zinn, in the company of a deputy prosecuting attorney, has appeared at seven Spokane area schools in recent weeks, telling of his life since he started using marijuana in 1963 and then graduating to progressively stronger drugs.

Stripper's Art Bastion Closes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Burlesque queens at the New Follies Theatre took a final bump and grind Monday night as the city's last refuge for the stripper's art closed its doors.

"It's like—well, like somebody took my teddy bear away," said Annette, a 20-year-old stripper from Seattle, awaiting a stage call at one of the last shows.

Headliner Kathy Summers—"forget my age, just call me a veteran"—disagreed.

"Frankly, this closing, it doesn't shake me that much."

The buxom blonde said money from burlesque had enabled her to raise a son now in the U.S. marines and buy a 600-acre ranch in Arizona with "all of 48 horses."

"Now I'm going to sit back and enjoy my well-gotten gains," she said.

Operator Tiny Becker, a 30-year veteran of burlesque, said the show was making money.

"We were able to pay as much as $2,000 a week to the top stars and still clear a profit," he said.

But the noon-to-midnight hours were a "real killer," Becker explained. "They don't call it a grind house for nothing.

There seemed little doubt, however, that money was a factor in the closing. The theatre will reopen Friday with a program of nudie movies and stage productions at increased prices.

Journal Scores Media Profits

OTTAWA (CP) — The money-making drive of newspapers and broadcasting stations corrupts their primary uses as vehicles of information and democratic debate, says the Winnipeg-based journal, Canadian Dimension.

Any reform of press and broadcasting structures should aim finally at "the elimination or the neutralization of the money-making function altogether," the journal says in a submission to the special Senate committee on mass media. Right at the start, it says it cannot take the committee's work seriously.

Ownership by the public at large would be the best way to assure development of information systems that are truly free, Canadian and appropriate to current social demand for variety and individualism rather than force-fed mass culture, it says.

But should establishment of publicly-owned national newspapers on the model of a more energetically-public CBC prove impossible, commercialism's interference with the free flow of information could be modified or eliminated by other means.

SUGGEST SHARING

Canadian Dimension suggests newspaper reliance on commercial profit could be moderated if newspapers shared common printing facilities and their total advertising revenue.

The market mentality of broadcasting could be modified if the CBC asserted its public role instead of moving to mimic commercial broadcasting.

The views are presented in a 10,000-word essay which examines the function of information media in society and their actual performances in Canada.

The essay, released today, will be presented to the Davey committee when it resumes hearings April 14.

Canadian Dimension is an eight-times-a-year journal of opinion edited by a group led by Cy Gonick, New Democratic member of the Manitoba legislature.

Canadian Dimension "began and remains a forum of left-wing opinion in Canada," Mr. Gonick said in a Winnipeg interview. There is "no connection" between the magazine and the NDP.

The magazine has a press run of 7,500 and sells for 75 cents a copy in news stands across the country. Paid circulation, Mr. Gonick said, is 6,800.

It says in an introduction it does not expect the Senate committee to act on its views and it cannot take the work of the committee seriously.

"We are persuaded that the committee, in its findings, will fail to come to grips with the real problems of the media in Canada, because those problems derive from the prevailing economic and political system."

The reality of the system is business power, which has the mass media as its ideological reflection, helping to uphold the status quo, the journal says. The reality is compounded by the trend towards submerging the Canadian economy and the media into the United States system.

Canadian Dimension is not scheduled to be represented at the committee's public hearings, which opened in December and wind up next month. But its submission was issued for publication by the committee.

In the CBC, Canadian Dimension says, Canada gave itself the basis of a community broadcasting system with a degree of autonomy from editorial interference, both from the market system on one hand and an ivory-tower elite on the other.

EVOKES CRITICISM

"An excruciating broadcasting tradition, it necessarily evokes continuous criticism from all strata of the population and in the long run it has a prodding, integrative effect towards a tolerant, cohesive society."

However, the autonomy has been eroded by CBC administrators in recent years who have tried to disarm criticism and permitted the CBC to drift into competition with U.S.-style broadcasting, the journal says.

At the very moment when the U.S. system is denounced at home and alternatives are sought there, Canadian broadcasters are looking forward to the day when the CBC will be an adjunct of the American mercantile broadcasting system, Canadian Dimension says.

Private broadcasters and their newspaper allies attack the Canadian-devised broadcasting manner—the publicly-owned system—and use their argument that all freedoms depend on free-market ideology to justify their encroachment on the Canadian system.

Canadian Dimension recommends that the CBC should be withdrawn further from the market system, advertising should be taxed 100 per cent and, at least, all broadcasting networks should be publicly owned.

"As long as one network adheres to American criteria during peak viewing hours, the other network has no choice but to follow," and all of Canada is imprisoned by the tyranny of conforming to the ideology of private enterprise.

N.Y. Papers In Talks With Unions

NEW YORK (AP) — Members of 10 unions worked without labor contracts at the New York area's four major daily newspapers today while their leaders pressed publishers to increase their wage offer of 16.5 per cent over three years.

The Printers Union began a job action at the New York Times when the old contracts expired at midnight Monday night.

Bertram A. Powers, president of the union local, called a series of chapel or local meetings.

He told the printers the union's intention was not to "interfere with the newspapers' operation, only the production of ads."

The printers also held chapel meetings at The Daily News and The New York Post. They did not meet at the fourth paper in the negotiations, the Long Island Press.

Copter Quits In Arctic; Trio Saved

TRENTON, Ont. (CP) — Three men whose helicopter was forced down Friday on a scientific expedition in the James Bay area were picked up Monday and flown to Fort George, Que., about 400 miles north of Timmins, Ont.

A Canadian Forces spokesman said the three showed no ill effects from their experience, and are expected to resume their survey of the polar bear population in the James Bay region as soon as their helicopter is picked up and made airworthy.

The three men are Arctic explorer Thomas Henry Manning, 59, of Merrickville, Ont., scientist-trainee Ivars Sills of Greenland and helicopter pilot Eugene Vinet, 35, of Arnprior, Ont.

The Canadian Forces spokesman said it is believed their helicopter iced up in 10 to 15-degree-below-zero weather and was forced to land. A Canadian Forces transport helicopter picked the men up after they were spotted Monday by search-and-rescue planes.

Bomb Factory Found

CHICAGO (AP) — Police uncovered Monday what they described as a bomb factory in a North Side apartment building where they reported finding 59 sticks of dynamite, an explosive liquid, weapons and ammunition. A man was arrested. Bomb experts said the explosives, if detonated, could have destroyed the three-storey building and much of the residential block.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

RED SKELTON. 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6; 8:30 Channel 7. George Gobel and The Original Cast are Red's guests tonight. Gobel, in one sketch as a henpecked husband, escapes by answering Freddie the Freeloader's advertisement for a roommate. In the silent spot, Red mimes a practical joker at a picnic.

★ ★ ★

JOHNNY CASH. 8:30 p.m., Channel 8. Singers Kenny Rogers and the First Edition and Roy Orbison are guests, as is humorist Shel Silverstein. Johnny sings about truckdrivers in his Train segment. Other numbers on the program include Rock Island Line, I Got Stripes and Six Days on the Road.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 7:30 p.m., Channel 7. "The Lions Are Free" (repeat). This remarkably photographed documentary is a TV follow-up to that splendid adventure with the lion cubs in Africa captured in the movie, "Born Free." Bill Travers returns to Kenya in search of the lions he befriended and then let loose, several years ago. It's an enlightening trek into the African veldt where you'll be astonished to discover that lions, like elephants, of course, must now be considered to have excellent memories. An exciting adventure to a distant, little visited land, you and your children will enjoy.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. "The Brass Are Comin'" (repeat). Show number three from Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass, and it can boast handsome beach settings for its band numbers; cameo bits by Johnny Carson, Jimmy Stewart, Gene Kelly among others; animation; and comedy bits by Alpert and Petula Clark. Usually, Alpert prefers the ensemble approach, but here he does the song plugger routine with Jack Burns, and joins Petula kidding film techniques of directors Fellini, Andy Warhold and Alfred Hitchcock. The band numbers on the beach with California girls are pleasing, Herb's version of "Singin' in the Rain" with Petula has a sense of fun, and the hour ends with a straight concert of Alpert standards.

★ ★ ★

THE MOD SQUAD. 7:30 p.m., Channels 4, 8. "Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot." Sooner or later, most Hollywood-based series get around to a story about movies, and this is "Mod Squad's" version. A young film director is shooting a murder mystery based on an unsolved case and strange things begin to happen until he asks for aid from the police. Naturally, our mod cops show up on the lot for duty and the case is soon settled, but not before many skeletons are rattled in Hollywood closets.

McQUEEN. 9 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Rewrite Column Four. McQueen steps in to investigate when a fellow journalist is fired for no apparent reason. It seems the writer was about to open a can of worms that some people would rather not have opened.

★ ★ ★

BOLD ONES. 9:30 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. The Law Enforcers. Memo from the Class of '76 is a drama about teen-agers, parents and drugs. After arresting a busload of high school students Chief Danforth and DA Washburn face irate parents, then follow up the case's gravest angle—a search for contaminated LSD.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. "Goldilocks." An unpretentious, party animated version of the fairytale starring Bing Crosby and his family, offering songs and additional plot twists. Mainly, it's a vehicle for Bing's acress-minded daughter, Mary Frances, a cut little blonde cast as Goldilocks, who makes friends with the three bears and then faces a group of "anti-people" led by a grumpy bobcat. Bing helps with the singing chores, playing an affable Dad on a fishing trip, who tells the story to the restless kids to while away the time.

★ ★ ★

MOVIE OF THE WEEK. "Seven in Darkness." (1969) (repeat). Highly melodramatic tale. Although its plane-crash survivor theme is familiar, the fact that all the latter are blind people on their way to a convention adds an interesting gimmick to the film. Their efforts to cross the dangerous mountain terrain is visually suspenseful, and the on-location production is first-rate. Taking a cue from past films of this genre, the survivors are mostly stereotypes well played by Milton Berle, Sean Garrison, Barry Nelson, Lesley Warren and Dina Merrill.

★ ★ ★

MARCUS WELBY, M.D. 10 p.m., Channel 4. "Hello, Goodbye, Hello" (repeat). This was the premiere episode of Robert Young's general practitioner, Dr. Welby, and the young associate he takes on, Dr. Kiley (James Brolin), who makes house calls on a motor bike. For their debut, the doctors watch over a pretty school teacher, Ruth Adams (Susan Clark), who has an inoperable brain tumor. Her thoughts and feelings about death, particularly in a scene in which she has to say goodbye to her pupils, evokes genuine emotion. There won't be a dry eye in the living room. Acress Susan Clark gives a moving performance climaxed by a touching scene with Dr. Welby.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30: Channel 12: The Badlanders (1958 western). Alan Ladd, Ernest Borgnine. Fast-paced, good action — a sort of "Asphalt Jungle" on horseback.

7:30: Channel 12: A Girl Named Tamiko (1962 drama). Laurence Harvey, Frances Nuyen. Moderately interesting drama which has Harvey playing an Eurasian who is a bitter expatriate.

8:30: Channel 4: Seven in Darkness (1969 drama). Milton Berle, Sean Garrison, Dina Merrill. This drama focuses on blind survivors of an airline crash, forced to fend for themselves in the wilderness.

9:00: Channel 5: The Shakiest Gun in the West (1968 comedy), Don Knotts, Barbara Rhoades, Jackie Coogan. A gunslinging redhead dupes a dentist who goes West to establish a practice.

11:30: Channel 7: Take One False Step (1949 mystery), William Powell, Shelley Winters, Marsha Hunt. A college professor innocently becomes entangled with the police—mildly absorbing.

11:40: Channel 2: Four Boys and a Gun (1956 crime drama), Frank Sutton, Tarry Green. Which of four delinquents involved in a stadium robbery fired the shot that killed a policeman?

12:01: Channel 6: Zotz! (1962 comedy), Tom Poston. A professor finds an old coin with magical powers.

MONTREAL TRUST
1057 Fort St.
"Complete Real Estate Service Across Canada"

There are many ways of putting your property into the hands of many selling brokers — Multiple Listing (which) reaches most Victoria Offices and Salesmen) is the sure way; or the listing agent will sub-list to other offices as seems advisable. A broad segment of selling agents is readily within your reach.

The key man in listing a property, though, is the listing broker you choose, and you should choose him with care. It is he whom you look to for advice as to the proper selling price to be placed on your property. It should not be too low — obviously — otherwise you will loose money; and it should not be too high so as to have a property which "drags" and does not sell in a reasonable time. This too can result in, eventually, a lower price than what could have been obtained. The advice is helpful in arriving at this figure. You will look to the listing agent to advertise your property fully; it is unlikely that anyone else will take on this task. Then, when an offer is received, the listing agent is available for advice as to its acceptance, no matter what the source of the offer may be. A key man in a satisfactory Real Estate Sale is the listing agent — a position of trust.
Our experienced staff is at your service.

Vancouver Educator Honored

Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Delegates at the annual meeting of the B.C. Teachers' Federation gave a standing ovation Monday to Vancouver Schools Superintendent Dr. Robert Sharp as he received the federation's highest award.

Sharp was named winner of the Fergusson Memorial Award, presented annually to an educator who in the opinion of teachers has made an "outstanding contribution to education."

Sharp began his teaching career in 1926, and was appointed superintendent of schools in 1954.

Former BCTF president Tom Hutchison made the award.

In another presentation the Charlesworth Memorial Scholarship—named after Victoria educator Harry Charlesworth — was awarded to UBC students Louise and Sandra Lamb, whose father teacher Charles Lamb died last year.

HOME GARDEN

Treated Seeds Can Be Dangerous

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

With new awareness of the general public to danger from chemicals used in everyday gardening, comes the need of a warning concerning vegetable seeds. Several kinds of seeds are chemically treated by wholesale distributors before they are packaged for retail sale. Some are coated with fungicide against rotting away in the soil before they sprout, others are treated with an insecticide to make then unattractive to soil insects during the period of germination.

By the time the plants have grown and produced their edible portions, no trace of the poisonous chemical remains and none remains in the soil, we are assured.

The danger to the home gardener lies in handling of the seeds before and during sowing.

Noticeable among the seeds treated with poisonous chemicals are peas and beans including limas, and sweet corn.

Every packet put up in Canada containing treated seeds is stamped "Poison Treated Seed, Poisonous to Man, Animals and Birds."

Those packaged in Great Britain are printed only with a small notice as to the chemical used, but no warning as to their being dangerous to Man, Animals and Birds.

This fact of underplaying the danger makes it imperative for every gardener to read all the printing on every package of vegetable seeds.

The precautions after handling the seeds is to wash the hands immediately with soap and water before touching face, clothing or food.

The seeds are colored bright pink as part of the warning scheme, but this may constitute an attraction to small children.

As the youngsters are encouraged to sow their own vegetable gardens in April and May, we must be sure they are told about the chemical coatings on the peas, beans and corn, for these are most likely to be the ones chosen for growing.

Tell them why it has been thought necessary to protect the seeds in this way, and that the pink coloring is the warning to humans of the presence of the poison.

See that the youngsters know that the seed must be covered by soil to prevent birds and their own pets, rabbits, dogs, cats or bantams from reaching and eating them.

Supervise the washing of their hands with soap and water—outdoors in a basin if you like—as soon as the seed-sowing job is finished.

Get the habit of reading all labels and all printed warnings on garden materials. You'll learn a lot, and be glad you did.

Miniature Market Is Grade 8 Class

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Investments in penny stocks and individual initiative have led a Grade 8 class here into the world of finance at an early age.

The class at King Edward School took their profits from chocolate bar sales and invested them to earn more money for a class trip to Ottawa in May.

Ninety-three dollars were put in D'Eldona gold mine penny stock. The stock has fallen, but the class is not selling until May.

The remainder of the money was distributed, $1 per student, for them to invest and multiply.

One girl bought baking supplies and made cookies which she sold in packages of six for 20 cents. With these profits she purchased more supplies and made more cookies, ending up with a profit of $18.

Another girl made $12.76 by raffling a cake she made, and one boy netted $7.95 from a school yard candy store.

One budding executive set up a company, sold shares, opened a broker's office and held several shareholders' meetings. However his company ran into difficulties through buying the wrong type of leather for manufacturing and found the workers wanted too high a wage. However, a profit of $23.38 was realized in the end.

The company folded, as did all the others, after one month, with total profits for the class of $100.

During the project, the class was visited by a local bank manager, credit union loan manager, and a minister who spoke on the evils of greed.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

A truly ardent bridge enthusiast was the late Karl T. Compton, world-renowned physicist, and former president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The deal described today, which occurred in a rubber-bridge game, illustrates Compton's ability as a defensive player. He was sitting in the East seat.

Neither side vulnerable. East deals.

| East | South | West | North |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ◇ | 1 ♠ | Pass | 3 ♠ |
| Pass | 4 ♠ | Pass | Pass |
| Pass | | | |

Opening lead: Jack of ◇.

After Dr. Compton had captured the opening lead with his diamond ace, it was quite obvious that South had just about every outstanding high card. It was further apparent that if South had any losers in hearts, he would ultimately discard them on dummy's to-be-established clubs.

As East viewed the setup, the defenders' best hope was to attempt to establish a heart trick. And so, at trick two, Dr. Compton led the deuce of hearts, away from his king, and into the jaws of dummy's A-Q!

On this trick, West put up the nine-spot, which was taken by the board's queen. Declarer next cashed the ace and king of trumps, picking up the adverse pieces. Then came a low club out of his hand, dummy's queen being taken by East's king.

East returned the ten of hearts, which was won by the board's ace. When the jack of clubs was led next, East won with his ace, and cashed the king of hearts, for the setting trick. It was a neat bit of defence.

Had East played back any suit but hearts at trick two, declarer would have played low from his own hand, and ruffed the trick in dummy. Trumps would then have been drawn.

Now the queen of clubs would be led and taken by East's king. A third diamond lead would then be made, and won by South's king. Another club lead would now drive out East's ace, and the board's nine and ten of clubs would be promoted into winners. Upon regaining the lead, South would then enter dummy via the heart ace, and get rid of his two low hearts on dummy's clubs.

Son of Labyrinth Goes to Expo 70

OSAKA (CP) — The only Japanese pavilion with foreign participation at Expo 70 is showing a Canadian film—a sort of son of famed Labryrinth of Expo 67—to packed houses each day at the Fuji Group exhibit.

The multi-image film was shot in eight countries by the Canadians who helped create the film for the Montreal fair, considered a novelty in movie-making three years ago.

"Montreal was a breakthrough and this is a refinement," said Donald Brittain of Montreal, loaned by Canada's National Film Board to serve as writer and director for the Fuji film.

The Fuji Group pavilion, which has as its theme Message to the 21st Century, calls the film "a tour of the human spirit dealing emotionally and paradoxically with man—the best and worse of creatures—living in the best and worst of times."

The film, dealing with human compassion as opposed to technology, contains such scenes as police chasing a sniper, hooded members of the Ku Klux Klan marching around a blazing cross while part of the screen shows a restless Negro child in bed.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Sir Clifford Sifton Was Super Salesman

By BOB BOWMAN

Canada's super-salesman of all time must have been Sir Clifford Sifton who was Minister of the Interior from 1896 to 1905. He staged an almost world-wide immigration drive that increased the population of the prairies from 419,000 in 1901 to 1,300,000 in 1911. Of course Sifton was not Minister of the Interior after 1905 but the momentum of his work continued, and beyond 1911.

Sifton used modern methods to get the new settlers. He advertised in more than 7,000 U.S. agricultural papers and more Americans came to live in Canada than Canadians went to live in the U.S.A. He had agents all over Europe who received $5 for every head of family sent to Canada, and $2 for every other member of the family.

The attraction was free land and the new settlers got it without red tape. Sifton had agents in every area of the prairies to get the paper work done quickly. It was the custom to announce the immigration figure on March 31 every year and they were startling. The figures varied from 147,000 to 354,000 in one year. In 1910, for instance, the total was 209,000 of whom 104,000 came from the U.S.A., 60,000 from Britain, and the rest from elsewhere. In 10 years Calgary's population increased from 4,392 to 43,704.

Sifton was described as being a man of "chilled steel and lawless, machine-like competence and he had little sympathy for weakness in others. He resigned from Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government in 1905 because Laurier agreed to allow separate schools in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

In 1911 he led a revolt in the Liberal party because he did not approve of a proposed reciprocity treaty with the U.S.A. and the Laurier government was defeated in a general election. An interesting sidelight that might have been brought out in the recent mass media investigation by a parliamentary committee was that while Sifton opposed the reciprocity treaty, his own newspaper, the Winnipeg Free Press, supported it strongly in editorials.

Other events on March 31:

1713 — Treaty of Utrecht gave Nova Scotia to Britain.

1857 — Captain John Palliser was assigned to survey western Canada.

1864 — Prince Edward Island land ownership problem was settled.

1872 — First issue of Toronto "Mail."

1885 — Federal government disallowed British Columbia immigration act.

1890 — Manitoba legislature passed act to abolish separate schools.

1908 — British Columbia and Saskatchewan were granted armorial designs.

1949 — Newfoundland joined Canada.

Jack showed his sister a bright new quarter. "See what I found on the street," he said.

"Aren't you lucky?" Jill commented. "Now you can loan me a dime."

"Who says? " replied the boy. "If I did I'd have a dollar less than twice what I had before I found it."

How much did he have before finding that quarter?

Mock Bombing Draws Protest

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Officers from the Canadian Armed Forces and the United States Air Force were expected to brief city council tonight on mock bombing runs over the area.

The runs will begin Thursday to provide crews from the U.S. Strategic Air Command with training in low-level flying over unfamiliar territory.

About 150 demonstrators gathered at this city's airport Sunday to protest the training flights.

A spokesman for the group said today that another demonstration will be held Sunday, April 19.

The group wanted to submit an eviction notice to personnel at the airport command post Sunday but when they arrived all they found was five sealed vans.

The command post contains radar equipment and computers to electronically score the fliers on their mock bomb runs.

The Canadian and U.S officers were expected to explain to city council why the flights are necessary and to show films on how they are to be conducted.

Minimum Pay Hiked

WINNIPEG (CP) — Provincial Labor Minister A. R. (Russ) Paulley said today Manitoba's minimum wage will be increased to $1.50 from $1.35 an hour.

In an interview, Paulley said an announcement would be made later in the week to the legislature. The labor minister refused to comment on whether legislation will also be introduced to alter the Vacations With Pay Act.

It has been suggested that five-year workers will get three weeks holiday under proposed new legislation.

Earlier in the year the New Democratic Party government had increased the hourly minimum wage by 10 cents to bring it to $1.35.

Pensions Equal

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta government will "act immediately" to equalize pension benefits for male and female teachers, Education Minister Robert Clark said Monday. He told the opening session of the Alberta Teachers Association convention that the change had been approved by the cabinet. Pensions for women teachers had been calculated at lower rates than for men because studies show women live longer.

Train, Truck Meet

CALGARY (CP) — One man was seriously injured and four cars of a Canadian Pacific Railway freight train were derailed early today in a collision at a level crossing 25 miles south of the city.

The injured man, whose name was withheld, was the driver of a semi-trailer flatbed truck. He was taken to High River hospital.

A railway spokesman said the derailed cars were near the middle of the 55-car train headed for Lethbridge.

The accident happened at a crossing on Highway 2 about 1 a.m. and the track was cleared six hours later.

Quotas Announced

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Wheat Board today announced new delivery quotas effective immediately for a number of prairie points.

A one-bushel quota per specified acre is effective at six Saskatchewan points while two-bushel quotas go into effect at three Manitoba locations, 20 Saskatchewan centres and 12 Alberta points.

Report 'Startling'

WINNIPEG (CP) — A report is expected soon on an experiment by the City of Winnipeg using propane instead of gasoline in a truck engine.

The experiment, started 10 weeks ago, is to determine the economics of using propane to cut down on pollution.

W. D. Hurst, city engineer, said he will have a "startling . . . and very positive" report in two weeks on the experiment.

He told a city public works committee meeting Monday that "the decision you will have to make will be whether to have much less pollution at a slighly higher cost."

Hurst said propane burns more cleanly and prolongs engine life.

Letter Referred

EDMONTON (CP) — A letter from city alderman Dave Ward to Queen Elizabeth, asking her to intercede in restoring the Riel rebellion leaders as good Canadians, has been referred to the prime minister. The prime minister's office notified Mr. Ward Monday that his appeal "will receive consideration."

Ground Laid

REGINA (CP) — Education Minister J. C. McIssac Monday introduced legislation that would lay the ground for a foundation grant system of financing education in Saskatchewan. The proposed measure would be retroactive to Jan. 1.

Oil Hunters Turn Attention To S.E. Asia

JAKARTA (AP) — With the stability of the Middle East oil supply in question, and the world's industrialized nations seeking low-sulphur oil, prospectors are scouring potentially oil-rich offshore areas in Southeast Asia.

So far, the search is concentrated around the island of Borneo, shared by Indonesia, Malaysia and Brunei. But under an agreement with the United Nations Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East (ECAFE), technicians from the United States, Japan, Nationalist China and South Korea are conducting surveys in the East China and Yellow Seas.

OFFSHORE RESERVOIR

An ECAFE report says the results of that exploratory drilling have "indicated that the shallow sea floor between Japan and Taiwan might contain one of the most prolific oil and gas reservoirs in the world, possibly comparing favorable with the Persian Gulf area."

Oilmen believe the potential under-water reserves could stretch through the entire Far East, starting in the Bay of Bengal off the coast of Burma, extending down the Malay Peninsula off the shores of Thailand and Malaysia and running through the Java Sea along the Indonesian archipelago.

EXPENSE, RISK HIGH

Companies from the United States, Europe, Australia, Canada and Japan are planning to spend at least $500 million in exploration over the next four years.

While the expense is considerable and the risk high, the companies believe it is worth the trouble because of political uncertainties in the Middle East, where the Arab nations who control most of the oil the West depends on are becoming increasingly anti-Western in their outlook.

Also, Southeast Asian oil is extremely low in sulphur content, an attribute of importance to countries which are concerned about air pollution.

some little things can make a big difference

Income tax isn't really complicated — it's just that there are so darn many different things to keep in mind when working out your return. For instance, missing documents are a major cause of delay in processing tax returns. Little scraps of paper — T4 slips from employers, receipts for medical expenses or charitable donations, explanation of unusual items — are important in making your return complete so that it can be processed quickly. Claims for dependants often cause problems. A person receiving the Old Age Pension and the Guaranteed Income Supplement will have a total income over the $950 limit, and cannot be claimed as a dependant. Parents putting children through school and college have problems too. Tuition fees may only be deducted by the student, even though they may have been paid by someone else. If the student has no income, no claim can be made. Finally, the largest and most persistent error of all ... simply ... mistakes in arithmetic. These must be checked and corrected, and that takes time, and holds up refunds. So double-check your calculations before you send in your return. You could save yourself both time and money.

STARTING ON RUN is the annual Cowichan Boy Scouts' Easter Monday walkathon. The award for the oldest walker over the eight-mile route was Joseph Calverley, in his late fifties. Youngest were Bernie Fall and Graham Smith, both four. Richard Hoek, 11, had the best costume. Colin Benzies, 9, was the most sponsored Cub or Scout ($60.16) and Peter Small the most sponsored adult ($184.80). (Ed Gould photos.)

Date Set Tonight

DUNCAN — Cowichan District School Board meets tonight to set a date for a $213,316 school building referendum which has just been approved by the provincial government.

This district is one of 11 in the province where the government has allowed school building referendums this year.

It would permit, if approved, construction of a four-classroom pod building at Alexander elementary school, two classroom additions at Koksilah elementary and Quamichan junior secondary schools and additions to science facilities at Mt. Prevost and Quamichan junior secondary schools.

Saanich Rider Wins President's Cup

By H. F. REA

MILL BAY — Mrs. Jill Young of Saanich rode her chestnut Sir Henry in several events to win the Cowichan District Riding Club President's Cup at the 41st Easter Monday hunter trials.

Staged by the CDRC, the event drew 100 entries to the new course built by co-chairmen Wayne Robertson and Ivan Hollway over the Derryk Jackson farm at Mill Bay.

The western aggregate Aubrey Temblett trophy was shared by Doreen Todd of Nanaimo riding Diamond M. Molly and Leslie Reid from Richmond on Silvertone.

Fifty horses were entered in the long cross-country hunter trial with the palomino Rumba Riddden by Lynn Lister of Duncan judged the winner on time and performance to take the Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Green cup. Secret Sam with Miss Gill Dunlop of Parksville was second. Leslie Reid and Rex Silvertone were third.

Miss Barbara Sharpe's cup for best junior working hunter went to Thistledown owned and ridden by Debbie Thistle of Vancouver. Second was Brandy's Golden Lady ridden by Kim McCauley and third was Lucky Fellow, owned and ridden by Bruce Halliday of Duncan.

Results: Western pleasure horse: Rex Silverton, Leslie Reid; Diamond M. Molly, Doreen Todd; Phil, Patti Spring, Nanaimo.

Green hunter: Berob, Joan Henderson, Vancouver; Crescent Look, Jill Young, Saanich; Desiree, Allison Cairns, Vancouver.

Hunter Pairs: Sir Henry, Jill Young and Gay Finale, Joan Barry; Drunken Driver, Mary Botham and Berob, Joan Henderson; Thistledown, Debby Thistle and Fan Fare, Leslie Reid.

Open hunder class: Pan Beau, George Rushworth, Duncan; Sir Henry, Jill Young and Crescent Look, also ridden by Jill Young.

Team relay race: Honey Do, Steve Butcher; Toffee, Tom Rose and Wild. Tom Humble, of Nanaimo; Chris, Bronwen Hollway, Katali, Marg Taylor and Night Cap, Jim Green of Duncan, Forest Fern, Fiona Bateson, Johnny Reb, Cathy Fraser and Dusty, Joanne Mackay, Cobble Hill.

Quarter mile scurry: Sir Henry, Jill Young; Mesachie, Don Humble, Nanaimo; Toffee, Tom Rose.

DEEP-SEA SHIPS IN PORT

Mayor Wins Refresher Course

DUNCAN — Duncan Jaycees earned about $175 for community projects from entry fees in their first annual motor rally held Good Friday.

Nearly 70 vehicles of various sizes, shapes and colors joined in the rally which covered an 80-mile course over mostly paved roads from Duncan south to Mill Bay then north to Chemainus through Cobble Hill, Cowichan Bay, Maple Bay and Crofton.

Dave Chadwick and Ray Poilievre of Duncan won the first prize trophy with nine points. Mr. and Mrs. Ray Vanderschaaf of Duncan were second with 15 points and Kerry Jones was third, also with 15 points.

Dave Rooke of Duncan was awarded first prize for the best-decorated car. Hall Mackenzie of Maple Bay won a prize for having the oldest car entered, a 1939 Rolls Royce.

Mayor Jim Quaife, who ran 54th in the field of 68, was given a one-hour driver refresher course as a gag prize.

Checkpoints were established along the route. It was no race course, however, as drivers were docked more points for exceeding the driving time between points than for driving too slowly.

Gunman Wrestled By Bank Customer

Police Take Suspect At Roadblock

A lone gunman escaped from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch, Burnside Plaza, shortly after 10:30 a.m. with an undisclosed amount of money.

About 90 minutes after the holdup, police arrested a man at a roadblock and charged him with armed robbery.

The heavy-set man, about 40 years of age with receding grey hair and wearing an orange sweater, presented a note to a teller of the bank demanding money. He was holding a pistol.

Greater Victoria police quickly sealed off the region after the culprit fled on foot. They set up a roadblock on the Trans-Canada Highway and checked ferry traffic at Swartz Bay and the Black Ball terminals.

An unidentified bank customer followed the man when he left with money, pistol and note and wrestled with him on the parking lot of the Burnside Gardens, adjacent to the plaza.

All Greater Victoria police forces were alerted and the arrest took place at a roadblock Saanich police set up on the Trans-Canada Highway near Burnside.

The suspect is 40 years old and from the lower mainland, police said. They had not yet counted a sum of money seized in the arrest but described it as "a large amount."

At 12:30 p.m. the bank, managed by Charles F. G. Wainwright, was still closed and employees declined any comment.

★ ★ ★

The alert, at 10:39 a.m., sent police racing to check ferry traffic at Sidney and had city police watching traffic on Douglas for a light blue car spotted in the getaway.

Esquimalt police joined in searching motels along the Gorge but it was the roadblock stopping up-island traffic which produced the arrest.

Three other Greater Victoria banks have been held up since last November.

On Feb. 18 a lone bandit took $2,100 from the Bank of Commerce branch at Fort and Cook.

School Formula Works, Brothers Tells Critics

By BOB MITCHELL
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Strong criticism of the school finance formula has not convinced Education Minister Donald Brothers it is not working.

Brothers said in an interview Monday at the annual general meeting of the B.C. Teachers' Federation he thinks the formula is working despite blistering criticism from teachers and school trustees.

During a short address to about 1,000 BCTF delegates the minister said he expects "constructive criticism" from trustees and teachers.

But he said later he doesn't include attacks on the finance formula under "constructive criticism."

"I don't think there is any room for destructive criticism."

Since the finance formula was introduced in 1968 trustees and teachers have argued against the referendum principle whereby ratepayers must give 60 per cent approval to spending of funds above the amount set by the government.

Seven such referendums were defeated last year.

EIGHT MORE

Eight more—at Nanaimo, West Vancouver, Vanderhoof, Burns Lake, Creston-Kaslo, Qualicum, Peace River North and Slocan — have been defeated in recent weeks.

BCTF President Jim Killeen Monday said education finance, and specifically the referendum principle, is at the root of major problems in B.C. schools.

Brothers said referendums have been defeated because school boards did not "sell" their programs to ratepayers.

"I think with the education formula taxpayers for the first time are able to look at a school board's budget and decide whether they want to accept it or not."

The minister said during the press conference he does not approve of confrontation tactics used by various interest groups to draw attention to school problems.

"People think the only way they can get a point across is by a confrontation."

And on teacher militancy: "I don't think it's the proper way to proceed."

During his speech Monday,

WIDE-OPEN ABORTION LAW IN MARYLAND

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The Maryland legislature today enacted a bill repealing all laws regulating abortion in the state and making Maryland the most liberal state in the United States as to abortions.

The measure, passed on a final vote of 78 to 43 in the House of Delegates, would leave the matter of abortion strictly a decision between the doctor and the patient.

The Senate tacked on amendments, in which the house concurred, that would release doctors and hospitals from civil liability if they refuse to perform abortions because of religion or conscience.

Laotians Recapture Key Sam Thong Base

VIENTIANE (AP) — Laotian government forces have recaptured the Sam Thong base site captured by the North Vietnamese on March 18, military informants said today.

Until its 6,000 inhabitants were evacuated two weeks ago, Sam Thong was the main air supply depot and relief centre for some 350,000 Meo tribesmen and other minorities in north central Laos.

Government forces began driving toward Sam Thong several days ago. Sources said three companies, or about 300 men, swept into the town late Monday afternoon, encountering smallarms fire from a North Vietnamese force of unknown size.

There was no word immediately on casualties on either side.

Fighting was reported continuing in and around Sam Thong today, and another company of government troops moved up to reinforce the attackers.

Military sources also reported a Communist unit was hit by Laotian air force strikes and artillery about five miles northeast of Sam Thong. Initial reports said 20 Communists were killed.

A four-man television crew for a Belgian network was reported missing on a riverboat expedition into Pathet Lao territory north of Vientiane. The crew was last seen about March 25.

Bangkok sources reported that North Vietnam has agreed to a proposal by Thailand to re-open talks on repatriating some 40,000 North Vietnamese refugees in northeast Thailand. The Vietnamese took refuge in Thailand during the French Indochina war, and North Vietnam halted a repatriation program when the United States bombed Hanoi and Haiphong in 1964.

Disneyland Under the Park Sought for Beacon Hill

An awesome plan for a vast, dual-purpose subterranean cavern beneath the slopes of Beacon Hill Park — a super-Disneyland in happy times and a bomb shelter, should it come to that — wafter briefly through City Hall this morning.

The brain-child of Richard L. Brash, 713 Connaught, was quietly "received and filed."

The Brash underground labyrinth would be financed, its originator suggested, by a province-wide lottery and thus keep local money from going to "foreign-dominated, greasy claws outfits" abroad.

The proposal, addressed directly to Mayor J. Courtney Haddock, calls for a series of underground labyrinths beneath the rocky slopes of Dallas Road, thus preserving the natural beauty of the park above it except for a "revolving display-room-restaurant-tearoom-curio shop" on the surface.

The grotto, in peaceful times, would house amusement parks, shops, commercial advertising displays, underground hot springs, a wishing well and a weather-proof promenade with 50 feet of solid rock to keep out the elements. Exits would lead up through the rock to the revolving restaurant and various points of the park.

The brash concept will be acknowledged today in a letter of thanks by decision of city council.

Turkey Quake Toll 3,000

GEDIZ, Turkey (CP)—New tremors pounded earthquake-battered western Turkey today, killing at least 130 persons, and unofficial sources said the death toll since the first quake Saturday night was approaching 3,000.

The first tremors hit near Simav, about 40 miles west of the ravaged town of Gediz, and 24 persons were reported killed.

About 95 more persons died when later tremers struck Emet, 30 miles west of Gediz.

Authorities said today 90,000 persons were homeless in the earthquake-torn area.

Istanbul Observatory announced today that 300 tremors have been recorded in the last 12 hours. Eight were heavy, 30 secondary and the rest minor, the observatory said.

It was during these tremors that the towns of Emet and Simav were hit.

The government said the quake Saturday destroyed at least 33 of 84 villages in the area and 28 others were uninhabitable.

Unofficial sources said more than 5,000 were injured. There were three deaths from exposure in Simav during the night.

By Monday night, soldiers and other rescue workers had dug 644 bodies from the rubble as a steady rain fell and after shocks shook the ground from time to time.

A weary Turkish soldier, his hands raw and bleeding after hours of tearing at debris, told of the desolation in this once prosperous western Turkish agriculatural town of 8,000.

"The people move in silence. The dogs have ceased to bark and the roosters have forgotten how to crow."

Mail Plan Rejected By CNTU

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Confederation of National Trades Unions (CNTU) today rejected a federal government proposal to end two months of disrupted mail deliveries in Montreal.

Raymond Parent, secretary-general of the CNTU, announced there was "no agreement" as he emerged from more than three hours of closed-door talks with Treasury Board president C. M. (Bud) Drury.

Parent said the government's plan to "integrate" mail truck drivers, now employed by a private firm, into the Montreal Post Office was "unacceptable."

DECISION

However, he said the final decision was up to the 457 members of the CNTU local representing the trruckers. The members were meeting today at the Montreal headquarters of the CNTU.

The breakdown came less than 12 hours before the expiration of the government's contract with the private trucking firm at midnight EST tonight. The government has decided to turn over mail pickups and deliveries to the Post Office itself and has cancelled private delivery contracts in Montreal.

PROPOSALS

Union officials refused to speculate on the truckers' reactions to the government proposals. They also avoided answering questions about the chances of renewed violence in the Montreal postal situation.

Guy Beaudoin, director of public services with the CNTU, said however that "our men have a lot of initiative."

Asked about the chances of violence in Montreal tonight, Beaudoin retorted: "Suppose you were kicked out of your job. What would you do? Pray to God? Our men will not be praying in Montreal tonight."

AIR PIRATES BRANDISH SWORDS

100 Hostages Held in Jet

Times News Services

SEOUL — Fifteen sword-waving, dynamite-carrying Japanese student radicals held 100 people hostage in a locked airliner today after its pilot landed here during a hijack attempt.

The students, brandishing samurai swords, seized the plane during a flight from Tokyo to Fukuoka on the southwest coast of Japan, demanding to be flown to North Korea.

An elaborate ruse was staged by Seoul officials to convince the pirates they had landed in Pyongyang, but it failed.

WELCOME MESSAGES

"This is Pyongyang and we welcome you," loudspeakers blared as the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 carrying the 15 hijackers, 93 passengers and seven crew members landed. Girls carrying flowers approached the plane shouting welcome messages.

South Korean soldiers in Communist uniforms were deployed around the landed jet, and signs to make the airport appear to be Pyongyang's were hastily displayed, along with the Communist flag.

The students holding the jet, unconvinced, threatened to blow up the plane, passengers, crew and themselves if not flown on to Pyongyang, and the pilot notified the airport control tower he will take off at dawn Wednesday for the North Korean capital.

Sources at the airport said the local JAL manager sent the air pirates a note advising them the pilot could take them to Pyongyang but they should allow the other crew members and passengers to get off in Seoul. There was no immediate response from the radicals, but they later rejected a similar plea from Masahide Kanayama, the Japanese ambassador to South Korea.

The student radicals when they took over the plane identified themselves as members of the revolutionary Red Army student faction. When the jet landed for refuelling in Fukuoka 23 persons were allowed to disembark.

OFFICIAL CONFER

A report by Radio Manhaha said the ambassador advised the pilot, Shinji Ishida, 46, to agree to the hijackers' demands to fly to the Communist North. The pilot said he did not mind flying north and was sure the passengers

Docks Still Shut In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Longshoremen and maritime employers held separate meetings today to map strategy in a dispute that has halted Vancouver waterfront operations since Monday monring.

A spokesman for the British Columbia Maritime Employers Association said his group was discussing the situation, but no meeting was scheduled with the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union.

An ILWU spokesman said union executives also were meeting, "but we haven't heard anything from the employers about any possible meeting."

Longshoremen refused to work Monday, claiming that employers had attempted to make up work crews from extra or "scratch" gangs instead of using six regular gangs.

Today, the employers sent orders for labor to the union "but we haven't seen any men," said employers, spokesman Norm Cunningham.

There were 21 vessels in port, including three scheduled to load grain. A fourth grain ship was awaiting a berth.

A spokesman for the Vancouver grain exchange said that so far, the dispute has had "a negligible impact" on the movement of grain, but he said the situation could get seriuos if the work stoppage continued.

Mr. Cunningham said the original dispute over work gangs was thrashed out at a meeting between the union and employers Monday monring, but now is "off in a corner."

"The real issue is whether or not the union will abide by the current collective agreement and settle such disputes by means of an arbitrator rather than resorting to work stoppages," he said.

About 1,000 Vancouver longshoremen are involved in the dispute.

Inflation Pressures Seen Easing

VANCOUVER (CP) — Laurentide Financial Corporation Ltd. said Monday it anticipates a continuation of the trend toward lower short-term interest costs in 1970 but no comparable decline in rates on long-term obligations.

In a report to shareholders, the Vancouver-based financial institution noted that inflationary pressures appear to be coming slowly under control, "although at the cost of some slow-down in economic growth and some rise in unemployment."

"This combination of events will present a serious challenge to us in 1970 and we expect to follow highly selective credit policies, even though this will necessarily limit the growth in our receivables," said the director's report signed by Paul Britton Paine, chairman, and M. L. Goeglein, president and chief executive officer.

The report added: "Increasing emphasis will be placed upon cost control and operational efficiency. Short-term interest costs are likely to be somewhat lower than in the period just ended (Dec. 31, 1960) but we presently do not foresee declines of comparable magnitude in the market for long-term obligations."

This year "will be a period in which we propose to put emphasis on building the foundations for future growth, when economic conditions are more favorable, rather than stressing current expansion. In consequence, earnings are unlikely to undergo other than a moderate change."

MARKET SUMMARIES

Mixed Trend Witnessed

Mixed to lower trend was seen today in trading on both the Toronto and New York stock markets.

Golds were active at Toronto with Dome and Campbell Red Lake posting gains.

Prices were generally up in light trading during the morning session at Vancouver.

AT TORONTO, Mattagami lost ½ to 29½. The stock rose 4⅛ Monday after Mattagami reported further drilling results from its base metals property in the Sturgeon Lake, Ont., area.

Mattagami holds a 60 per cent interest in the property and Abitibi, unchanged at 11½, a 40 per cent interest.

In golds, Dome Mines rose 3½ to 63, Campbell Red Lake 1⅛ to 20⅝ and Upper Canada 5 cents to $2.10.

Hollinger rose 1¼ to 30½, Asamera 1⅜ to 17⅞, Belding 1 to 11 and Falconbridge 1 to 176. Westcoast dropped 1 to 21½ and Roman ½ to 12¾.

AT NEW YORK, motors, rubber issues, farm implements and electronics registered declines. Rails, drugs and building materials advanced.

AT MONTREAL, only papers were down in light trading today on the stock market.

Toronto Dominion Bank gained ¼ to 21¼, Bank of Montreal ¼ to 16½ and Royal ⅛ to 22¼.

Moore Corp. advanced ¾ to 37⅝ and Stelco ⅜ to 22¾ while CPR was down ⅜ to 64⅞.

Among senior mines and oils, Aquitaine declined ⅜ to 20¾, Rio Algoma ⅜ to 19⅜ and Texaco Canada ¾ to 22.

Seaway Multi Corp., on the Canadian Stock Exchange, slipped ⅝ to 13⅞ and Mount Royal Rice ⅜ to 11⅛.

AT LONDON, the stock market opened after a four-day Easter holiday on a quiet note today.

Gilts were idle with most investors tending to hold off pending the British budget. Leading industrials eased slightly with most losses restricted to a few pence.

There were widespread gains among Canadians.

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas gained 5 points. Other gains generally were in the range of 2¼ and 3 points. Among those were Imperial Oil, Syracuse, Abitibi and Canadian Pacific.

Home oils generally were quiet. Golds firmed on selective buying.

AT VANCOUVER trading was light but prices were generally up slightly today on the stock exchange with volume to 11:30 a.m. of 1,081,245 shares.

In the mines, Brenmac led the way with 54,500 shares and was up .07 at .97. Early Bird gained .17 to $1.32 while Kopan improved .02 to .23.

Among oils, United Bata on 6,175 shares was unchanged at $2.95, Plains Petroleum gained .01 to .44 and Midland was unchanged at 9½ cents.

Industrials were led by Driver Development, which lost .07 to .87 on 4,500 shares. Pace Industries on 1,100 shares was unchanged at $2.20 and Field Stores was unchanged at $8.13.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading in all commodities was light throughout the day with prices generally unchanged at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Oilseeds showed some strength on exporter and commission house buying.

Light shipper domestic trade kept oats and barley prices steady.

Rye was fractionally easier with inter-month and inter-market spreading patterns.

Export loadings of Canadian wheat included 851,199 bushels to Russia.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat were unchanged except Nos. 1 and 2 Northern which were down one cent.

CHICAGO (AP) — Major commodity futures prices fell back fractionally on the Board of Trade today, but rallied late in the session and closed on a somewhat improved tone.

Trade, however, was dull through most of the session, except for the opening and the closing 10 minutes.

There appeared nothing in the news, either here or abroad to warrant any sustained price drive.

Japanese Steel Merger

TOKYO (AP) — Nippon Steel Corp. has come into being with prospects that it will soon become, if it isn't already, the world's largest steel producer.

The company was created through a merger of Yawata Iron and Steel Co. and Fuji Iron and Steel Co. Both were offshoots of Japan Iron and Steel Co., a government-controlled enterprise that was broken up in 1950 under "the law for elimination of excessive concentration of economic power."

A Nippon Steel official said the company expects to produce about 35,000,000 metric tons of crude steel in the fiscal year starting April 1.

In the 1969 calendar year, he said Yawata and Fuji together produced a total of 29,000,000 metric tons of steel. If they had been one company in 1969, he said, the enterprise would have been the world's second largest producer of crude steel after United States Steel Corp., which he said produced 31,500,000 tons of crude steel in 1969.

Mobil Oil

Per share earnings of $4.50, against $4.26 in 1968, are forecast by Mobil Oil for the 1969 year, not counting write-offs totalling $22 million.

Before-write-off earnings are up 6 per cent at $456.4 million. After considering the extraordinary provision, net earnings are expected to be $434.4 million or $4.28 per share.

The year's revenues totalled $7.55 billion, against $7.09 billion.

Leave It to Daisy, a Blooming Organizer

By PAT DUFOUR

Federal, provincial and city authorities appear to be taking orders from a diminutive women who moved into her new home at Blanshard Court this morning.

She's set the date for the official opening of the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal project for Saturday, April 11 at 2 p.m. and she's organizing all the details.

•

Mrs. Daisy Beckett stole the march on officialdom when she decided weeks ago to organize the event, which would normally have been handled by the city and contractor.

"I wrote to Mr. Groos in Ottawa and asked him to attend. He wrote back and said he'd be delighted.

"The Central Mortgage and Housing people phoned me when they heard about my opening. They said I'd beaten them to the gun. They have to cancel any other opening because you couldn't expect a busy member of parliament like Mr. Groos to fly out for two ceremonies."

•

A CMHC official said today the housing authority's public relations man would arrive from Vancouver Wednesday to check details with Mrs. Beckett. He'd be in a better position then to give information — but he thought the date was April 18.

Having financed 75 per cent of the project, CMHC hopes Mrs. Beckett sends them an invitation.

The ceremony will take place at the patio entrance of the Beckett unit with Public Works Minister W. N. Chant and David Groos sharing ribbon cutting honors.

Mrs. Beckett caused a flutter at a city council meeting when it was announced that she has bypassed the mayor and asked former alderman Robert Baird to officially turn the key of her home at the event.

City Hall was placated when Mrs. Beckett later invited Mayor Courtney Haddock to attend the ceremony.

"I asked my old friend Bob Baird to do the honors two years ago. I had no intention of letting him down," Mrs. Beckett explains.

•

Unorthodox though it may be, a total of 75 guests have accepted invitations to attend.

Only one has not yet replied—Social Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi.

"He should be here. After all, we're all part of his job."

Mrs. Beckett has asked Rev. John Watson of First Baptist Church to give the official blessing.

"He's the head of the Council of Churches in Victoria. This way I won't have people saying I favored one religion more than the other."

Once the 75 dignitaries have been given a tour of the Beckett home they'll be entertained—buffet style.

"Most of these official openings are dull affairs—with no food. I intend to do this one properly.

•

"The menu's all set—tasty sandwiches, olives, stuffed celery, pickles, pastries, tea and coffee. I've also ordered a huge cake that's going to have 'Welcome to the Open House' in gold," she said as outside the first 31 of the 180 families who will live in the project went on with the work of moving in.

Mrs. Beckett has been gathering a "hope chest" for the last six months, saving her pennies in order to buy new drapes and towels in local sales.

"The place is going to look really good and the floors are going to be polished to a shine.

Daisy Beckett jumped the gun.

Aldermen Delay Key Lease On CPR Waterfront Plan

Victoria city's community planning committee this morning refused to give Canadian Pacific Railway a letter agreeing to renewal of a federal water lease off Belleville Street.

The company has already applied for renewal of the lease for a 50-year period but requires the city's blessing before the transport department issues the necessary documents.

And this morning the city was stubbornly refusing to issue that permission until Marathon Realty, the real estate arm of the CPR, guarantees a first class development on the site of the old CPR ferry terminal.

Although the lease in question is relatively small it occupies a key position on the site of the CPR proposed new docking facility for the Victoria-Seattle ferry.

CAN'T PROCEED

David Mooney told the committee for Marathon that his company couldn't really go ahead with the building of a new ferry slip until it was guaranteed tenure.

The city pointed out through Ald. Peter Pollen, committee chairman, that it would be remiss in its duty to citizens if it did not use every weapon available to protect the interests of the people.

At press time today the impasse was unresoved although Marathon and the city had agreed to strike a working committee to try and resolve the problem.

STARTED YEAR AGO

The complicated history of the Belleville Street development proposal commenced almost a year ago when the CPR and Marathon unveiled a master-plan for Belleville Street at a press conference aboard Princess Marguerite.

Victoria architect John A Di Castri was named designer of a $3 million project.

Some months went by before a modified plan surfaced. It was entitled "Scheme Three." Scheme Two has never been made public.

But even "Scheme Three" was just a step towards other reductions in the master-plan. In all, five schemes were prepared and the fifth presented to the city last Wednesday.

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh described the final draft as "totally unrelated to Scheme Four" which had won cautious council support.

GREENHALGH
. . . "totally unrelated"

Ald. Peter Pollen termed "Scheme Five" as "so modified that it was unacceptable to the city." It was valued at $1 million.

With the city rejecting the latest Marathon plan and also tabling a bylaw which would have relaxed setback rules in the area, the company said it would go ahead anyway.

Marathon said the final draft was not a first-class project, but pointed out that it didn't need city approval to build whatever it wanted on its own property.

This morning the city pulled an ace out of the hat to counter the threat of unsatisfactory development.

Over the weekend city officials discovered that three CPR water leases from the federal government come up for renewal within the next two years. One of them the key to the new docking facilities, is up for renewal on April 19, 1970.

All three need city approval before Ottawa will grant the renewals,

WRITTEN GUARANTEE

Pollen told Marathon this morning he would not recommend council approval until he had a written guarantee from Marathon stating that the old terminal development would be first class.

"It is not our intention to place the CPR in an untenable position," Pollen said. "We need them and they need us. They keep asking us 'what do you want?' The answer to that is simple. We want scheme one. And if we can't have that we want to be in a position to work with them towards something mutually acceptable."

City Manager Dennis Young said he would like to see the entire CPR-Marathon concept for development in the area.

"It is becoming obvious that this (the terminal proposal and the ferry slip) is just a very small part of the over-all plan," he said.

"CHEW AWAY"

"I'm afraid that if we just permit this without safeguards it will be like permitting them to just chew away at the harbor in bits and pieces."

Mooney said it was imperative that the CPR receive the city's letter of approval quickly if the new ferry dock was to be finished in time for the tourist season.

"There is some urgency," he said. "And we have actually started construction."

Young suggested that in addition to the city's approval of the granting of a lease Marathon might also like a building permit for the project underway.

Further discussions were scheduled for this afternoon.

For Two Bits You Won't Get Kicked Off Bus

B.C. Hydro's switch Wednesday to the exact fare system does not mean that anyone without correct change will be automatically prevented from getting on the bus.

This was disclosed in a recent interview with H. R. Halls, manager of the Greater Victoria transit system. The exact fare requirement is being introduced along with the fare boost to 25 cents cash for adults to cut costs as well as increase revenue.

Halls said that "if someone comes on board with, say, a dollar bill, the driver certainly is not going to throw him off.

"That person has two choices — he can try to find some other passenger who can change the dollar or he can put it in the fare box and the driver will give him a 75-cent refund slip which he can get cashed at our office on Gorge Road."

Lloyd Graber, general manager of the Seattle Transit System which introduced exact fare requirements a year ago, said in a telephone interview that "it has worked very well and was willingly accepted by our riders as a means of protecting our drivers, several of whom had been robbed the previous year.

"It did not cause any substantial inconvenience."

★ ★ ★

Halls, noting there has been criticism before the change over, said exact fares "are no different than having to use exact change for parking meters, pay phones, candy, drink and cigarette dispensers which are accepted now by the public."

He said it will produce some internal savings and will help buses to maintain scheduled speeds despite increasing traffic congestion.

However, he said, the main purpose is to retain safety standards because drivers cannot safely make change while driving on today's congested streets.

Halls made his comments during interviews by Times reporter John Mika who looked into public transit's role in meeting traffic congestion problems here. His series of three reports start on Wednesday.

Garage Operators May Try Business Tax Rebellion

Victoria service station operators meet Thursday night to press their fight with city hall over substantially increased 1970 business tax assessments.

About 20 appeals lodged against the raises—some several times their 1969 levels—were turned down by the court of revision this month. The business tax assessment roll rose $3 million this year to $12.5 million.

City assessor Alf Joyce said the whole roll was revised to be consistent with current conditions. Assessments are based on a number of factors, including rental values.

Bob Dunsmuir, leader of the Automotive Retailers Association group, said the membership "certainly is going to protest; I don't know whether it will do any good, but we're not sitting back.

"It is rapidly getting to the point where a man can't afford to be in small business." Dunsmuir cited his own assessment of $14,700, up $6,700 in the past year and $11,000 in four years.

He reckons he will have to pay the equivalent of $50 a month more rent to support the expected business tax, and to raise $50 he will have to do $450 a month additional business.

Joseph Armitage, operating a new station at the top of Yates, said he does not know where the money for higher taxes is going to come from.

"I'm stuck for about $800 I wasn't expecting," he said.

Dunsmuir echoed the sentiment: "They came up with a whopper."

He said a new approach would be made to city hall "to ask if it will reconsider its decision."

Association members will also explore the idea of not paying the business tax.

TWO MEN WALK AWAY FROM IMPRISONMENT

Donald James Kammerle, 21, of Duncan and Archie Gordon Beck, 21, of Nanaimo, were still at large today after escaping from William Head prison Monday night.

Prison authorities said the pair, both serving three-year sentences for the same breaking and entering offences and both due to be released next March, walked away from the minimum security institution between 8:30 and 9 p.m.

Kammerle is five feet nine, 140 to 150 pounds, with hazel eyes and medium brown hair. Beck is five feet 11, 145 pounds, with blue eyes, blond hair and a light complexion.

Woman Falls to Death After Slip on Balcony

A 63-year-old city woman fell to her death Monday morning from the balcony of her fifth-floor apartment when she slipped while washing a glass divider.

Mrs. Jessie Robertson, who lived in apartment 507 of the Beckley Manor, 548 Dallas, was using a step-style stool to clean the divider separating the balcony from that of the next apartment, police said.

The neighboring apartment, suite 506, is occupied by the victim's brother-in-law, Herbert, and his wife Mona.

Mrs. Mona Robertson saw her sister-in-law washing the divider shortly before 10 a.m., then heard a scream and ran next door to find the woman had fallen, police said.

Police believe the woman had tried to remove a board, partially covering the bottom of the divider, while standing on the stool, lost her balance and fell, taking the board with her.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital at about 10:20 a.m.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said this morning after receiving a full report from police that he is making the ruling of "pure accident" in his inquiry.

Mrs. Robertson is survived by her husband, James William Robertson, at home, and four brothers, Jack Brown, of Tuscon, Ariz., Bert Brown, Toronto, Roderick Brown, Regina, and David Brown, Vancouver.

Funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers chapel at 1:15 p.m. Thursday with Rev. J. L. W. McLean officiating.

LOCAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Ask The Times

Q. Can you tell me where I would write in order to submit a short story (fiction) for children with a view to having it published?—E.A.H.

A. Two annual publications list publishers and the type of material in which they are interested. The publications, The Literary Market Place and Writers' Market, can both be found at the reference department of the Greater Victoria Public Library.

Arthur Mayse . . .

WE WERE WALKING THE Sayward Beach tide flats on Sunday when, close inshore, we glimpsed a dark head smaller than a seal's. The creature trailed only the merest suggestion of a wake. As we watched, it rolled a sleek back above the surface. A tapered tail flipped clear, then vanished in a flirt of spray.

Presently the head showed again, a fish shining between its jaws. We watched without moving while a land otter hauled out on a weedy rock-nub and proceeded to eat its catch.

We began to ease closer. But a couple of watchful crows scolded and hopped about. The otter turned his head with a flash of grey throat-patch, then flowed off the rock to vanish with scarce a ripple.

A sight to remember. It raised questions. What kind of fish? And would the otter have a mate not far away? But the man who was wise in such matters, and who would spare time from his busy day to talk about them, will do so no more.

Only a matter of hours after we saw the otter at his fishing, a frined called to tell me that Dr. G. Clifford Carl had died.

To the working press, he was Cliff Carl, a naturalist of solid reputation with an easy voice and a friendly way. Let nature intrude upon the news and it was almost automatic to dial the Legislative Buildings and ask for his office local in the Provincial Museum.

In our newspaper library are useful handbooks Carl had written. To these he added the excursions into the natural world that appeared on our Times Page 5 as often as he could turn his hand to them.

Drawn from a wealth of knowledge and experience, they were more than merely informative. They offered relief from the other, man-made world in which most of us spend our days.

Back in the years when British Columbia's Provincial Museum was cramped into a wing of the greystone Buildings, I would once in a while drop in on Cliff Carl.

The director's desk was always cluttered—in this he was a true biologist. Much of its overload consisted of reports, observations and messages from his impressive network of volunteer scouts.

Any number of men who work close to wild nature knew about him and his work. When they came on the strange or the curious, they would send him word.

Whales? Well here was a report from a lightkeeper, and a fisherman up the west coast had written him an interesting letter . . .

He would lean forward with his elbows on his desk; and whatever else we talked about, Cliff Carl would sooner or later get around to his dearest hope.

This was for a new museum which would properly house and present the cultural and natural history of a province rich in both.

So much was laid away in storage that could be effectively displayed. There were West Coast canoes, for instance. He would tell me in loving detail about those deep-sea craft of an earlier era. The chances are that you've seen and marvelled at them in the fine new museum that opened its carved wooden doors in August of 1968.

Many of the concepts embodied in the museum are Carl's. And as its first director, it fell on him to weather the teapot tempests that began even before the opening.

The Nootka whaling scene behind its shimmering rain-curtains had its highly-vocal critics. So did the rain-curtains themselves, also the distribution of totems, the carvings on the doors, and other details.

Through all this, the director kept his cool and got on with the job. As he saw the museum role, it is a job that will never be complete.

On Monday morning we went down to Heritage Court and the Provincial Museum which is now also a memorial to a man and his dream.

A surprising number of adults and vacationing children were roving its floors. We spent a while in the Hall of the Sea—Cliff Carl's special project, and the one which he as retired director had meant to concentrate upon.

Later, drifting on, we found among the animals a handsome fellow with dark head, sleekly-furred back and tapered rudder of a tail.

Forgetting the Counsel?

AT THE OPENING OF THE B.C. Teachers' Federation annual meeting in Vancouver, President James Killeen told the 1,000 assembled delegates that teachers are being told to improve the quality of education but, at the same time, to do it with less money. Although teachers themselves are receiving more money than a year ago through the annual process of wage increases added to regular increments, money for many of the projects and programs considered desirable by teachers is not forthcoming in the amounts they would like.

For this, federation spokesmen blame the existing formula imposed by the provincial government. The formula permits boards to increase their budgets up to 10 per cent above the amount spent the preceding year. Beyond that it calls for an approach to municipal councils to authorize anything in excess, to the taxpaying public in the form of a referendum for the same purpose, or to the cabinet. Since referenda have been turned down in many localities, boards could not raise the funds for desirable undertakings and the teachers feel restricted in trying to improve provincial education.

This should not come as a surprise. Last November the official organ, the B.C. Teacher, editorialized on the financial outlook ahead.

"Whatever the reasons," it said, "the fact is that more money for education is going to be increasingly hard to come by. It behooves the profession, therefore, to analyse critically what we are doing, to see if the things we are doing are the best things and to see if we can do them more efficiently."

The editorial rejected the old myth that "there is no problem in education that the spending of more money can't resolve."

Teaching delegates in Vancouver this week should keep that advice in mind. This is not to suggest that the present provincial school financing formula is beyond reproach. Far from it. The formula will be inadequate as long as it places so large a share of school taxation on municipally taxed real estate instead of broadening the base of taxation. But the November pronouncement points a direction: to provide the best possible education from the funds available. And according to the arithmetic of the old math, what is subtracted from revenue to increase teachers' salaries is not available for allocation to other objectives.

Dr. G. Clifford Carl

WHERE QUIET INFORMED opinion, sound scientific learning and sincere good fellowship are most appreciated, the late Dr. G. Clifford Carl will be most deeply missed. But his shockingly unexpected death last Friday will be felt far beyond the circles of those who worked or studied with him, for he did much to popularize his field of biology, particularly marine biology, and his audience of readers was large and faithful.

As a scientist, and as a human being in the fullest sense of humanity, Dr. Carl was outstanding. The province and the research which he served with equal distinction for so many years have suffered a loss which will not be fully met. In recent weeks he had confided to friends his pleasure at being permitted to turn from the administration of the new provincial museum toward whose founding he had worked so hard, and to devote his full time to the study of the world of nature which he loved so well. Part of his recent work was in connection with the development of a museum section to be known as the Hall of the Sea. It would be in keeping with the wishes of many British Columbians if this were to be officially named the G. Clifford Carl Memorial Hall of the Sea, or that some similar public mark of tribute be rendered to his memory.

The Victoria Daily Times joins with hundreds of friends and institutions in expressing sympathy to the members of his family who are so sadly bereaved.

The Tumult of Italian Politics

FOR THE PAST SIX WEEKS Italy has been without a recognized government and it now appears that a new fragile centre-left coalition will survive, if only because there was danger of a complete breakdown in the country's democratic machinery. The new coalition will keep parliament in session, at least until the early summer regional elections. And while parliament lasts there is a chance for passage of several urgent bills including university and tax reforms, divorce, modern labor statutes, revision of the penal code and a financial law for the newly constituted regions or counties.

Untangling the strings attached to Italian politics is an endless and ever changing process as parties slide together only to have factions within the parties diverge. One of the thickest strings goes to the Vatican where opposition to the impending divorce bill is formidable. The Italian lower house and the senate committees have already ruled that divorce may be handled by the Italian parliament without consulting the Vatican. This means that the centre-left coalition, formed on the promise of going ahead with the divorce law and long promised regional elections, will have some ready-made enemies among the more traditional elements of the Church.

There are, however, no strings attached to the Italian Communist Party which has tended to gain about one million votes in each national election. And naturally enough, the other major political parties wonder how to deal with the volatile Communists. At present some parties, notably the Socialists, want the Communists in the government, while others say the Communists will never be tolerated.

A sizable shift in votes for or against the Communists in the impending regional elections could determine the shape of Italian politics for the future. While always a political force to be reckoned with, the far leftists have not been in an Italian government since Alcide de Gasperi invited them to leave 25 years ago.

The bitter rivalry between Amintore Fanfani and Aldo Moro for the eventual presidency of the republic is another reference point which cannot be ignored in Italian politics. But until the Italians can find a General de Gaulle-like figure around whom they can rally an effective majority, their national politics will probably remain in a state that can only be described as confused.

". . . I told her that digging up a garden was strictly a man's right . . ."

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

The Threat of Engulfment by Ministates

THE United States is fighting a lonely battle to keep the UN from being over-run by ministates. But almost no one else seems willing to help—and in the end, Washington may have to use the veto if it is to hold the line. This, in capsule, is what has been happening behind the scenes here in an unpublicized struggle of considerable long-range importance. The ministate battle has been going on in a "committee of experts" set up last fall by the 15-nation UN Security Council.

Frye

The stake is whether, over the next five to 10 years, as the final remnants of colonial empires demand and gain independence, the UN is to have a population explosion which would bring into membership 60 to 75 infant "countries," each with less than 1,000,000 people and many with less than 100,000.

United States delegate Charles W. Yost and his aides see a UN of 185-200 members (by comparison with the present 126) as a serious threat to the organization's stature and effectiveness. So does Secretary-General U Thant.

Such a UN, Yost has said, would risk "losing its relevance to the real world of nations and being reduced to an absurdity."

Pitcairn Voice

He has been arguing that the tiniest of the ministates—Pitcairn Island, for example, has about 90 inhabitants—should be limited to non-voting associate memberships, not made full participants.

The idea has not caught on. The Soviet Union admits privately that it, too, is worried, since the "revolt" of small powers against the great in recent years has sometimes had an adverse effect on its interests, as well as Washington's.

But Moscow is not willing to do anything that might undercut its influence in the third world.

The British, many of whose present dependencies are involved, are willing to co-operate with Washington, but want exceptions to be made in so many "special cases" that Americans doubt any line could be held.

The official British position is that associate membership would be fine provided it could be arranged with the consent of the small countries—a virtually impossible proviso in many cases.

The French refuse to be alarmed by the possibility of a huge UN, full of ministates. The world organization already is of very little use, they say, and 185 or 200 members would simply point up its futility.

The Security Council's experts therefore have bogged down. Nothing seems likely to be agreed upon before the next ministate (probably Tonga, population 79,000) comes up for consideration; and then the issues may be complicated by prior commitments, the embarrassment of rebuffing a friendly applicant, and other difficulties.

UN people say there will never be any restraints applied in practice until or unless Washington gets on its horse and insists upon realistic criteria for admission, letting it be known that the American veto will, if necessary, back up the demand. No country can be admitted to the UN if a great power votes "no." To stand in the way of an eager applicant, flushed with newly-attained independence and hoping for the final jewel in its sovereign crown, would be to risk considerable unpopularity with the applicant and its friends.

But to fail to do so would be to open the UN to slow death by dilution.

The 65 smallest of the ministates have, altogether, only two-tenths of 1 per cent of the population of the present membership. Yet they would, if admitted, have more than one-third of the votes.

They could, theoretically, block adoption of important General Assembly resolutions.

In practice it would not be likely to happen that way, since the new members in all probability would divide up and adhere to existing UN blocs. The Latin American bloc, which often votes with the United States, would be a major beneficiary.

But it would not be safe to encourage their admission for the purpose of enlarging the roll of American clients. Experience in Africa has shown that second and third generations of leaders, as coup follows coup, can be less predictable than the men left in power by a departing colonial overlord. And blocs often follow extremist leadership.

Destroying Image

In any event, the impact on the UN's image would be disastrous. Those who scorn the present UN for distorting the realities of power could do so, with greater basis in fact, if one-third to one-half of the organization were entities that were countries only, or primarily, in legal theory.

Similar fears were heard when the UN began its expansion from 60-odd nations to 126. They may once again be exaggerated. But even if one-third of them proved justified, the effectiveness of UN diplomacy would be vastly reduced.

The United States almost certainly will have to insist that the UN exercise birth control. Without it the "old woman who lived in a shoe" will have had a 10-room penthouse by comparison.

PQ's Running While Others Warm Up

THE Quebec election campaign will not get under way in earnest until the parties can present nearly complete slates of candidates. The Liberals, weakened by a wave of retirements among their members of the National Assembly, are scrambling to recruit big-name candidates to provide a prospective cabinet team such as won in 1960. National Union ministers are making a few minor forays into the hinterland to promise a road here, a hospital there, just to prove the party hasn't really changed since the old days, and to order the faithful not to escalate the "war with Ottawa" theme too much for fear of driving votes to the Creditistes. And the Creditistes are trying to live down federal party leader Real Caouette's incredible bungling at the provincial leadership convention March 22.

Purser

Only one party is maintaining a relatively early profile—the separatist Parti Quebecois. And it is getting plenty of mileage out of it, attracting wide publicity and showing considerable signs of popularity. It cannot yet be said whether the PQ or the Creditistes will have the biggest "spoiler" effect on the old parties, but Rene Levesque's dynamic campaign is obviously developing into a thing to watch.

Second only to the question of who forms the next government of Quebec after April 29 is the question of what size showing the PQ makes—and this may be the most important question in the long run.

Tremendous Enthusiasm

Large audiences and tremendous enthusiasm have been marking the appearances of the PQ's big names, which incidentally are becoming more numerous. Jacques Parizeau, the party's resident economist, is proving a big attention-getter everywhere he goes. He was nominated PQ candidate for the Montreal north-end riding of Ahuntsic by a wildly cheering crowd of 2,000 last week. A large nationalist element there and the expected retirement of the popular Liberal incumbent, Jean-Paul Lefebvre, gives Mr. Parizeau a chance.

He and Mr. Levesque also went over well before a sizable audience in Chicoutimi, metropolis of the Saguenay region, where another big name, well-known criminologist Marc-Andre Bedard, was nominated. He will battle Quebec's enigmatic cultural affairs minister, Jean-Noel Tremblay.

The party is also fielding such prominent Quebecers as Bernard Landry, former special adviser to the education department, former Laval University professor Doris Lussier, and well-known lawyer Guy Bertrand. A big catch over the weekend was University of Montreal law professor Jacques-Yvan Morin, a leading intellectual and contributor to the French-language press.

The intellectual level of PQ candidates is in general impressively high. The party even has one English-speaking candidate, lawyer Paul Unterberg, who as both an immigrant and a Jew is out to persuade Quebec's minorities that separatism is their best guarantee of security. He faces a hopeless battle in an English-speaking Montreal riding certain to be retained by the popular Liberal incumbent, Dr. Victor Goldbloom. The PQ has also so far sent two French-speaking candidates to contest other English-speaking, sure-fire Liberal ridings in Montreal.

Mr. Levesque is singularly anxious to convince the province's minorities that separatism is no threat to them. His decision, reached after several days of hesitation, to run again in his present riding of Montreal-Laurier, is evidence of his stress on this point. He was elected easily enough there three times before, but as a Liberal. Following a recent immigrant influx, his riding now has a 25 per cent ethnic minority population, mostly Italian, and Italian Quebecers following the St. Leonard affair are commonly supposed to fear separatism as they dread fire.

But Mr. Levesque, taking the risk of his life, says that to flee Laurier in search of a "safe" all French-speaking riding would raise another wall between majority and minorities. He will face stiff Liberal competition from Mrs. Jeanne Sauve, a CBC commentator just as Mr. Levesque once was, and who speaks fluent Italian.

Mr. Levesque professes to believe his party will get 25 to 33 per cent of the vote, although party officials privately believe a showing of close to 20 per cent will maintain the party's viability even if no seats are won. A vote such as Mr. Levesque predicts would be bound to be translated into at least some seats, but few outside the party would share his claims that he has 30 guaranteed strong ridings and will get 75 per cent of Montreal's white collar vote.

Current of Independence

Yet it is true that there is a real current of independence flowing though Quebec, as he says, and it is by no means as certain as is popularly supposed that it is largely confined to the youth and intellectual communities. A solid middle class, middle-aged element is evident at party gatherings.

Former federal Creditiste MP Gilles Gregoire, now PQ candidate in the Saguenay riding of Jonquiere, may have been overly optimistic Sunday when he remarked laconically that "only 35 days before independence should be easy to bear" — the election is April 29 — but never were truer words spoken than Mr. Levesque's: "Even if we only carry 10 or 12 ridings the National Assembly will never be the same."

Looking Back

From the Times of March 31, 1910:

It is proposed that on and after July 14 next, all places where liquor is sold will be required to close at 11 p.m. every day in the week, thus altering the hours observed by saloons and hotels which may, under the present system, remain open until midnight except on Saturdays, when they close at 11 p.m.

Shades of Schiklgruber!

I wish to draw attention to the plight of one of the most forgotten men, namely, Herr Rudolf Hess, the Fuhrer's deputy. Herr Hess has been held in captivity for 29 years, the last three of which have been in solitary.

The charge laid against Herr Hess at Nuremberg was founded on the allegation that his signature was found on a document, signed by himself in 1935, in terms of which it was decreed that military training for young men was to be compulsory! Obviously no charge at all! Not only is Rudolf Hess innocent of any crimes against humanity, but in 1941, he undertook a dangerous and difficult flight to Great Britain in order to bring about the end of hostilities between the two sides. Had the war ended in 1941, millions of lives would have been saved, and Europe preserved from the threat of Marxist-Leninism.

Unfortunately, we were not as keen to negotiate with the Nazis then as we are now with the Marxists at such places as Panmunjom and Paris! The International Zionist Financiers, whose stooges the Reds happen to be, were determined to crush Germany at all costs, not because Hitler wanted to conquer the earth (which he did not want) but because he saw through their evil schemes and intended to do something about it. When he entered Vienna in 1938, one of the first things Hitler did was to close the Rothschild House there, for which he deserves full credit!

The time is long overdue when we should not only free but also exonerate this man Rudolf Hess, the tragic victim of Talmudic justice—which is no justice at all!—Richard D. Corrance, 1037 Craigdarroch Rd.

The Real Issue

I have tried to follow the controversy regarding the location of the "now famous road." What amazes me is that the real issue is not discussed; rather the conflict centres on the peripheral issue of whether to skirt St. Joseph's Hospital's enlarged property or slice through it. When I discussed the real issue with one of my friends he said that he didn't expect any politician to make a sound decision if it was an unpopular one.

What is the real issue? Whether the civil servants of the goverment, by their driving and working hours, can force Victoria or even the Regional District (meaning the taxpayers) to pay for a $2 million diversion. Already James Bay is practically a parking lot for the convenience of the same civil servants. For a short-term solution I recommend staggered working hours. For the long-term, there is no alternative than to ban private automobiles in congested areas, substituting a rapid public transit system. No matter how we squirm, wriggle, or protest the human species has to say "stop!" to the automobile now. Yes, I drive a car but I concur in the concept of no private cars in congested areas.

If any readers share my concern please inform Mayors Curtis and Haddock and Hon. R. R. Loffmark, minister of health.—Mrs. B. Levitz Packford, 152 Cambridge St.

BELGIUM ARRESTS SUSPECT RUSSIAN SPY

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Belgian security police have arrested a 36-year-old Russian truck salesman, accused of trying to set up a spy network in NATO's European military headquarters, the Belgian justice ministry said today.

A ministry statement said the man, Boris Savitch, employed as an engineer and salesman here with the Soviet Scaldia-Volga vehicle firm since October, 1967, tried to escape when arrested in a restaurant March 25.

* * *

Police found miniature photography equipment, several rolls of film on him, and a large amount of money.

The justice ministry has asked for Savitch's expulsion from Belgium, the statement added.

Light Term Given Over POW Killing

From AP-Reuters

LONG BINH, Vietnam (CP) — A military court today agreed on a sentence of six months in jail and a $1,500 fine for a young U.S. Army lieutenant the court two days ago unwittingly put in line for a life sentence for the murder of a Vietnamese prisoner-of-war.

The eight-man court Monday revoked its premeditated murder conviction against Lieut. James B. Duffy, 23, of Claremont, Calif., and found him guilty instead of involuntary manslaughter and conspiracy to commit manslaughter.

The court said it didn't realize the murder conviction carried a mandatory life sentence.

Duffy could have drawn a maximum of six years on the manslaughter counts.

The prisoner was captured by Duffy's platoon in the Mekong Delta last Sept. 5. One of Duffy's men is accused of doing the shooting.

Today's verdict and sentence now will be reviewed by higher authorities in Vietnam and Washington and can be reduced by any of them.

The jurors deliberated for 4½ hours after which they said they wished to hand down a suspended sentence. But this was rejected by the trial judge, Col. Peter Wondolowski, of Springfield, Va., who said they were not able to order such a sentence.

After a further two hours, the jury agreed to a sentence of six months' imprisonment and a fine of $250 a month for six months.

Hobos Protest

LONDON (Reuters) — Everyone is getting in on the act of demonstrating these days—even tramps. Four of them arrived at Buckingham Palace Monday pushing a pram full of cigarette ends they had picked up on a 120-mile protest march from the seaside resort of Brighton to draw attention to the plight of Britain's estimated 100,000 hobos.

RUSSIA CANCELS BOMBING NEAR JAPAN

TOKYO (AP) — The Soviet Union announced today that it has cancelled four bombing exercises it planned to conduct in waters off Japan next month, the Japanese foreign ministry reported.

The Soviet decision followed a strong protest by the Japanese government last week that the tests would interfere with air and sea traffic and affect fishing.

* * *

The Soviet government announced last week it would conduct the tests April 1-27 in internatinal waters of Shikaku, Japan's main southern island, the Soviet Kamchatka Peninsula and Kurile Islands, and in the Japan Sea.

On Monday, the Soviet Union announced cancellation of the exercise off Shikoku and postponement of the other tests.

Saved Woman Sued

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — A U.S. Navy lieutenant who rescued a 70-year-old woman from her burning apartment last April sued the woman Monday for $1,500,000 for alleged negligence in starting the fire. Lieut. Thorpe Whiteman, 26, claimed in a suit filed in Superior Court that he hurt his back in rescuing Fannie Goldsmith and subsequently lost his job as a naval dentist.

TENANT SETS DATE FOR BLANSHARD COURT OPENING

Leave It to Daisy, a Blooming Organizer

By PAT DUFOUR

Federal, provincial and city authorities appear to be taking orders from a diminutive woman who moved into her new home at Blanshard Court this morning.

She's set the date for the official opening of the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal project for Saturday, April 11 at 2 p.m. and she's organizing all the details.

•

Mrs. Daisy Beckett stole the march on officialdom when she decided weeks ago to organize the event, which would normally have been handled by the city and contractor.

"I wrote to Mr. Groos in Ottawa and asked him to attend. He wrote back and said he'd be delighted.

"The Central Mortgage and Housing people phoned me when they heard about my opening. They said I'd beaten them to the gun. They have to cancel any other opening because you couldn't expect a busy member of parliament like Mr. Groos to fly out for two ceremonies."

•

A CMHC official said today the housing authority's public relations man would arrive from Vancouver Wednesday to check details with Mrs. Beckett. He'd be in a better position then to give information — but he thought the date was April 18.

Having financed 75 per cent of the project, CMHC hopes Mrs. Beckett sends them an invitation.

The ceremony will take place at the patio entrance of the Beckett unit with Public Works Minister W. N. Chant and David Groos sharing ribbon cutting honors.

Mrs. Beckett caused a flutter at a city council meeting when it was announced that she has bypassed the mayor and asked former alderman Robert Baird to officially turn the key of her home at the event.

City Hall was placated when Mrs. Beckett later invited Mayor Courtney Haddock to attend the ceremony.

"I asked my old friend Bob Baird to do the honors two years ago. I had no intention of letting him down," Mrs. Beckett explains.

•

Unorthodox though it may be, a total of 75 guests have accepted invitations to attend.

Only one has not yet replied—Social Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi.

"He should be here. After all we're all part of his job."

Mrs. Beckett has asked Rev. John Watson of First Baptist Church to give the official blessing.

"He's the head of the Council of Churches in Victoria. This way I won't have people saying I favored one religion more than the other."

Once the 75 dignitaries have been given a tour of the Beckett home they'll be entertained—buffet style.

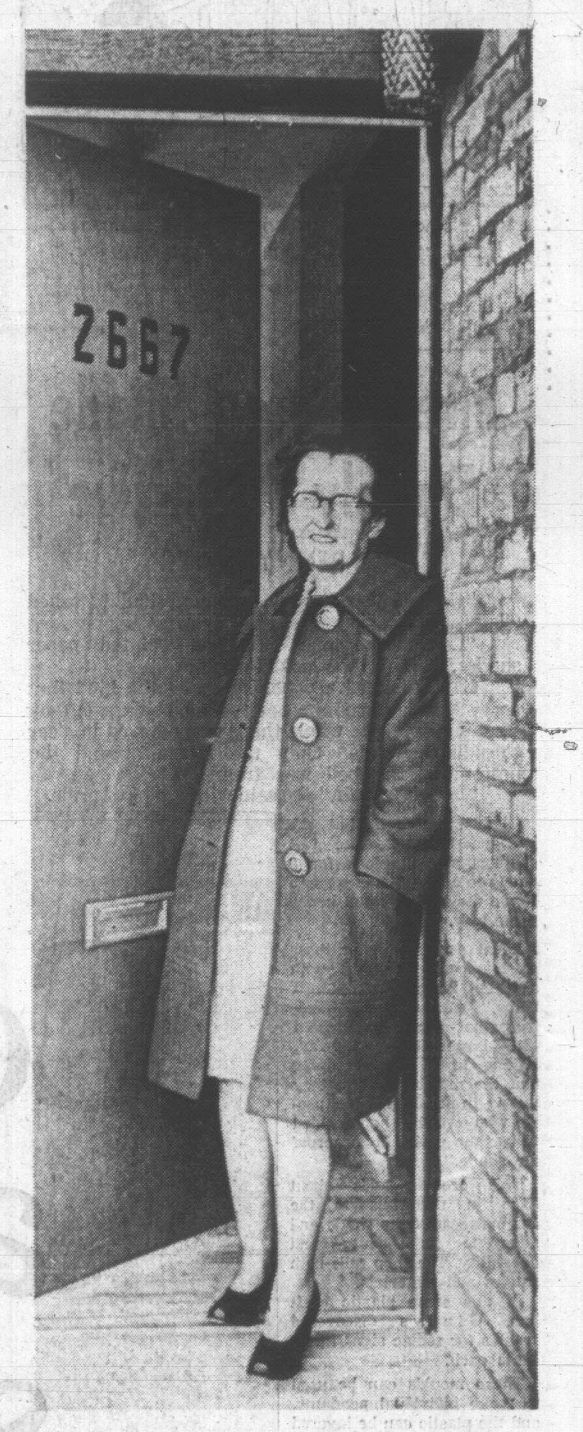
"Most of these official openings are dull affairs—with no food. I intend to do this one properly.

•

"The menu's all set—tasty sandwiches, olives, stuffed celery, pickles, pastries, tea and coffee. I've also ordered a huge cake that's going to have 'Welcome to the Open House' in gold," she said as outside the first 31 of the 180 families who will live in the project went on with the work of moving in.

Mrs. Beckett has been gathering a "hope chest" for the last six months, saving her pennies in order to buy new drapes and towels in local sales.

"The place is going to look really good and the floors are going to be polished to a shine."



Daisy Beckett jumped the gun.

Aldermen Delay Key Lease On CPR Waterfront Plan

Victoria city's community planning committee this morning refused to give Canadian Pacific Railway a letter agreeing to renewal of a federal water lease off Belleville Street.

The company has already applied for renewal of the lease for a 50-year period but requires the city's blessing before the transport department issues the necessary documents.

And this morning the city was stubbornly refusing to issue that permission until Marathon Realty, the real estate arm of the CPR, guarantees a first class development on the site of the old CPR ferry terminal.

Although the lease in question is relatively small it occupies a key position on the site of the CPR proposed new docking facility for the Victoria-Seattle ferry.

CAN'T PROCEED

David Mooney told the committee for Marathon that his company couldn't really go ahead with the building of a new ferry slip until it was guaranteed tenure.

The city pointed out through Ald. Peter Pollen, committee chairman, that it would be remiss in its duty to citizens if it did not use every weapon available to protect the interests of the people.

At press time today the impasse was unresoved although Marathon and the city had agreed to strike a working committee to try and resolve the problem.

STARTED YEAR AGO

The complicated history of the Belleville Street development proposal commenced almost a year ago when the CPR and Marathon unveiled a master-plan for Belleville Street at a press conference aboard Princess Marguerite.

Victoria architect John A Di Castri was named designer of a $3 million project.

Some months went by before a modified plan surfaced. It was entitled "Scheme Three." Scheme Two has never been made public.

But even "Scheme Three" was just a step towards other reductions in the master-plan. In all, five schemes were prepared and the fifth presented to the city last Wednesday.

City planner Geoff Greenhalgh described the final draft as "totally unrelated to Scheme Four" which had won cautious council support.

GREENHALGH
. . . "totally unrelated"

Ald. Peter Pollen termed "Scheme Five" as "so modified that it was unacceptable to the city." It was valued at $1 million.

With the city rejecting the latest Marathon plan and also tabling a bylaw which would have relaxed setback rules in the area, the company said it would go ahead anyway.

Marathon said the final draft was not a first-class project, but pointed out that it didn't need city approval to build whatever it wanted on its own property.

This morning the city pulled an ace out of the hat to counter the threat of unsatisfactory development.

Over the weekend city officials discovered that three CPR water leases from the federal government come up for renewal within the next two years. One of them, the key to the new docking facilities, is up for renewal on April 19, 1970.

All three need city approval before Ottawa will grant the renewals.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE

Pollen told Marathon this morning he would not recommend council approval until he had a written guarantee from Marathon stating that the old terminal development would be first class.

"It is not our intention to place the CPR in an untenable position," Pollen said. "We need them and they need us. They keep asking us 'what do you want?' The answer to that is simple. We want scheme one. And if we can't have that we want to be in a position to work with them towards something mutually acceptable."

City Manager Dennis Young said he would like to see the entire CPR-Marathon concept for development in the area.

"It is becoming obvious that this (the terminal proposal and the ferry slip) is just a very small part of the over-all plan," he said.

"CHEW AWAY"

"I'm afraid that if we just permit this without safeguards it will be like permitting them to just chew away at the harbor in bits and pieces."

Mooney said it was imperative that the CPR receive the city's letter of approval quickly if the new ferry dock was to be finished in time for the tourist season.

"There is some urgency," he said. "And we have actually started construction."

Young suggested that in addition to the city's approval of the granting of a lease Marathon might also like a building permit for the project underway.

Further discussions were scheduled for this afternoon.

For Two Bits You Won't Get Kicked Off Bus

B.C. Hydro's switch Wednesday to the exact fare system does not mean that anyone without correct change will be automatically prevented from getting on the bus.

This was disclosed in a recent interview with H. R. Halls, manager of the Greater Victoria transit system. The exact fare requirement is being introduced along with the fare boost to 25 cents cash for adults to cut costs as well as increase revenue.

Halls said that "if someone comes on board with, say, a dollar bill, the driver certainly is not going to throw him off.

★ ★ ★

"That person has two choices — he can try to find some other passenger who can change the dollar or he can put it in the fare box and the driver will give him a 75-cent refund slip which he can get cashed at our office on Gorge Road."

Lloyd Graber, general manager of the Seattle Transit System which introduced exact fare requirements a year ago, said in a telephone interview that "it has worked very well and was willingly accepted by our riders as a means of protecting our drivers, several of whom had been robbed the previous year.

"It did not cause any substantial inconvenience."

★ ★ ★

Halls, noting there has been criticism before the change over, said exact fares "are no different than having to use exact change for parking meters, pay phones, candy, drink and cigarette dispensers which are accepted now by the public."

He said it will produce some internal savings and will help buses to maintain scheduled speeds despite increasing traffic congestion.

However, he said, the main purpose is to retain safety standards because drivers cannot safely make change while driving on today's congested streets.

Halls made his comments during interviews by Times reporter John Mika who looked into public transit's role in meeting traffic congestion problems here. His series of three reports start on Wednesday.

Garage Operators May Try Business Tax Rebellion

Victoria service station operators meet Thursday night to press their fight with city hall over substantially increased 1970 business tax assessments.

About 20 appeals lodged against the raises—some several times their 1969 levels—were turned down by the court of revision this month. The business tax assessment roll rose $3 million this year to $12.5 million.

City assessor Alf Joyce said the whole roll was revised to be consistent with current conditions. Assessments are based on a number of factors, including rental values.

Bob Dunsmuir, leader of the Automotive Retailers Association group, said the membership "certainly is going to protest; I don't know whether it will do any good, but we're not sitting back.

"It is rapidly getting to the point where a man can't afford to be in small business." Dunsmuir cited his own assessment of $14,700, up $6,700 in the past year and $11,000 in four years.

He reckons he will have to pay the equivalent of $50 a month more rent to support the expected business tax, and to raise $50 he will have to do $450 a month additional business.

Joseph Armitage, operating a new station at the top of Yates, said he does not know where the money for higher taxes is going to come from.

"I'm stuck for about $800 I wasn't expecting," he said.

Dunsmuir echoed the sentiment: "They came up with a whopper."

He said a new approach would be made to city hall "to ask if it will reconsider its decision."

Association members will also explore the idea of not paying the business tax.

TWO MEN WALK AWAY FROM IMPRISONMENT

Prison authorities said the pair, both serving three-year sentences for the same breaking and entering offences and both due to be released next March, walked away from the minimum security institution between 8:30 and 9 p.m.

Kammerle is five feet nine, 140 to 150 pounds, with hazel eyes and medium brown hair. Beck is five feet 11, 145 pounds, with blue eyes, blond hair and a light complexion.

Woman Falls to Death After Slip on Balcony

A 63-year-old city woman fell to her death Monday morning from the balcony of her fifth-floor apartment when she slipped while washing a glass divider.

Mrs. Jessie Robertson, who lived in apartment 507 of the Beckley Manor, 548 Dallas, was using a step-style stool to clean the divider separating the balcony from that of the next apartment, police said.

The neighboring apartment, suite 506, is occupied by the victim's brother-in-law, Herbert, and his wife Mona.

Mrs. Mona Robertson saw her sister-in-law washing the divider shortly before 10 a.m., then heard a scream and ran next door to find the woman had fallen, police said.

Police believe the woman had tried to remove a board, partially covering the bottom of the divider, while standing on the stool, lost her balance and fell, taking the board with her.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital at about 10:20 a.m.

Coroner Edmond St. Jorre said this morning after receiving a full report from police that he is making the ruling of "pure accident" in his inquiry.

Mrs. Robertson is survived by her husband, James William Robertson, at home, and four brothers, Jack Brown, of Tuscon, Ariz., Bert Brown, Toronto, Roderick Brown, Regina, and David Brown, Vancouver.

Funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers chapel at 1:15 p.m. Thursday with Rev. J. L. W. McLean officiating.

Arthur Mayse . . .

WE WERE WALKING THE Sayward Beach tide flats on Sunday when, close inshore, we glimpsed a dark head smaller than a seal's. The creature trailed only the merest suggestion of a wake. As we watched, it rolled a sleek back above the surface. A tapered tail flipped clear, then vanished in a flirt of spray.

Presently the head showed again, a fish shining between its jaws. We watched without moving while a land otter hauled out on a weedy rock-nub and proceeded to eat its catch.

We began to ease closer. But a couple of watchful crows scolded and hopped about. The otter turned his head with a flash of grey throat-patch, then flowed off the rock to vanish with scarce a ripple.

A sight to remember. It raised questions. What kind of fish? And would the otter have a mate not far away? But the man who was wise in such matters, and who would spare time from his busy day to talk about them, will do so no more.

Only a matter of hours after we saw the otter at his fishing, a friend called to tell me that Dr. G. Clifford Carl had died.

To the working press, he was Cliff Carl, a naturalist of solid reputation with an easy voice and a friendly way. Let nature intrude upon the news and it was almost automatic to dial the Legislative Buildings and ask for his office local in the Provincial Museum.

In our newspaper library are useful handbooks Carl had written. To these he added the excursions into the natural world that appeared on our Times Page 5 as often as he could turn his hand to them.

Drawn from a wealth of knowledge and experience, they were more than merely informative. They offered relief from the other, man-made world in which most of us spend our days.

Back in the years when British Columbia's Provincial Museum was cramped into a wing of the greystone Buildings, I would once in a while drop in on Cliff Carl.

The director's desk was always cluttered—in this he was a true biologist. Much of its overload consisted of reports, observations and messages from his impressive network of volunteer scouts.

Any number of men who work close to wild nature knew about him and his work. When they came on the strange or the curious, they would send him word.

Whales? Well here was a report from a lightkeeper, and a fisherman up the west coast had written him an interesting letter . . .

He would lean forward with his elbows on his desk; and whatever else we talked about, Cliff Carl would sooner or later get around to his dearest hope.

This was for a new museum which would properly house and present the cultural and natural history of a province rich in both.

So much was laid away in storage that could be effectively displayed. There were West Coast canoes, for instance. He would tell me in loving detail about those deep-sea craft of an earlier era. The chances are that you've seen and marvelled at them in the fine new museum that opened its carved wooden doors in August of 1968.

Many of the concepts embodied in the museum are Carl's. And as its first director, it fell on him to weather the teapot tempests that began even before the opening.

The Nootka whaling scene behind its shimmering rain-curtains had its highly-vocal critics. So did the rain-curtains themselves, also the distribution of totems, the earvings on the doors, and other details.

Through all this, the director kept his cool and got on with the job. As he saw the museum role, it is a job that will never be complete.

On Monday morning we went down to Heritage Court and the Provincial Museum which is now also a memorial to a man and his dream.

A surprising number of adults and vacationing children were roving its floors. We spent a while in the Hall of the Sea—Cliff Carl's special project, and the one which he as retired director had meant to concentrate upon.

Later, drifting on, we found among the animals a handsome fellow with dark head, sleekly-furred back and tapered rudder of a tail.

Buffy St. Marie Sings for Cree

TORONTO (CP) — Blue jeans, moccasins, a repertoire of protest songs and convictions: Buffy Saint Marie has most of the tools to organize and better the position of the North American Indian.

The Cree folk singer, born on the Piapot reserve in Saskatchewan, is organizing, but in her own way, at her own pace.

"Everybody's always saying, 'Why don't you people get together and unite?'" Buffy said in Toronto recently where she appeared at a benefit concert for the Ontario Native Development Fund. "We've spent the past 10 years getting organized."

Besides playing for benefits of this type, she has undertaken a number of individual projects for Indians.

There now are three students at university in California studying under a project Buffy established to put Indian people through law school.

The best sort of help is financial, she says: "It takes money to do anything, and the best way I can think of for raising money is to hold concerts."

WANT HER FOR FREE

Experience has proven there are pitfalls to this approach, however.

"Most people's idea of an Indian benefit is some school asking me to sing for free—I've been done out of more money that way," she says bitterly.

Buffy started her singing career in college where she majored in Oriental philosophy and minored in elementary education.

To pay her way she sang in coffee-houses and occasionally on television.

Throughout, she never forgot her Indian heritage and obligations.

She talks freely of the inequity of the Indian's position.

"It terrifies you as an educated person, and even more as an Indian," she said. "The suicide rate among Indians is the highest, the infant mortality rate is the highest, we're the first on the list for government help and the last to receive it."

Jet Survives Explosion, Near Crash

SEATTLE (AP) — High over Alaska's remote wilderness an engine exploded on a Western Airlines jet. Jagged pieces of metal ripped through the fuselage.

Hours earlier, good visibility had prevented what could have been an in-flight collision over Alaska between two jets.

It all happened Saturday to Western Airlines veteran pilot Charles Davis.

First, an air traffic controller at Elmendorf, Alaska, inadvertantly scheduled both an inbound and outbound jet in the same lane of traffic at the Juneau, Alaska, airport.

A Federal Aviation Administration official said visibility was the only thing that prevented a "disaster" between two Western aircraft.

* * *

"Davis had Flight 724 in sight at all times and the nearest the two planes came to one another was two miles," he said.

Hours later, Davis' plane was jolted by a disintegrating engine that peppered the fuselage from the tail section to the cabin area of the four-engine Boeing 720B.

The captain quickly switched off power to the engine adjacent to the faulty one as a precautionary move. Davis said none of the metal penetrated the cabin carrying 12 passengers to Seattle from Anchorage, Alaska.

With only two engines providing power, he made an emergency landing at Ketchikan, Alaska, the nearest city with an airport large enough for the jetliner.

The shaken but unhurt passengers were transferred to another aircraft and continued their flight to Seattle.

Cash Balks At Nixon's Request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A while back President Nixon heard a tape of country music. One song, Welfare Cadilac, so fascinated him that he asked country singer Johnny Cash to sing it during a White House social April 17.

Welfare and civil rights leaders protested. They said Welfare Cadilac, spelled with one 'L,' pokes fun at people on welfare and depicts a shiftless father who relies on "fool" taxpayers.

Mrs. Connie Stuart, staff director to the first lady, said despite the controversy Nixon did not repudiate his request and was leaving it up to Cash.

Mrs. Stuart said she talked with Cash by telephone and he made clear if the choice were his alone he would rather not sing Welfare Cadilac.

PORTRAIT that became as familiar as Mona Lisa for cigarette smokers in the Second World War brings back memories for its model, retired Chief Petty Officer J. B. Smith.

This Smith's Face Is Very Familiar

By PAT DUFOUR

Helen of Troy had a face that's reputed to have launched 1,000 ships. Jack Smith didn't do too badly with his, either.

During the latter part of the Second World War you couldn't buy a package of Players cigarettes without having Jack's face staring back at you.

How was he chosen to sit for a portrait that was to enjoy better circulation than any best-seller?

By being belligerent.

He tells it this way:

"I was aboard HMCS Ottawa when she was torpedoed in the Atlantic. They used to send us fellows ashore for six months after a thing like that so we'd have a chance to get back to normal.

"There I was in 1943, a gunnery instructor in Toronto. This particular day I'd marched all the men in the barracks down to Sunnyside and I didn't like the way they did it. So I bawled them out and made them do it again. I guess I was feeling kind of belligerent."

Whatever the emotion, it caught the fancy of artist Marion Long, RCA, OSA, who'd been commissioned to paint a "sea dog" for Imperial Tobacco Co.

She contacted the officer in charge, found out her unsuspecting subject was a PO J. B. Smith and Smith was "drafted" to act as a model.

Months later Smith's face dominated billboards across the country.

"I still remember how I felt when I was walking with my sister and she nudged my arm to show me what was on the billboards. It was kind of weird."

He never received any royalties for posing for the portrait.

Smith laughs now but he admits that the "pretty boy" ribbing he suffered from his shipmates got to be tiresome at times.

He learned to live with them, however, until he retired in 1948 as a chief petty officer with "28 years and 109 days under my belt."

Up until December Smith had never seen the portrait which now dominates one of the living room walls of his home at 902 Dellwood.

The company presented it to him after his daughter, Mrs. Robert Brown of Toronto spent two years trying to track it down.

Now 66, Smith feels on a par with royalty when he admires it.

"You know what really makes me feel good? When Marion Long painted me she'd just returned from England where she painted portraits of the royal family.

"You might say that this Smith has a real tie with Buckingham Palace."

Lecturer Jailed for Trafficking

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Robert L. Zinn, 26, has been speaking at Spokane area schools recently on his life as a drug addict. Monday he was sentenced to not more than 20 years in prison.

Superior Court Judge Raymond F. Kelly imposed the sentence after Zinn pleaded guilty to a charge of distributing a dangerous drug (marijuana) to a minor.

Zinn indicated he felt he would simply go back on drugs if he were granted probation. Judge Kelly said he would recommend Zinn serve his time at the state's intermediate facility at Shelton enabling him to continue his education.

Zinn, in the company of a deputy prosecuting attorney, has appeared at seven Spokane area schools in recent weeks, telling of his life since he started using marijuana in 1963 and then graduating to progressively stronger drugs.

Stripper's Art Bastion Closes

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Burlesque queens at the New Follies Theatre took a final bump and grind Monday night as the city's last refuge for the stripper's art closed its doors.

"It's like—well, like somebody took my teddy bear away," said Annette, a 20-year-old stripper from Seattle, awaiting a stage call at one of the last shows.

Headliner Kathy Summers—"forget my age, just call me a veteran"—disagreed.

"Frankly, this closing, it doesn't shake me that much."

The buxom blonde said money from burlesque had enabled her to raise a son now in the U.S. marines and buy a 600-acre ranch in Arizona with "all of 48 horses."

"Now I'm going to sit back and enjoy my well-gotten gains," she said.

Operator Tiny Becker, a 30-year veteran of burlesque, said the show was making money.

"We were able to pay as much as $2,000 a week to the top stars and still clear a profit," he said.

But the noon-to-midnight hours were a "real killer," Becker explained. "They don't call it a grind house for nothing.

There seemed little doubt, however, that money was a factor in the closing. The theatre will reopen Friday with a program of nudie movies and stage productions at increased prices.

$1,774 Taken at Burnside Plaza

Bank Robbery Suspect Held

Customer Chased Gunman in Circles

A lone gunman escaped from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce branch, Burnside Plaza, shortly after 10:30 a.m. with $1,774 in cash.

About 90 minutes after the holdup, police arrested a man at a roadblock and charged him with armed robbery.

The heavy-set man, about 40 years of age with receding grey hair and wearing an orange sweater, presented a note to a teller of the bank demanding money. He was holding a pistol.

All Greater Victoria police forces were alerted and the arrest took place at a roadblock Saanich police set up on the Trans-Canada Highway near Burnside.

The suspect is 40 years old and from the lower mainland, police said. They had not yet counted a sum of money seized in the arrest but described it as "a large amount."

The alert, at 10:39 a.m., sent police racing to check ferry traffic at Sidney and had city police watching traffic on Douglas for a light blue car spotted in the getaway.

Esquimalt police joined in searching motels along the Gorge but it was the roadblock stopping up-island traffic which produced the arrest.

Del Crow, 35, of 740 Newbury, the only customer in the bank at the time of the holdup was standing talking to a teller.

He didn't notice what was going on until the man was leaving and Mrs. Elaine Furiak, 105-742 Lampson, said in a shocked voice: "I've been robbed."

"Ring the alarm button," she was told by another teller.

Crow, a University of Victoria arts student, then ran out the door after the gunman and saw that he had what looked like a gun.

Crow chased him around the plaza twice, and was warned several times: "Stop or I'll shoot."

"I tried to stay 50 or 60 feet away from him as we ran around. But twice he hid on me and then accidentally we came close."

Crow was able to see the licence plate and gave it to the police when he arrived.

Bank manager C. F. G. Wainwright said his staff was "pretty shaken up."

Mrs. Furiak declined to speak to the Times, but Wainwright said she was on the job and feeling better this afternoon.

Turkey Quake Toll 3,000

GEDIZ, Turkey (CP)—New tremors pounded earthquake-battered western Turkey today, killing at least 130 persons, and unofficial sources said the death toll since the first quake Saturday night was approaching 3,000.

The first tremors hit near Simav, about 40 miles west of the ravaged town of Gediz, and 24 persons were reported killed.

About 95 more persons died when later tremers struck Emet, 30 miles west of Gediz.

Authorities said today 90,000 persons were homeless in the earthquake-torn area.

Istanbul Observatory announced today that 300 tremors have been recorded in the last 12 hours. Eight were heavy, 30 secondary and the rest minor, the observatory said.

It was during these tremors that the towns of Emet and Simav were hit.

The government said the quake Saturday destroyed at least 33 of 84 villages in the area and 28 others were uninhabitable.

Unofficial sources said more than 5,000 were injured. There were three deaths from exposure in Simav during the night.

By Monday night, soldiers and other rescue workers had dug 644 bodies from the rubble as a steady rain fell and after-shocks shook the ground from time to time.

A weary Turkish soldier, his hands raw and bleeding after hours of tearing at debris, told of the desolation in this once prosperous western Turkish agricultural town of 8,000.

"The people move in silence. The dogs have ceased to bark and the roosters have forgotten how to crow."

ORE SALES IN JEOPARDY —LORNEX

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sales and financing contracts signed by Lornex Mining Corporation Ltd., have been placed in jeopardy by British Columbia's new mineral processing act, R. D. Armstrong of Toronto, Lornex president, told the company's annual meeting here today.

At the same time trading in Lornex stock was suspended on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Lornex closed at $9 Monday.

Armstrong indicated the B.C. Act, which gives Mines Minister Frank Richter the power to order any producing B.C. mine to divert up to 50 per cent of its production to a designated smelter, could affect development of the company's Highland Valley copper holdings near Merritt, B.C., about 125 miles northeast of Vancouver.

He said the act might interfere with planned sales of ore to Japan.

School Formula Works, Brothers Tells Critics

By BOB MITCHELL
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Strong criticism of the school finance formula has not convinced Education Minister Donald Brothers it is not working.

Brothers said in an interview Monday at the annual general meeting of the B.C. Teachers' Federation he thinks the formula is working despite blistering criticism from teachers and school trustees.

During a short address to about 1,000 BCTF delegates the minister said he expects "constructive criticism" from trustees and teachers.

But he said later he doesn't include attacks on the finance formula under "constructive criticism."

"I don't think there is any room for destructive criticism."

Since the finance formula was introduced in 1968 trustees and teachers have argued against the referendum principle whereby ratepayers must give 60 per cent approval to spending of funds above the amount set by the government.

Seven such referendums were defeated last year.

EIGHT MORE

Eight more—at Nanaimo, West Vancouver, Vanderhoof, Burns Lake, Creston-Kaslo, Qualicum, Peace River North and Slocan — have been defeated in recent weeks.

BCTF President Jim Killeen Monday said education finance, and specifically the referendum principle, is at the root of major problems in B.C. schools.

Brothers said referendums have been defeated because school boards did not "sell" their programs to ratepayers.

"I think with the education formula taxpayers for the first time are able to look at a school board's budget and decide whether they want to accept it or not."

The minister said during the press conference he does not approve of confrontation tactics used by various interest groups to draw attention to school problems.

"People think the only way they can get a point across is by a confrontation."

And on teacher militancy: "I don't think it's the proper way to proceed."

During his speech Monday,

Laotians Recapture Key Sam Thong Base

VIENTIANE (AP) — Laotian government forces have recaptured the Sam Thong base site captured by the North Vietnamese on March 18, military informants said today.

Until its 6,000 inhabitants were evacuated two weeks ago, Sam Thong was the main air supply depot and relief centre for some 350,000 Meo tribesmen and other minorities in north central Laos.

Government forces began driving toward Sam Thong several days ago. Sources said three companies, or about 300 men, swept into the town late Monday afternoon, encounterin small arms fire from a North Vietnamese force of unknown size.

There was no word immediately on casualties on either side.

Fighting was reported continuing in and around Sam Thong today, and another company of government troops moved up to reinforce the attackers.

Military sources also reported a Communist unit was hit by Laotian air force strikes and artillery about five miles northeast of Sam Thong. Initial reports said 20

Disneyland Under the Park Sought for Beacon Hill

An awesome plan for a vast, dual-purpose subterranean cavern beneath the slopes of Beacon Hill Park — a super-Disneyland in happy times and a bomb shelter, should it come to that — wafted briefly through City Hall this morning.

The brain-child of Richard L. Brash, 713 Connaught, was quietly "received and filed."

The Brash underground labyrinth would be financed, its originator suggested, by a province-wide lottery and thus keep local money from going to "foreign-dominated, greasy claws outfits" abroad.

The proposal, addressed directly to Mayor J. Courtney Haddock, calls for a series of underground labyrinths beneath the rocky slopes of Dallas Road, thus preserving the natural beauty of the park above it except for a "revolving display-room-restaurant-tearoom-curio shop" on the surface.

The grotto, in peaceful times, would house amusement parks, shops, commercial advertising displays, underground hot springs, a wishing well and a weather-proof promenade with 50 feet of solid rock to keep out the elements. Exits would lead up through the rock to the revolving restaurant and various points of the park.

The brash concept will be acknowledged today in a letter of thanks by decision of city council.

Mail Plan Rejected By CNTU

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Confederation of National Trades Unions (CNTU) today rejected a federal government proposal to end two months of disrupted mail deliveries in Montreal.

Raymond Parent, secretary-general of the CNTU, announced there was "no agreement" as he emerged from more than three hours of closed-door talks with Treasury Board president C. M. (Bud) Drury.

Parent said the government's plan to "integrate" mail truck drivers, now employed by a private firm, into the Montreal Post Office was "unacceptable."

However, he said the final decision was up to the 457 members of the CNTU local representing the truckers. The members were meeting today at the Montreal headquarters of the CNTU.

AIR PIRATES BRANDISH SWORDS

100 Hostages Held in Jet

Times News Services

SEOUL — Fifteen sword-waving, dynamite-carrying Japanese student radicals held 100 people hostage in a locked airliner today after its pilot landed here during a hijack attempt.

The students, brandishing samurai swords, seized the plane during a flight from Tokyo to Fukuoka on the southwest coast of Japan, demanding to be flown to North Korea.

An elaborate ruse was staged by Seoul officials to convince the pirates they had landed in Pyongyang, but it failed.

WELCOME MESSAGES

"This is Pyongyang and we welcome you," loudspeakers blared as the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 carrying the 15 hijackers, 93 passengers and seven crew members landed. Girls carrying flowers approached the plane shouting welcome messages.

South Korean soldiers in Communist uniforms were deployed around the landed jet, and signs to make the airport appear to be Pyongyang's were hastily displayed, along with the Communist flag.

The students holding the jet, unconvinced, threatened to blow up the plane, passengers, crew and themselves if not flown on to Pyongyang, and the pilot notified the airport control tower he will take off at dawn Wednesday for the North Korean capital.

Sources at the airport saud the local JAL manager sent the air pirates a note advising them the pilot could take them to Pyongyang but they should allow the other crew members and passengers to get off in Seoul. There was no immediate response from the radicals, but they later rejected a similar plea from Masahide Kanayama, the Japanese ambassador to South Korea.

The student radicals when they took over the plane identified themselves as members of the revolutionary Red Army student faction. When the jet landed for refuelling in Fukuoka 23 persons were allowed to disembark.

OFFICIALS CONFER

A report by Radio Manhaha said the ambassador advised the pilot, Shinji Ishida, 46, to agree to the hijackers' demands to fly to the Communist North. The pilot said he did not mind flying north and was sure the passengers

Del Crow, 35, of 740 Newbury, the only customer in the bank at the time of the holdup was standing talking to a teller.

He didn't notice what was going on until the man was leaving and Mrs. Elaine Furiak, 105-742 Lampson, said in a shocked voice: "I've been robbed."

"Ring the alarm button," she was told by another teller.

Crow, a University of Victoria arts student, then ran out the door after the gunman and saw that he had what looked like a gun.

Crow chased him around the plaza twice, and was warned several times: "Stop or I'll shoot."

"I tried to stay 50 or 60 feet away from him as we ran around. But twice he hid on me and then accidentally we came close."

Crow was able to see the licence plate and gave it to the police when he arrived.

Bank manager C. F. G. Wainwright said his staff was "pretty shaken up."

Mrs. Furiak declined to speak to the Times, but Wainwright said she was on the job and feeling better this afternoon.

Turkey Quake Toll 3,000

GEDIZ, Turkey (CP)—New tremors pounded earthquake-battered western Turkey today, killing at least 130 persons, and unofficial sources said the death toll since the first quake Saturday night was approaching 3,000.

The first tremors hit near Simav, about 40 miles west of the ravaged town of Gediz, and 24 persons were reported killed.

About 95 more persons died when later tremers struck Emet, 30 miles west of Gediz.

Authorities said today 90,000 persons were homeless in the earthquake-torn area.

Istanbul Observatory announced today that 300 tremors have been recorded in the last 12 hours. Eight were heavy, 30 secondary and the rest minor, the observatory said.

It was during these tremors that the towns of Emet and Simav were hit.

The government said the quake Saturday destroyed at least 33 of 84 villages in the area and 28 others were uninhabitable.

Unofficial sources said more than 5,000 were injured. There were three deaths from exposure in Simav during the night.

By Monday night, soldiers and other rescue workers had dug 644 bodies from the rubble as a steady rain fell and after-shocks shook the ground from time to time.

A weary Turkish soldier, his hands raw and bleeding after hours of tearing at debris, told of the desolation in this once prosperous western Turkish agricultural town of 8,000.

"The people move in silence. The dogs have ceased to bark and the roosters have forgotten how to crow."

ORE SALES IN JEOPARDY —LORNEX

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sales and financing contracts signed by Lornex Mining Corporation Ltd., have been placed in jeopardy by British Columbia's new mineral processing act, R. D. Armstrong of Toronto, Lornex president, told the company's annual meeting here today.

At the same time trading in Lornex stock was suspended on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Lornex closed at $9 Monday.

Armstrong indicated the B.C. Act, which gives Mines Minister Frank Richter the power to order any producing B.C. mine to divert up to 50 per cent of its production to a designated smelter, could affect development of the company's Highland Valley copper holdings near Merritt, B.C., about 125 miles northeast of Vancouver.

He said the act might interfere with planned sales of ore to Japan.

School Formula Works, Brothers Tells Critics

By BOB MITCHELL
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Strong criticism of the school finance formula has not convinced Education Minister Donald Brothers it is not working.

Brothers said in an interview Monday at the annual general meeting of the B.C. Teachers' Federation he thinks the formula is working despite blistering criticism from teachers and school trustees.

During a short address to about 1,000 BCTF delegates the minister said he expects "constructive criticism" from trustees and teachers.

But he said later he doesn't include attacks on the finance formula under "constructive criticism."

"I don't think there is any room for destructive criticism."

Since the finance formula was introduced in 1968 trustees and teachers have argued against the referendum principle whereby ratepayers must give 60 per cent approval to spending of funds above the amount set by the government.

Seven such referendums were defeated last year.

EIGHT MORE

Eight more—at Nanaimo, West Vancouver, Vanderhoof, Burns Lake, Creston-Kaslo, Qualicum, Peace River North and Slocan — have been defeated in recent weeks.

BCTF President Jim Killeen Monday said education finance, and specifically the referendum principle, is at the root of major problems in B.C. schools.

Brothers said referendums have been defeated because school boards did not "sell" their programs to ratepayers.

"I think with the education formula taxpayers for the first time are able to look at a school board's budget and decide whether they want to accept it or not."

The minister said during the press conference he does not approve of confrontation tactics used by various interest groups to draw attention to school problems.

"People think the only way they can get a point across is by a confrontation."

And on teacher militancy:

"I don't think it's the proper way to proceed."

During his speech Monday,

WIDE-OPEN ABORTION LAW IN MARYLAND

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The Maryland legislature today enacted a bill repealing all laws regulating abortion in the state and making Maryland the most liberal state in the United States as to abortions.

The measure, passed on a final vote of 78 to 43 in the House of Delegates, would leave the matter of abortion strictly a decision between the doctor and the patient.

Laotians Recapture Key Sam Thong Base

VIENTIANE (AP) — Laotian government forces have recaptured the Sam Thong base site captured by the North Vietnamese on March 18, military informants said today.

Until its 6,000 inhabitants were evacuated two weeks ago, Sam Thong was the main air supply depot and relief centre for some 350,000 Meo tribesmen and other minorities in north central Laos.

Government forces began driving toward Sam Thong several days ago. Sources said three companies, or about 300 men, swept into the town late Monday afternoon, encounterin small arms fire from a North Vietnamese force of unknown size.

There was no word immediately on casualties on either side.

Fighting was reported continuing in and around Sam Thong today, and another company of government troops moved up to reinforce the attackers.

Military sources also reported a Communist unit was hit by Laotian air force strikes and artillery about five miles northeast of Sam Thong. Initial reports said 20

Disneyland Under the Park Sought for Beacon Hill

An awesome plan for a vast, dual-purpose subterranean cavern beneath the slopes of Beacon Hill Park — a super-Disneyland in happy times and a bomb shelter, should it come to that — wafted briefly through City Hall this morning.

The brain-child of Richard L. Brash, 713 Connaught, was quietly "received and filed."

The Brash underground labyrinth would be financed, its originator suggested, by a province-wide lottery and thus keep local money from going to "foreign-dominated, greasy claws outfits" abroad.

The proposal, addressed directly to Mayor J. Courtney Haddock, calls for a series of underground labyrinths beneath the rocky slopes of Dallas Road, thus preserving the natural beauty of the park above it except for a "revolving display-room-restaurant-tearoom-curio shop" on the surface.

The grotto, in peaceful times, would house amusement parks, shops, commercial advertising displays, underground hot springs, a wishing well and a weather-proof promenade with 50 feet of solid rock to keep out the elements. Exits would lead up through the rock to the revolving restaurant and various points of the park.

The brash concept will be acknowledged today in a letter of thanks by decision of city council.

Mail Plan Rejected By CNTU

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Confederation of National Trades Unions (CNTU) today rejected a federal government proposal to end two months of disrupted mail deliveries in Montreal.

Raymond Parent, secretary-general of the CNTU, announced there was "no agreement" as he emerged from more than three hours of closed-door talks with Treasury Board president C. M. (Bud) Drury.

Parent said the government's plan to "integrate" mail truck drivers, now employed by a private firm, into the Montreal Post Office was "unacceptable."

However, he said the final decision was up to the 457 members of the CNTU local representing the truckers. The members were meeting today at the Montreal headquarters of the CNTU.

AIR PIRATES BRANDISH SWORDS

100 Hostages Held in Jet

Times News Services

SEOUL — Fifteen sword-waving, dynamite-carrying Japanese student radicals held 100 people hostage in a locked airliner today after its pilot landed here during a hijack attempt.

The students, brandishing samurai swords, seized the plane during a flight from Tokyo to Fukuoka on the southwest coast of Japan, demanding to be flown to North Korea.

An elaborate ruse was staged by Seoul officials to convince the pirates they had landed in Pyongyang, but it failed.

WELCOME MESSAGES

"This is Pyongyang and we welcome you," loudspeakers blared as the Japan Air Lines Boeing 727 carrying the 15 hijackers, 93 passengers and seven crew members landed. Girls carrying flowers approached the plane shouting welcome messages.

South Korean soldiers in Communist uniforms were deployed around the landed jet, and signs to make the airport appear to be Pyongyang's were hastily displayed, along with the Communist flag.

The students holding the jet, unconvinced, threatened to blow up the plane, passengers, crew and themselves if not flown on to Pyongyang, and the pilot notified the airport control tower he will take off at dawn Wednesday for the North Korean capital.

Sources at the airport saud the local JAL manager sent the air pirates a note advising them the pilot could take them to Pyongyang but they should allow the other crew members and passengers to get off in Seoul. There was no immediate response from the radicals, but they later rejected a similar plea from Masahide Kanayama, the Japanese ambassador to South Korea.

The student radicals when they took over the plane identified themselves as members of the revolutionary Red Army student faction. When the jet landed for refuelling in Fukuoka 23 persons were allowed to disembark.

OFFICIALS CONFER

A report by Radio Manhaha said the ambassador advised the pilot, Shinji Ishida, 46, to agree to the hijackers' demands to fly to the Communist North. The pilot said he did not mind flying north and was sure the passengers
